RUSSIA ARRESTS TROTZKY CHIEFS FOR DEATH PLOT

MOSCOW, Dec. 23.—[Sunday]—(AP)—The commissariat for home affairs announced early today that Gregory Zinoviev and Leo Kamenev, once prominent communist leaders, are among fifteen members of Zinoviev's former anti-Stalin group arrested in connection with the assassination of Sergei Kirov.

(Others under arrest, according to a Moscow dispatch to the New York Times, include E. Yevdokimov, a former president of the Leningrad soviet, and G. I. Safarov, an authority on eastern and colonial questions, whose articles have been featured in the official press.)

A special council under the auspices of the commissariat of home affairs. it was announced, will consider exiling from Russia Zinoviev, Kamenev and five others of the group concerning whom not enough data are available for their immediate trial.

Had Refused Confirmation.

Earlier the foreign office had refused to confirm or deny reports that the two veteran bolshevists, who, with Leon Trotzky, lost to Stalin in the scramble for power after Nicolai Lenin died in 1924, were in custody. Soviet newspapers bitterly assailed them as the instigators of Kirov's assassination.

[A dispatch from Warsaw to the London Express said the two would be tried by five judges, among them Josef Stalin, whom Zinoviev had opposed, and added that the death penalty "appears to be a foregone conclusion."]

With the military collegium of the Supreme court prepared to give Leonid Nicolieff, identified as Kirov's slayer, and thirteen others speedy trials, the newspaper Pravda charged Zinoviev and Kamenev, long leaders in the fight against Dictator Stalin's policies, with plotting the crime.

The assassination of Kirov, powerful in communist party ranks, at Leningrad Dec. 1 "was not accidental," Pravda said editorially, for "that shot sounded from the revolver of one of the Zinoviev opposition."

Followers of Trotzky.

A preliminary police report previously had linked the two old-time bolshevists, both stanch followers of Trotzky in advocating the world revolution, with the activities of an asserted terroristic group accused of plotting the Leningrad crime.

The plan, the police report said, was to "disorganize the leadership of the soviet government through terroristic acts directed against the chief leaders of the soviet régime and thus gain a change in the present policy in the spirit of the so-called Zinoviev-Trotzky platform."

Twice Zinoviev has been expelled from the ranks of the communist party for his alleged obstructionist tactics, and since 1928 he has held no important soviet office. He was once president of the communist international and a member of the all-powerful central committee of the communist party. Kamenev, another former member of the Moscow "inner circle," was also expelled for his anti-Stalin attitude. He was later readmitted when he repented his sins, but never regained his position of power. He is a brother-in-law of Trotzky.

As Nicolieff and his alleged associates awaited trial, the toll of lives taken by soviet justice since the assassination stood at 103, only 17 of those known to have been arrested having escaped execution.

Claim Trotzky Hatched Plot.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—[Sunday.]—[U. P.]—The London Express said today that its Warsaw correspondent has reported publication of a white book by the soviet government in which it is declared officially the insurrectionary movement which resulted in the assassination of Sergei Kirov was inspired by the exiled Leon Trotzky.

The white book, according to the Express Polish correspondent, shows Gregory Zinoviev and Leo Kamenev were Trotzky's lieutenants in a plot to overthrow the régime of Josef Stalin and to restore Trotzky, former companion of Nicolai Lenin, to power.

A second plot is reported by London papers to have been unearthed at Kharkov in south central Russia. Twenty-one communist leaders are reported to have been arrested there, including the head of the Ukrainian communist party. Extraordinary troop movements and frontier precautions are also said to be in progress.

SOLDIERS OF 4 NATIONS MASS AS LEAGUE ARMY

Will Guard Region for Plebiscite.

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Dec. 22.—Foreign troops occupied German soil once again tonight, bringing back memories of the post war occupation of the Rhineland.

The battle flags of four nations flew over this rich basin as Britain, Italy, Holland, and Sweden sent soldiers to back up the league of nations' determination that the plebiscite Jan. 13—at which Saarlanders vote to remain under the league, rejoin Germany or join France—must be peaceful.

Simultaneously with their arrival began the four day political truce called by the league governing commission in an effort to keep the territory quiet over Christmas.

Poke Sly Gibes at Army.

The soldiers, almost 3,000 of them this time, crossed the German border with the German government's permission, but Nazis in the Saar, not consulted in the matter, were withholding old fashioned German hospitality while their press poked sly gibes at the league's first international army.

The troops, pouring into the Saar from before dawn until after dusk, were reminiscent, Saarlanders said, of the American, French, British, and Belgian occupation of the Rhine after the world war. There were no French troops along this time. Foreign Minister Pierre Laval, anxious for peace, had told the league France would stay out.

The last detachments of the Rhine occupation forces left the Saar Dec. 12, 1930, and since there had been no foreign soldiers in this region until the vanguard of Britain's contribution arrived Dec. 18.

British Crack Jokes.

The final unit of Holland's troops was the last to arrive during the day. A regiment of Dutch marines marched through the streets at 8:30 p. m. The final British contingent, cracking jokes while marching in perfect file behind its band, paraded the narrow main street of Saarbruecken this afternoon, and succeeded with its good humor in thawing out the frozen faces of some Nazis.

The British, upon their arrival, crowded to the windows of their trains to shout "hi-hi, hullo," to the thousands watching, and sang "It's a Long Long Way to Tipperary." Smiles appeared on the faces of the crowds, among them many children, and most waved or gave the Nazi salute.

Thousands of Nazi flags, however, were flaunting their swastika above the heads of the marching Tommies, apparently in defiance of the league order forbidding display of any insignia after today.

Display of Force Impressive.

The display of force backing the Geneva decision to keep the Saar quiet during the voting was impressive.

First of all 15 Italian light tanks rumbled through the streets. Britain's big batch of troops arrived in trains from Calais, and after them came Benito Mussolini's crack grenadiers and carabinieri, one battalion of each.

Sweden's soldiers and Queen Wilhelmina's proud marines were next. They came by truck.

French Prepare to Evacuate.

PARIS, Dec. 22.—(AP)—With France's worries over a possible explosion in the Saar vastly eased by the arrival today of most of the league of nations' international army in the disputed territory, French engineers already were reported ready to pack up and leave in anticipation of the territory's return to Germany.

In addition to losing the Saar, France expects to have to feed from 15,000 to 20,000 anti-Hitler refugees from the region. These refugees are said to be ready to start for France when the plebiscite votes are counted after Jan. 13.

What is to be done with these thousands of political refugees who have campaigned openly against Adolf Hitler is the chief problem France must face if the Saar returns to German jurisdiction, as statesmen fully expect it will.

Voters from U. S. Fêted.

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, Dec. 22.—[U. P.]—A contingent of 352 Saar natives from the United States, en route to the Saar to vote in the plebiscite, arrived today aboard the Bremen and were fêted at the Bremen city hall. They will leave for the Saar in time for Christmas.

Happy Army of Shoppers Jams Loop

THE ROMANCE OF J. ALEXANDER POINDEXTER

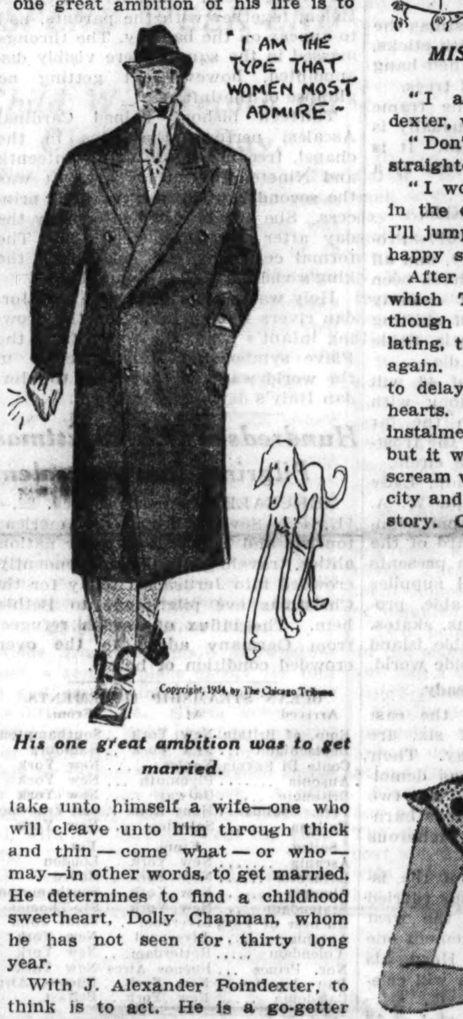
A SAGA OF THE GLADSOME YULETIDE.

(The most complicated story ever written.)

BY JOHN T. M'CUTCHEON.

Synopsis of preceding chapters: J. Alexander Poindexter, a tall, handsome man of the type most admired by women, discovers vast radium deposits near Galesburg and becomes a super-ultra-multimillionaire of untold wealth, as seen in his income tax statement. It would take three secretaries writing checks in shorthand for two solid thirty hour weeks to pay one instalment, if he were willing to let them waste their time this way.

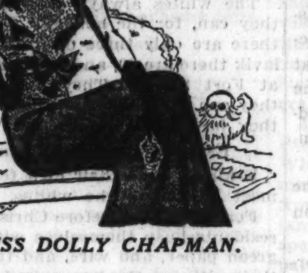
One evening while romping to and fro about his estate he suddenly feels a strange lassitude and dashes in to get a dictionary and see what it means. In his eagerness he skids beyond the L's over into the M's and his eye lights on the word "matrimony," which reminds him that the one great ambition of his life is to take unto himself a wife—one who will cleave unto him through thick and thin — come what — or who — may—in other words, to get married. He determines to find a childhood sweetheart, Dolly Chapman, whom he has not seen for thirty long year.



"I AM THE TYPE THAT WOMEN MOST ADMIRE"
Copyright, 1934, by The Chicago Tribune

His one great ambition was to get married.

With J. Alexander Poindexter, to think is to act. He is a go-getter from Gettysburg! He instantly charters all the air rights between Galesburg and Chicago and thus, unimpeded, he makes the trip to the Municipal airport in a shade under nine minutes and thirteen seconds. Two hours later he arrives in the loop, his taxi sweating at every pore. Summoning a bellboy he orders a city directory sent up immediately, and then spends thirty minutes resuscitating the bellboy, who has fainted at this unexpected order. After wasting a lot of time searching through the D's in the directory, he finally locates Miss Chapman in the C's and dashes out to her domicile where, thinking to surprise her, he leaps at her, and despite her shrieks, unfolds her in a long and unmitigated embrace. After about half an hour she succeeds in getting the information across that she is Lulu, Miss Chapman's maid, and that her mistress has asked her to inform any one who calls that she has gone to the drug store to get some plasters for her corns, which have been fretting her since the advent of cold weather.



"LULU, TELL ANY ONE WHO CALLS THAT I HAVE GONE TO THE DRUGSTORE FOR SOME CORN-PLASTERS"

MISS DOLLY CHAPMAN.

"I apologize," exclaimed Poindexter, who is a gentleman at heart.

"Don't mention it!" said Lulu, straightening her hair.

"I won't," said he, "I'll just get in the closet and when she comes I'll jump out at her and give her a happy surprise."

After many more vicissitudes, which Time and Space, extensive though they are, prevent recapitulating, the romance gets under way again. Something always happens to delay the union of these happy hearts. For instance, one thrilling instalment ended with a scream—but it was later discovered that the scream was in a different part of the city and had nothing to do with the story. On another occasion the instalment ends when the marriage is declared null and void because somebody forgot to ring the wedding bells.

"Don't mention it," said Lulu.

Still later, the marriage was delayed by quite an unusual episode. Mr. Poindexter, magnificently arrayed in his wedding finery, stopped in at a barber shop to get a shampoo and facial, when he was called on the phone.

"Are you the wonderful Alexander J. Poindexter of whom I have dreamed for so many heartsick nights?" murmured a voice softly.

"None other," answered Alexander modestly, blushing through the lather.

"Well, unless you come at once to the lake front, I shall end it all in the dark and brooding waters—and here it is Christmas eve."

"Your name and age, lady?" asked Alexander, getting into his coat and hat.

"Cecile de Barsac de Frontenac de Rougecoeur."

CECILE.

"I'll recognize you by that, my lady. I will come at once—just as soon as the porter brushes me off!"

Ah, 'twere better he desisted! He missed his wedding by some four hours and incurred liabilities amounting to one million shares of Monoxide, half common and half deferred, worth over fifty dollars, in addition to nearly a hundred dollars, some of it actually in cash.

When J. Alexander did not arrive at his wedding, his fiancée reported the matter to the police, but they, thinking he was an influential and well-known bootlegger, with offices across from the city hall, were completely baffled in their efforts to find him.

We now find J. Alexander and his fiancée, Miss Dolly Chapman, sitting among magnificent surroundings discussing their future. She wants to go to Niagara on their honeymoon, he wants not to go there. It is a deadlock and threatens further to postpone their wedding. Their voices are rising, although their desire to be married continues unabated.

MAINE BEGINS SALE OF LEGAL LIQUOR AS DRY 75 YEARS END

Portland, Me., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Legal liquor made its debut in Maine today, ending three-quarters of a century of prohibition.

Prices as low as 40 cents for a half pint of new whisky were in effect as state stores opened for business.

Stillman E. Woodman, chairman of the state liquor commission, said the state would endeavor to keep prices low in an effort to drive bootleggers out of business.

Sale of liquor in Maine was approved in the September election and the establishment of state stores was voted at a special session of the legislature a month later.

WAVE OF COLD TO REACH CITY BY NIGHTFALL

Making certain that the weather Tuesday shall be typical of an old-fashioned Christmas with all the trimmings, a cold wave from sub-zero Alaska and Canada was on the way to Chicago last night. A sharp drop in temperature readings by tonight is expected, with the probability that tomorrow morning will see the mercury hovering around 10 degrees above zero.

PLANE CRASHES IN HOME; WOMAN'S WIT SAVES LIVES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Edith Martin, 30, glanced out the window today, then whirled around, shoved her 60 year old father outdoors and shut off the gas stove on which she was cooking breakfast. An instant later brick and tile crashed about her as a big French airplane smashed into her home on the edge of Croydon airfield.

Her presence of mind saved her father from injury and prevented the airplane from igniting as the motor on the wing, dripping gasoline, came to rest just above the stove.

Miss Martin's arm was slightly hurt, and her father was taken temporarily to a hospital because of shock. One side and half the roof of the house were demolished.

The French pilot, Emil d'Armaude, overshot the landing because of the thick fog. Neither the pilot nor his assistant was hurt.

This was only one of the freak accidents, in which four persons were killed, caused by the fog which has blanketed much of England in the last 36 hours.

Prime Minister MacDonald was two hours late getting by train to his home in Scotland, partly because of fog and partly because of the fortunate discovery in the murk of a broken rail which had to be replaced.

ACTOR GEORGE ARLISS SLATED FOR ELEVATION TO KNIGHTHOOD SOON

LONDON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—George Arliss tonight seemed assured of elevation to knighthood. The veteran actor's name was understood to be on the honor list for the year already approved by King George. Sunday newspapers carried front page photographs of Arliss and his wife under the heading "to be knighted" but, as usual, no official confirmation was forthcoming.

Head of N. Y. State Police Makes Radio Musical Debut

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Maj. John Adams Warner, commander of the New York state police, made his radio debut as a musician over station WHAM here tonight. Maj. Warner played the Schumann piano concerto in A minor.

Gen. Sanborn, Noted Soldier, Dies Suddenly

Joseph Brown Sanborn, wartime commander of the 131st infantry, formerly the Illinois "Dandy First," and wearer of six war decorations from four nations, died yesterday at his home, 3636 Lake Park avenue. He held the rank of lieutenant general, retired, in the state guard.

Gen. Sanborn, who was 79 years old, had been in good health, apparently, except for a slight cold he had contracted several days ago. Shortly after noon he complained of feeling faint and lay down on a davenport in the living room. When members of the family came in a few moments later he was dead, supposedly from a heart attack.

First of War Colonels to Die.

In the home at the time were Mrs. Sanborn, the former Willa Alice Weck, whom he married in 1924; a sister-in-law, Mrs. S. E. Bliss, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Warren F. Weck, who had arrived earlier in the day from Minneapolis for a visit.

Gen. Sanborn, known as an outstanding Chicagoan both in war and peacetime service, was the first of Chicago's five original wartime colonels to pass away. The four in addition to Gen. Sanborn are John J. Garrity, Milton J. Foreman, John V. Clinnin, and Abel Davis.

Gen. Sanborn, who was born on Dec. 8, 1855, in Chester, N. H., had been identified with military affairs since 1879, two years after he came to Chicago. When the Spanish-American war broke out he was a major of the First Illinois infantry, the "Dandy First," and served throughout the Santiago campaign, emerging from the war as a colonel.

Won Name in World War.

He continued in that rank throughout the years thereafter, serving on the border in the Mexican campaign of 1916. In 1917 he sailed to France with the same regiment, which then had become the 131st United States infantry.

It was as commander of this regiment, which has a notable combat record, that Gen. Sanborn earned awards for valor from the allies, and the loyalty and admiration of his men.

Despite his 63 years he was known as one of the most active regimental commanders. On the British front he soon distinguished himself and attracted the attention of the British division commander. Award of that nation's Distinguished Service Order followed.

Decorated by Pershing.

In March of 1919, four months after the armistice, Gen. Sanborn was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross by Gen. Pershing for his heroism on Aug. 9, 1918. The citation read:

"For extraordinary heroism near Gressaire, France. After a forced march of twenty-five miles, Col. Sanborn's regiment was ordered into a critical engagement. Hurrying to the front, he personally led his forces through a heavy and concentrated shell fire and started the attack at the exact allotted time.

"After launching his attack he es-

JOYFUL SPIRIT RULES BIGGEST CROWD IN YEARS

Holiday Gift Rush Is City-wide.

A vast army of Chicagoans moved cheerfully yesterday toward the completion of their Christmas preparations.

Into State street's brilliant stores marched such throngs, bent on translating their Yuletide spirit into tangible gifts for relatives and friends, as the street had not witnessed since the boom times of 1928.

For other thousands the day ushered in the longest holiday period they ever had known. The current observance of the five day week made yesterday a day of rest for these, and many of them have been granted tomorrow off by their employers. With today and Christmas added, these fortunates have four whole days for rest, shopping, and merriment.

Heavy Holiday Trafic Movement.

Airplane lines and railroads reported their pre-Christmas patronage much larger than last year. The rail lines, almost without exception, announced that extra sections were being run to accommodate those who wish to spend the holiday with the folks back home. Special short term rates encouraged the movement.

Other Chicagoans, forehanded and public spirited, were laying the ground for charity parties and for expressions of the seasonal spirit in song and prayer.

The shopping army began to pour into the loop at 10 a. m. Transportation companies added as much equipment as was feasible to serve them. To keep the massed lines moving, on foot and by automobile, extra policemen were assigned, one to each block, by Capt. David Flynn, head of the loop trafic division.

"Biggest Crowd in 28 Years."

"It's the biggest crowd of buyers I have seen in my 28 years of service," asserted the captain. "But it was one of the easiest to handle. Everybody seemed happy."

Policeman Edward Vyrzal, another veteran, asserted he had never beheld so large a proportion of pedestrians carrying packages.

"It must mean that there's more money for spending this Christmas," he theorized.

As the day wore on the crowds, instead of diminishing, became larger. Late in the afternoon, after its observers had made a survey of the situation, the State Street council authorized its members to stay open in the evening. H. W. Rieger, executive secretary, said it was the first time in years that additional shopping time was regarded as necessary on the Saturday before Christmas.

Big Out of Town Business.

"If this hadn't been done," he said, "many shoppers might have been unable to purchase gifts in time. Remember there's only Monday left."

The peak throngs were regarded as remarkable, in view of the fact that the buying rush started immediately after Thanksgiving. Store managers asserted that out of town purchasers were more numerous than usual and that many were telephoning in rush orders for merchandise. The United Air Lines reported a large business in air express.

When the stores were closed last night and the tired sales forces gratefully began their Sunday rest, the managements of the stores immediately started replenishment of their shelves for a new rush of business tomorrow. Assurances were given that all purchases will be delivered in time for Christmas presentation.

Neighborhood Rush, Too.

The rush to buy was not confined to the loop. Suburban districts and neighborhood centers on all sides of the city sent in reports indicating that their sales also were the largest of any corresponding day in years.

Tomorrow the joyousness of the season is to have a vocal outlet. At 11 a. m. carolers will gather at State and Madison streets and those last day shoppers who have the time and the inclination will be invited to join in mass singing of old favorite songs. That the authorities believe a great throng will participate is evidenced by the assignment of 200 policemen to direct trafic for this event.

Choruses are to ride to the busy corner on buses and on open surface cars. Once they have been massed there, and joined by others on foot, they are to join in traditional Christmas melodies, with Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink as honorary conductor, Reinald Werrenrath as guest conductor, and Noble Cain as director.

Lieut. Gov. Thomas Donovan, Mayor Kelly, the Rev. John Thompson, Rabbi G. George Fox, and Bishop Bernard J. Sneil are to speak briefly and the ceremony will be terminated by the singing of "Silent Night," in which the whole army of shoppers will be requested to join. Mme. Schumann-Heink will lead the song. One estimate placed the expected attendance at 150,000.

The Monday-off schedule will not apply to the city hall and county buildings, which will be open throughout the day. All federal departments housed in the United States courthouse will be closed, by order of President Roosevelt, after 1 p. m. The sole exception will be the federal courts, which will be open for emergency work. Postoffice employés, who have had a busy time this month, will continue to struggle with the transport of Christmas presents.

Christmas Spirit Rules.

So much Christmas spirit was in the air yesterday that most of the organizations holding regular meetings did not try to transact business.

One of the largest of the early parties for children was held in Thorne hall of the McKinlock campus of Northwestern university. About 800 children were presented with toys, candy, and other gifts. Eighty-five youngsters were entertained at the Shriners hospital for crippled children in Oak Park. In the Stevens hotel the Civic Music association had a tree and entertainment for 75. About 350 were made happy at the annual party of the Chicago Mercantile exchange, most of the guests being pupils from the Carpenter school.

It was announced that 15,000 of the Christmas boxes of clothing for poor children, purchased with money raised by the Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit organization headed by Mayor Kelly, had been packed and delivered. Another 35,000 boxes will be distributed tomorrow. Each box contains a pair of shoes, two pairs of stockings, two suits of underwear, a pair of trousers [or a dress], a sweater, mittens, and a cap.

GAINS IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The biggest crowds in years thronged New York and Brooklyn stores this Christmas season, boosting trade to the highest levels since 1931 and bettering the season of a year ago by at least 7 per cent, according to a survey made today. Business would have shown a much greater improvement, merchants said, had not the city put on a 2 per cent sales tax in the middle of the Christmas shopping period.

Most stores traced their decline in sales from the day the sales tax went into effect. With trade at its best in the first part of the month and stores on the way to new record highs, merchants said that, following the first day of the tax, sales began to drop which was interrupted only by a pickup in business in the last three days.

At the end of the first twelve shopping days, the New York Federal Reserve bank had reported retail sales in New York and Brooklyn up 13.2 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

Humming in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Twelve thousand extra store clerks were engulfed in a tremendous horde of Christmas shoppers here today as the biggest shopping season in three years neared its close.

Christmas retail trade is 20 per cent over last year, said William H. Gray, secretary of the Retail Merchants board.

Detroit Scores Gains.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Business is good in Detroit this Christmas. Employment is up, retail trade is booming. The mails are heavy.

Secretary Charles E. Boyd of the retail merchants' bureau says the December business of department stores, clothing, drug, jewelry and merchandise stores is 20 per cent greater than it was in 1933. Automotive sales have increased similarly. Sales of food and fuel show a gain of 10 per cent or more.

Boston Sees Record.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—While there were no complete figures available from any authoritative source tonight, there were definite indications from certain leading department store, club, hotel and railroad officials that this Christmas will be the best since 1929, and in some cases a bit better.

Store, theater, restaurant and hotel figures placed the spending total in the metropolitan area at about $50,000,000.

Smiles in Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—There were approximately 25 million more smiles in downtown stores this season than in a corresponding period a year ago, merchants say. A heavy shopping traffic moved through the stores today with less registering of footsteps because folks were stepping light.

CAROLERS REHERSE IN LOOP

ASKS FOR NEW INTERPRETATION OF YULE SPIRIT

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The Christmas spirit which has glowed in thousands of young hearts with increased fervor since Charles Dickens first took up his pen found today a warm defender in Edwin Markham, dean of American poets, on the occasion of his appointment as honorary president of the Yule League of America. Mr. Markham also made a plea for a new interpretation of Santa Claus.

The white-haired bard who wrote "The Man With the Hoe" more than a generation ago and who has lived through more than 80 Christmas seasons came out in a vigorous attack on those who would destroy the true Christmas spirit with cynicism and commercialism. He advocated a "return from the wild paths of the present commercial tendencies to turn all holidays into dollar days."

"The time has come for every one who sets any value on the fine old traditions of our greatest holiday to act and speak in its defense, Mr. Markham declared. Americans, he added, should "endeavor to recapture some of the lost poetry and romance of ancient Christmas."

Christmas Greetings Sent to 39 Pastors in German Cells

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 22.—Thirty-nine Protestant pastors from the district of Brandenburg, who are imprisoned on charges of refusing to take orders from Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller, were sent special Christmas greetings today by brother members of the Confessional Synod of Brandenburg. The pastors could not learn whether the greetings were delivered to the prisoners. They said the greetings were sent as a sign of encouragement.

EARLY MASTERS' ART TELLS STORY OF CHRISTMAS

The Christmas story, as seen by the various early artists and interpreted by them on canvas, was reviewed yesterday by Dr. Robert B. Harshe, director of the Art institute. On display at the institute are many works on the subject, clearly reflecting the individual artist's nationality and environment.

The institute will be open to the public on Christmas, as is usual on holidays.

In commenting on the more important paintings in the collection, Dr. Harshe pointed out the wide differences in the versions of the Madonna and the Child, the scenes of the nativity, and the flight to Egypt.

"The Italians began with thoroughly canonical interpretations," he said, "and gradually became less religious in their painting, finally losing the religious quality entirely.

"The Flemish show more individuality in their paintings of the Christ Child and the Mother, although there are several examples where the Italian influence had brought sweetness and softness into their work.

"The Spanish were possessed of greater religious fervor than the others. The Germans reduce their subjects to conditions of German heaviness and ponderousness and like to portray stout Madonnas and fat, chubby little children."

These four groups, Dr. Harshe said, compose the bulk of the Art institute's paintings related to Christmas.

Included are "Madonna and Child," by Rogier van der Weyden; "Madonna and Child," by Hans Memling; "The Nativity," by Perugino, and "Madonna and Child Enthroned," by Meliore Toscano.

RUSS COLUMBO'S MOTHER GETS 'HIS' YULE WIRE

Beverly Hills, Cal., Dec. 22.—(AP)—A cablegram signed "Russ" came to Mrs. Nicholas Columbo here today.

It carried a Christmas message to the aged mother of Russ Columbo, singer and actor, who died Sept. 2, when he was accidentally shot in the head.

The cablegram presumably came from Europe, where Mrs. Columbo has been told her son is working in a motion picture.

Two days before the accident Mrs. Columbo was stricken with a heart attack. Because of her condition she has never been told of her son's death.

Immediately after the tragedy members of Columbo's family and his close friend, Carole Lombard, film actress, began the "merciful fraud" that kept the mother in ignorance of the accident.

LONELY MOUNTIES IN ARCTIC BUILD CHRISTMAS TREES

Sticks, Green Paper and Wire Are Used.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 22.—(AP)—In the northernmost reaches of the dominion, above the tree line, the mounties today prepared for a lonely holiday by making their own Christmas trees.

Up in the icy lands the few dwellers have learned how to make a few sticks and green paper look fairly real and each year practice the art.

The Royal Canadian Mounted police are the warders of the Arctic. With them for Christmas in scattered sections will be an occasional missionary, physician, or wireless operator.

Plan Christmas Dinners.

Word coming down to Ottawa by wireless tells of the preparations. Many a Christmas dinner will be served far north of the tree line.

The most northerly post is at Craig Harbor, on the southern tip of Ellesmere island, where two constables are stationed. Another mounties' post is at the northern end of Baffin island. Herschel island, off the mainland in Mackenzie bay, is another of the stations far up near the top of the world. Aklavik, where the Mackenzie empties into the cold sea, has another station. The marine department wireless posts are at Coppermine, Chesterfield inlet, Nottingham island, Resolution.

The whites always assemble, when they can, for the holiday. Sometimes there are only three or four. At Aklavik there are 40, and sometimes more at Fort Smith. They feast as best they can and exchange presents which they have made themselves.

Eskimos Have Own Feasts.

Eskimos have their own feasts, but meet later with the whites.

For many days before Christmas the residents busy themselves with sticks, green paper, and wire, and then hang their gifts on the improvised trees.

Festivities are held in the frame house of the police, which usually is the only building at the post. It is heated with coal left once a year by a boat.

Toys for Sable Island Kids.

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Provisions, toys, fruit, and candy, and all other Christmas necessities have been delivered to Canada's most easterly territory, the lonely lump of shifting sand 85 miles from Nova Scotia, Sable island, where ships come to die.

Children in this colony of 42 will hang up their stockings along with other Canadian children on the far Atlantic coast islands and in the frostbitten outposts of the Arctic circle.

The government supply ship, Lady Laurier, in command of Capt. W. A. Robson, has returned from her semiannual visit to the "graveyard of the Atlantic." In her hold were presents from mainland folk, special supplies for the Christmas dinner table, provisions for the winter months, skates, toys, and games for the Sable island tots, and mail from the outside world.

Lighthouse Keepers Ready.

John Gregore, keeper of the east light and his household of six, are prepared for a happy holiday. Their lighthouse, built in 1873, was demolished by a lightning bolt and fire two weeks ago. A temporary light is burning to warn navigation of treacherous shoals.

Down at the other end of the island, where the shifting sands carried away the substructure of the west light necessitating its replacement one mile further inland, James Horn, his wife and four small children will celebrate the season.

Others of the government staf of 18 will patrol the coast line where the gulf stream, the St. Lawrence current and the frigid waters of the north meet. The island is covered with snow but the children have no use for sleds. Their sand hills are not high enough to get a thrill from coasting.

SHOT TO DEATH IN GLENVIEW.

Irvin Levernier, 48 years old, was found shot to death early yesterday in the yard of his home at 1153 Pine street, Glenview. A shotgun lay beside him. The police said they believed the death suicide, but a coroner's jury returned an open verdict.

QUINTUPLETS TAKE BACKSTAGE ROLES FOR THIS CHRISTMAS

CALLANDER, Ont., Dec. 22.—[U.P.]—The Dionne quintuplets, for the first time since their births on May 28, are going to be eclipsed by their five brothers and sisters on Christmas day.

While plans are being made by Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe and his staf of nurses at the Dafoe hospital, home of the quintuplets, for the celebration, the babies are unaware that they will be all but ignored.

One Christmas tree decorated with colored lights, stars, streamers, bells, and holly has been set up in the hospital nursery. That is for the quintuplets. A much larger, more gaily decorated tree stands in the reception room. Around it are piled presents of every kind, dolls, doll carriages, dishes, and games for the older girls; wagons, motor cars, Teddy bears, and trains for the boys.

Dr. Dafoe is firm in his decision that his "beloved" babies shall not get even an extra sip of orange juice by way of celebration.

However, the quintuplets are not going to be entirely overlooked.

Five tiny stockings, probably 10, will be hung on the mantelpiece. Five would hardly hold their presents. Each baby will receive a little doll in her stocking. Then there will be an orange, or some other fruit, rattles and other tiny toys—but no candies.

ROYAL ITALIAN BABY BAPTIZED AS 1,400 WATCH

NAPLES, Dec. 22.—(AP)—While cheering thousands stood before the royal palace, Cardinal Ascalesi, archbishop of Naples, today sprinkled holy water on the royal head of chuckling little Princess Maria Pia of Savoy.

A lady in waiting held the good humored infant, first born of Crown Prince Humbert and Princess Marie Jose, on a crimson silken cushion for the baptismal ceremony as 1,400 royal and aristocratic guests, gathered in the chapel of the palace watched.

Outside the cheering became so loud that King Victor Emanuel and Queen Helen, together with the parents, had to appear on the balcony. The throngs massed in the square were visibly disappointed, however, at getting no glimpse of the infant.

Thirteen bishops helped Cardinal Ascalesi perform the rites in the chapel, treasure house of Seventeenth and Nineteenth century art. It was the second baptism for the little princess. She was baptized informally the day after her birth, Sept. 24. The formal ceremony was delayed by the king's visit to Italian Somaliland.

Holy water from the Piave and Jordan rivers was sprinkled on the growing infant's head, the water from the Piave symbolizing Italy's victory in the world war and that from the Jordan Italy's devout Catholicism.

Hundreds of U.S. Christmas Pilgrims Jam Jerusalem

JERUSALEM, Palestine, Dec. 22.—[U. P.]—Several hundred American tourists and hundreds of other nationalities, traveling mostly independently, crowded into Jerusalum today for the Christmas eve pilgrimage to Bethlehem. The influx of Jewish refugees from Germany added to the overcrowded condition of hotels.

NAMES IN NEWS MAKE DOLLS; SO SANTA LEARNS

Images of Quintuplets and Shirley Temple Abound.

The names in the news make dolls. For proof, one need only visit the toy department of any loop store. Such a visit discloses that the Dionne quintuplets and little Miss Shirley Temple are the two best sellers in dolldom.

The Dionnes are out in full force—Marie, Emilie, Cecile, Annette, and Yvonne, five squashy pink rubber babies tucked under a pink rabbity blanket into one basket, with one bottle for the five of them.

For the thorough-going Santa Claus there is, to go with the quintuplets, the dollmaker's version of Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, their Canadian doctor, a cherubic "man" doll wearing an immaculate white smok, with a stethoscope around his neck.

A Classical Renaissance.

The Shirley Temple dolls come in all sizes and of all qualities, but they all boast of curly yellow hair tied back from their smiling faces by a wee blue snood, and all are garbed in the stand-out pleated dress, made famous by little Miss Temple.

Back on the doll shelves for the first time in many a year are Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women," a result undoubtedly of the motion picture based on the book. All are there—Jo, her hair awry and a gamin look in her eyes; prim Meg, with ruffled pantalettes showing demurely below voluminous skirts; patient Beth of the curly dark hair and dainty yellow-haired Amy.

Orphan Annie goes Places.

Three Dickens' favorites figure in the general renaissance and all occupy high seats of favor. David Copperfield, his fly-away little hat on the back of his head, is the most easily recognized of the trio, but the others are Oliver Twist, wearing a surprisingly cheerful smile, and Little Nell, looking consciously brave.

Other characters, both of storybook and newspaper fame, who have made onslaughts on the hearts of doll-lovers this Christmas are Little Orphan Annie, her snub nose high in the air; Little Black Sambo, who even when stuffed with cotton casts a fearful glance behind him at the tigers; the Three Little Pigs, who make merry in even more ways this Christmas than last, and bold, impudent Mickey Mouse.

The only one not there, in fact, is Crosspatch, and really—both children and adults admit it—there simply is no place for Crosspatch in a Christmas stocking.

RICHBERG WARNS EDITOR AGAINST JOHNSON'S STORY

Notifies Magazine He'll Sue if He Is Libeled.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Donald R. Richberg, recovery coördinator, has written the Saturday Evening Post that it "must accept full legal responsibility" for any derogatory statements contained in a forthcoming series of articles by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, who resigned as head of the NRA after an extended dispute with Richberg.

In a letter to George Horace Lorimer, editor of the magazine, written Dec. 14, Richberg said he had been "told by several persons, seeming to have sources of accurate information," that a book from which the articles are to be excerpted "includes certain definitly described attacks upon me which, if made, would be untrue, maliciously libelous, and designed wholly for the purpose of doing me harm."

"Nothing Lower," Says Richberg.

"I suppose there is nothing lower in the scale of publishing than the publication of character assassination for the purpose either of venting personal spleen or building circulations," the letter continued.

"I should not assume that The Saturday Evening Post would stoop to put itself in that class of publications. It is possible, however, that you may have assumed that Gen. Johnson's statements can be relied upon and can be supported by evidence which would be given credence in a court. On the other hand, many of the charges which Gen. Johnson has loosely made in private conversation regarding me and my activities can be completely disproved by documentary evidence and the testimony of a large number of credible witnesses.

Would Have the Law on Them.

"Under the circumstances, I simply desire to notify you that if you take the responsibility for publishing the statements by Gen. Johnson, derogatory to me and obviously designed as destructive of my personal and professional reputation, you must accept the full legal responsibility for taking such action without any adequate effort to assure yourself of the truth of the libel."

Beyond saying that he did write the letter in question, Richberg tonight would make no statement. His differences with Johnson, which preceded the latter's withdrawal from NRA, were long a matter of common knowledge in Washington.

Several weeks before his actual resignation, in fact, Johnson walked out of a White House conference attended also by Richberg and other high officials and promptly dictated a letter of resignation to the President. The chief executive asked him to reconsider, and he did so.

Bitter Personal Differences.

The disagreement arose from several personal incidents, including the submission by Johnson of an NRA reorganization plan to the White House, without taking Richberg into consultation.

Later Richberg and Secretary Perkins drew up a plan for NRA which the forthright general bluntly charged was aimed at his own retirement from that agency.

In the course of his letter to Lorimer, Richberg further said:

"This letter is not an accusation, because I have not seen the general's book, nor have I any positive knowledge that you intend to publish it, or any part of it. It is, however, intended to put you on notice as to the responsibility which you may be assuming if the various reports to me are well founded."

At Philadelphia tonight, Mr. Lorimer would make no comment.

Sees Conscience Ants in Pants.

Okmulgee, Okla., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson said tonight Donald Richberg's reported warning to the Saturday Evening Post against the publication of certain statements in forthcoming articles by Johnson "is just a symptom of the ants of conscience in his pants."

"Donald is a high official," Johnson said of the recovery coördinator. "If he thinks there is libel in this narration why doesn't he stand on his legal rights in a suit for libel and not attempt to use his position to threaten the freedom of the press?

"Donald's agitation is just a symptom of the ants of conscience in his pants.

"When I was catching all the dead cats that any one had to throw I never squealed or tried to scotch them in a single case."

The former NRA administrator is visiting his mother, Mrs. S. L. Johnson, here for the holidays.

NEW STAR NOW VISIBLE TO EYE GROWS BRIGHTER

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 22.—(AP)—A newly brilliant star is lighting the sky these pre-Christmas nights as did the Star of Bethlehem 1934 years ago.

"Nova Herculis 1934," a faint star which steadily has increased in brilliance at least since Dec. 14 and which Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard observatory, has described as possibly "the most important stellar outburst ever witnessed," increased in brilliancy again last night.

Recently a star of only fifteenth magnitude, far below the range of visual observation, the nova now is of first magnitude, clearly visible to the naked eye.

If the sky is clear tonight, or on Christmas night for that matter, one can stand in his back yard, look to the northwestern sky and behold the newly brilliant star north of Vega, about the distance of fifteen times the moon's diameter away. Vega is the most brilliant of the northern stars.

Nova Herculis, he said, now was 200,000 times more brilliant than it was the first of December.

HUMBLE PRAYER IS GOOD FELLOWS' CHRISTMAS CUE

Joy of Spreading Joy Privilege to All.

O little town of Bethlehem,
How still we see thee lie!

Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
The silent stars go by;

Yet in thy dark streets shineth
The everlasting Light;

The hopes and fears of all the years
Are met in thee tonight.

—From "O Little Town of Bethlehem," by Phillips Brooks.

BY PHIL MAXWELL.

Today, throughout Chicago, church choirs lift their voices in Christmas carols. Bells are ringing out the glad tidings of the season. Bright faced boys dressed in cassocks join in gladsome song. Tonight candles will shine from windows and Christmas trees will dot snow covered homes. Christmas is near.

In a back room of a third floor apartment there is a wearied mother who also knows that Christmas is near. Last night when her little daughter, 6 years old, went to bed one could have overheard this conversation:

"Mamma, dear, what's Santa Claus going to bring me? Will I get a big doll that rolls its eyes and cries?"

"Don't worry, little darling. Maybe Santa Claus won't forget you. Now you get some sleep; you've got to be up early for Sunday school."

A Christmas Prayer.

Later last night this mother knelt at her bedside and this was her prayer: "O God, won't some one remember us at Christmas? We thank thee for all the good things that are done for us. Bless Susanne and help me to be a good mother to her. Amen."

Mr. Good Fellow, did you hear that humble prayer? It epitomizes the fervent plea of perhaps hundreds of somewhat similar prayers mumbled reverently in humble homes last night and likely to be repeated tonight and tomorrow night. You can help to fulfill that prayer, simply, inexpensively and joyfully. For your convenience THE TRIBUNE's Good Fellow department will remain open today from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. You need only telephone Superior 0100 and ask for the name of a needy family. Then tomorrow or Christmas morning you can carry a basket of good things into a deserving home and swell its small quota of happiness even as you, too, are enjoying the greatest joy that Christmas can bring.

Deliveries Start Tomorrow.

Tomorrow morning the first delivery of Good Fellow baskets will be made by Tribune circulation trucks and by the Aviation Good Fellows from the Chicago airport. A brief ceremony will be held at the airport at 11 o'clock. Through the amplifying system the strains of "Silent Night, Holy Night" will be sung, as it was last year, by Frank Holland, tenor. The public is invited to join in this event with the pilots and others associated with aviation.

The joy of becoming a Good Fellow is any one's privilege, and it's a Christmas pleasure that increasing hundreds have indulged in since the first Good Fellow campaign in 1909. There's still room for many hundreds more Good Fellows, if the hundreds of deserving families whose needs have been determined are to be remembered on Christmas morning. It's easy to become a Good Fellow, and the great happiness that comes with the unselfish task of personally delivering a loaded Christmas basket is its own reward.

2 AMERICANS JAILED AS STOWAWAYS AFTER ICY RIDE ACROSS SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1934: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Dec. 22.—An icy joy ride across the stormy Atlantic aboard the liner Majestic landed two American stowaways in jail today at Southampton. They are Frederick William Maguire, 32, advertiser and publisher, and Milton Charles Hill, 33, movie film salesman. Both got seven days in jail and were ordered deported at the end of that time.

It was revealed at their trial that they suddenly decided to become stowaways while visiting friends near the Majestic's pier on Dec. 14. They climbed into a lifeboat and woke up the next morning to find themselves at sea. It was alleged the pair had been drinking when they embarked.

For two days the men hid in the lifeboat despite the cold weather. Hunger compelled them to surrender to the captain. The stowaways were put to work and locked up in a cabin at night. Maguire broke down the door and the shipping company claimed $6.50 for damages.

WHITE CHILDREN AND COLORED IN DIXIE PAGEANT

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Colored and white children joined in a Christmas pageant here which sponsors hailed today as depicting the good will between the races in the south.

The feature, called a "Pageant of Peace," included a song by a colored youth, "In Christ There Is No East Nor West." Christmas carols by a chorus of 200 colored children, and a parade of white and colored children bearing the flags of all nations.

Pointing to the demonstration, which was attended by approximately 1,000, a spokesman for the sponsors said, "Persons who harbor race prejudice or antagonism are not representative of the best south."

The pageant marked the beginning of Christmas observance which will see a return of carol singing here on a large scale.

VANDERBILT GIRL AT MOTHER'S TO SPEND WEEK-END

Child Will Return for Christmas Day.

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The urbane routine of the East 72d street and Park avenue neighborhood was disrupted today by the return of 10 year old Gloria Vanderbilt to the home of her mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, for her first week-end visit since Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the child's aunt, won custody of her a month ago.

Ladies setting out from their homes on their shopping tours, ordered chauffeurs to drive slowly that they might stare at the four story brick house and the knot of curious persons gathered in front of it. Business bound gentlemen peered through limousine windows. Delivery boys loitered about, hoping for one glimpse of the child over whom the Vanderbilts fought.

Child Over Hour Late.

Aside from the plain brownstone house, a sombre place except for four red and green window wreaths, there was little to see. Gloria arrived at 11:04 a. m., an hour and four minutes later than the time set for her delivery by the court. She dashed across the sidewalk into the house. A little later she made an equally fast exit and, with her mother, went toy shopping.

On her return from that expedition she had her lunch and then her mother gave out word that both she and Gloria were very happy about their reunion.

Mrs. Vanderbilt made it evident that she was doing her utmost to keep the child from the public eye. She refused to talk of her plans for Gloria's Christmas, and she complained of the inevitable photographers' flashes which greeted her whenever she put foot out of doors.

Visits Mother Weekly.

By the decision of Justice John F. Carew, Gloria henceforth is to spend each week-end—from 10 a. m. Saturday to sundown Sunday—with her mother. The rest of the time she is with Mrs. Whitney at Old Westbury, N. Y. Mother and daughter are to be together on Christmas day, also, the court decreed, and so on Tuesday Gloria will make another visit to town.

When she came in from her aunt's today she was accompanied by a nurse and by a private detective. They traveled in a limousine. By the time they reached Mrs. Vanderbilt's home, at 49 East 72d street, they had been long awaited.

As early as 7 a. m. photographers were on hand. By 9:30 eighteen camera men and twelve reporters were there. Through windows in the apartment houses across the street scores of neighbors peeked.

Two policemen kept a path clear on the sidewalk in front of the house, and had a difficult time with case hardened onlookers.

Finally the child appeared. The gray limousine swept up to the curb. A private detective opened the door and helped Gloria to the sidewalk.

Flash bulbs were discharged, and a few persons shouted, "Hello, Gloria." The child wore a green and red plaid coat and a matching hat with a fairly wide brim. She pulled the hat over her eyes and skipped for the house.

ROOSEVELT WILL LIGHT YULE TREE, ADDRESS NATION

Avalanche of Gifts Pours In on White House.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Workmen today finished the gayly decorated national Christmas tree in Lafayette square, across Pennsylvania avenue from the White House, which President Roosevelt will light on Christmas eve when he addresses the nation and signals the opening of the holiday festivities.

The tree is strung with 250 red and green light bulbs and 250 red, green and silver balls which will glisten in iridescent splendor when the President turns the switch at 5:10 p. m. Monday. A half hour of music by the United States marine band and the singing of Christmas carols will precede the arrival of the President and the lighting of the tree. The ceremonies, including the President's three minute address, will be broadcast over two national radio networks.

10,000 Packages and Cards.

An avalanche of gifts and Christmas greeting cards sent to the President and members of his family kept mail clerks in the basement of the executive offices working at top speed today. Upward of 10,000 packages and cards were handled. The gifts ranged from Florida grapefruit to a buck deer, sent by the Woodmont [Md.] Rod and Gun club. Nine turkeys had been received, as well as many wild ducks and quail. There were many gifts of linens and wood carvings for Mrs. Roosevelt and dolls for Sistie and Buzzie Dall, the Roosevelt grandchildren.

After the public tree ceremony the President will join his family in the White House for the evening. His mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, arrived from Hyde Park today and the whole family is here except Elliott, who is spending Christmas with his wife's parents at Dallas, Tex. The President always gathers the family around the fireside on Christmas eve and reads Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" to them.

Grand Time for Children.

Mrs. Roosevelt is always the first one up on Christmas morning, and she goes from room to room, pulling down the windows and wishing everybody a merry Christmas. Then the whole family gathers in the President's bedroom for the distribution of gifts, which he supervises. Sistie and Buzzie jump up and down on the President's bed while this is going on and have a grand time.

Only members of the family will be present at the White House Christmas dinner, which doubtless will feature many of the delicacies that came in the Christmas mail. Next Saturday there will be a ball in the White House in honor of young friends of John and Franklin Jr., the Roosevelt boys who are home from Harvard. The guests will stay at the White House overnight, and to accommodate them all, army cots will be moved in.

JAPAN SENDS U. S. NOTICE OF NAVAL PACT ABROGATION

Admiral Calls Action Step to World Peace.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 22.—The conviction that Japan is contributing to permanent world peace by abrogating the Washington naval treaty of 1922 was expressed today by Admiral Mineo Osumi, minister of navy. The admiral's statement was issued simultaneously with the sending of instructions to Hirosi Saito, Japanese ambassador to Washington, to hand Japan's notification of abrogation to American Secretary of State Cordell Hull at the earliest time convenient to Hull. The instructions were sent by Foreign Minister Kobi Hirota.

After repeating the often expressed contention that the treaty is thirteen years outmoded because of the remarkable advance in science, especially the building of naval craft, airplanes and weapons, Admiral Osumi said it is also outmoded as a result of a most conspicuous change in the international situation.

Finds Treaty a "Defect."

"Japan finds the treaty a defect in its naval defense scheme, and therefore desires to abrogate it," he said.

He continued that Japan, however, does not desire unlimited building, nor to find the world in a state in which there will not be naval treaties, but rather seeks a new and more appropriate pact fair to all.

"The whole nation is striving for this," he said, "and it is the nation's firm conviction—not only of the navy, but of the whole nation—that only through holding a naval conference which abandons the idea of fixing naval strength by ratio and fixes a common upper limit can practical disarmament be attained.

"Japan is willing and anxious to reduce its navy as much as possible and also desires to abolish totally, or at least curtail as much as possible, offensive craft, at the same time perfecting and building up defensive strength.

Abrogation Step to Peace.

"Through this means the Japanese navy desires to realize the principle of nonthreat, nonmenace, and nonaggression.

"Japan feels that by doing this it can contribute to permanent world peace and thus sees abrogation as a step leading in this direction as well as fulfilling its proper duty."

Admiral Osumi in a letter to Capt. Aubrey Delanon, French naval attaché, today cleared Sub-Lieut. Terrier Ducros, assistant French naval attaché, of charges of espionage. Ducros was charged on Dec. 10 with using 30 Japanese women, all of whom were arrested, to secure pictures in fortified areas as part of an alleged spy plot. Delanon disclosed the contents of Osumi's letter, which said:

"The navy department expresses regret and has done its best to clarify the matter. After an inquiry it finds that the accusations regarding spying are without any foundation."

Delanon was jubilant and issued a statement in which he said he was deeply moved by the navy's action, "since it shows to what extent the imperial navy remains faithful to the traditions and honor of samurai."

Osumi's letter is regarded as most unusual, inasmuch as Japan rarely has expressed regret over newspaper stories, particularly on espionage.

Catholic Churches Attacked.

TOKIO, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Incited by rumors of an alleged case of international espionage for which Catholic fathers were blamed, several hundred inhabitants of the Island of Amamioshima destroyed several churches on the island, the newspaper Kokumin Shimbun said today.

The newspaper said a boycott had been started against Catholics, and added that foreign Catholic priests and missionaries were evacuating the island for safety.

Confirmation of the reported violence was not obtainable. There are fifteen Catholic churches on the large Japanese island and also a number of Canadian Catholics. Amamioshima lies 200 miles southeast of Kyushu.

Scoffs at Espionage Rumors.

New York, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The Rev. Father H. A. Campo, national secretary of the society for the propagation of the faith, expressed surprise today when informed of anti-Catholic demonstrations on the Japanese Island of Amamioshima.

"Rumors of espionage among Catholic priests are preposterous," he declared. "Despite the intense nationalistic and slightly anti-foreign spirit of the Japanese there has been no overt anti-Catholicism in Japan for more than fifty years. The church has made gradual and steady progress there, and many of the higher classes as well as several government officials have accepted the faith."

CROAT LEADER FREED BY NEW SERBIAN CABINET

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Premier Bogoljub Yevtich's new government, in a Christmas good will gesture, today granted a full pardon to the imprisoned Croat leader, Vladko Machek. The pardon was the government's first decree.

Machek, sentenced to a term of three years under the stringent defense of the realm act, had served a year and a half in the prison at Zagreb, Croatia, where he now is in the prison hospital. His condition is such as to permit his release tomorrow, it was said, and Croats were planning a jubilant demonstration.

Machek was convicted of political activity subversive to the security of the régime of the late King Alexander. His pardon was regarded as evidence of the new government's intention to ease the Jugo-Slav dictatorship, swinging back toward democracy.

GEO. F. HARDING HOME ATTACKED BY $8,000 BLAZE

Damage estimated at $8,000 was caused early today by fire in the home of George F. Harding, Republican leader and former county treasurer, at 4853 Lake Park avenue.

The flames started about a fireplace that apparently was defective, and were confined principally to one room. Precautions were taken by firemen who arrived early to guard Mr. Harding's important collection of armor and medieval art, which he keeps in a personal museum.

Mr. Harding's residence was damaged seriously by fire on Feb. 25, 1934. His loss at that time was estimated at $30,000.

King George's 'Shadow' for 14 Years to Retire

LONDON, Dec. 22.—[U. P.]—King George's "shadow," Police Superintendent William G. Cole, will retire Jan. 1, it was announced today. Cole, a special bodyguard, has accompanied the king of England wherever he has gone for the last 14 years. The king bestowed the Victorian Order on him.

CHINA STRUGGLES TO ANNIHILATE ARMIES OF REDS

NANKING, China, Dec. 22.—(AP)—National government officials insisted today that last week's tragic events in Anhwei province—the barbaric slaying of the Rev. and Mrs. John C. Stam, Chicago missionaries—were but the dying gasps of the communist movement in China. While deploring the Stam tragedy and kindred affairs, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek said the national government will not rest until the red armies which are resisting its authority are overcome.

Gen. Chiang painted a black picture of conditions in the recovered territories in Kiangsi province, where communist troops had been in occupation for six years.

"It is appalling," he said, "to record that some 6,000,000 people have been rendered homeless and driven into exile and suffering, while 1,000,000 innocent victims have been slaughtered in cold blood by these ruthless raiders. In addition, a large proportion of the population of Kiangsi province is suffering from continued malnutrition and has been reduced to almost unbelievable living conditions, as result of the communist régime. They are still dying in large numbers, despite all relief efforts made by the government."

JAP ROYAL HEIR YEAR OLD; NATION PUTS ON BIG FETE

TOKIO, Dec. 23.—[Sunday.]—[U. P.]—With prayers and parades, the Japanese empire today joyously celebrated the first birthday anniversary of the future Mikado, Crown Prince Akihito Tsugu.

The celebration was the first of a series of holidays which already have slowed public and private business and which will not be ended until Jan. 8.

While school children carrying flags and lanterns paraded in almost every town in honor of the infant "son of heaven," the celebration within the imperial household itself was marked with simplicity. Emperor Hirohito and his royal consort received the congratulations of the household staf on the health of their first male child. Princes of the realm brought gifts.

As a special concession the household was permitted to see Akihito. Then the child was returned to the seclusion in which he is being trained to assume some day the responsibilities of governing the Japanese people. It was announced that his first year had been marked with entirely satisfactory development of mind and body.

May O. K. British Guiana as Home for 30,000 Assyrians

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The league of nations commission examining the Rupunani district as a possible place of settlement for 30,000 Assyrians from Iraq was favorably impressed and probably will recommend the area, dispatches from the interior said today. Members of the commission are expected to return to Georgetown early in January.

RUSSIAN TROOPS ARE CAPTURED BY MANCHUKUO

Soviet Soldiers Reported to Have Crossed Border.

TOKIO, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Rengo [Japanese] News agency dispatches from Harbin tonight said soviet authorities were seeking to avert bloodshed after soviet infantry troops invaded Manchukuo from Siberia.

The troops, asserted to have crossed the border near Tungning, fifty miles south of Suifenho, were surrounded by Manchukuan troops and their communications cut "in an effort to check their further military activities," the Rengo report said.

Propose Amicable Settlement.

The dispatches said soviet authorities had asked Manchukuo to allow the Russian soldiers to retire with their arms, and proposed an amicable settlement of the affair. This the Manchukuan government was reported considering.

While the foreign office in Tokio had no official report of the affair and indicated it did not credit the report, it was admitted soviet farmers recently entered Manchukuo in the vicinity of Tungning.

The Rengo advices said the soldiers, after advancing into Manchukuoan territory, began setting up military equipment. What this equipment was the dispatches did not specify, nor was the number of troops indicated.

TENSION IS KEPT HIGH.

A number of incidents along the border between Asiatic Russia and the new Japanese sponsored kingdom in Manchuria have served to keep tension in the far east high during the last year.

As recently as Oct. 1 the Japanese military command in Manchukuo reported to the Tokio government it planned to protest to the soviet an exchange of rifle fire between soviet and Japanese troops several days before along the eastern border of Manchukuo.

That border has long been in dispute, and the month before Manchukuo, in an official complaint to the soviet consul general at Harbin, asserted Russians occupied an island at the confluence of the Amur and Ussuri rivers which Manchukuo claimed for her own.

A belligerent note was struck by the Japanese army in its manifesto of Oct. 2, which the war office admitted "expressed the views of the Japanese army." That manifesto warned Japan to prepare for war with Russia.

20 SHARE FIRST PRIZE OF $20,000 IN PORTO RICO DRAW

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Twenty persons are believed to have shared the winning first prize $20,000 ticket in the first drawing of Porto Rico's legalized lottery today. Lottery officials learned the ticket had been sold in twentieths.

Gov. Blanton Winship witnessed the drawing of the $6,000 second prize, seated beside Maria Luisa Arcelay, the island's only woman legislator, and one of the sponsors of the lottery. The drawing took seven hours. The government participates in a chance to win, to the extent of the unsold tickets.

RELATIVE CLAIMS BETTY GOW IS ON HER WAY TO U. S.

Says She Is Due in N. Y. Tuesday.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

GREENOCK, Scotland, Dec. 22.—A relative of Betty Gow, former nurse of the slain Lindbergh baby, said today she was enroute to the United States under close guard because "to be quite frank we fear something may happen to her."

This relative, who would not allow his name to be used, said she was on the Aquitania, due to arrive in New York Tuesday.

Whether the relative was actually "in" on Miss Gow's movements was a matter of speculation. Scottish newspapers insisted she was still in Scotland and did not intend going to the United States to testify in the case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

Claims She Is Guarded.

"I can say quite definitly Miss Gow is on the Aquitania and that she is being guarded on this voyage just as she was guarded during the train journey from Scotland to Southampton," said her relative, who recently returned from America.

"Authorities in New York are exercising similar measures when she arrives there. The last time Miss Gow was in New York—when she paid a return visit after the remains of the baby were found—she stated she would be afraid ever to set foot in the United States again.

"Things happened during her brief visit on that occasion that I cannot divulge and, believe me, when she set sail from Southampton she was greatly upset."

Report She Is in Disguise.

It was said Miss Gow was heavily disguised in order to evade newspapermen on the Aquitania, but her relative failed to explain why the purser of that ship declined to admit she was on board.

[New Jersey authorities also have insisted that she was arriving on the Aquitania.]

It had been reported Miss Gow would sail on the Duchess of York from Greenock today, but that vessel left for Halifax without her, so far as could be learned. Close scrutiny of each embarking passenger failed to disclose her presence among them.

J. W. DAVIS SEES MANY NEW DEAL ACTS AS ILLEGAL

Time Near for Tests in Court, He Says.

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Many of the activities of the Roosevelt administration are unconstitutional, according to John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for the presidency in 1924. Mr. Davis asserted tonight that the time was near for a test of the constitutionality of New Deal legislation. He spoke on "Fundamental Aspects of the New Deal from a Lawyer's Standpoint" under the auspices of the American Bar association.

Mr. Davis urged citizens to "defend their rights" as the only way in which American freedom can be maintained.

"The rights of men under all this new legislation must be defined in the interest of the government and the country no less than in the interest of the individual citizen," he said. "Not only must the hasty language of these acts be interpreted, but their validity and the legality of what is done under them must pass final muster in the courts."

"Yardsticks" Are Listed.

Declaring that the last word on the constitutionality of the New Deal belongs to the courts, Mr. Davis listed some "yardsticks" which he said the courts would be "obliged" to apply when they came to consider the new legislation.

"I say obliged to apply," he went on, "for be it remembered that the courts are not free agents. They are oathbound; their duty is to declare the law as it is, not as they or others might wish it to be."

The first yardstick, he said, was that the federal government was one of "limited and enumerated powers."

"It can deal with those things, and those things only," he continued, "that are committed to it by the constitution. Any action it takes must be appropriate and necessary to carry out the specific duties that have been assigned to it. Unless a federal statute can cling to some constitutional grant of power it is no statute at all, but rank usurpation. The tenth amendment in the bill of rights means just that."

Power Applies to Taxes.

Mr. Davis said there was an erroneous popular belief that the constitution gives congress "the power to provide for the general welfare," under which clause it could do anything it desired. The constitution gives congress the power to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States, he explained, "but this language is merely a limitation on the power to tax."

Another yardstick, he declared, was the division of authority among the executive, legislative, and judicial branches. "Congress and congress alone can make the laws," he said. "It cannot delegate this power to the executive. The executive and the executive alone is charged with the duty of seeing that these laws are carried out. It cannot surrender that power to congress. And neither can it prevent the judiciary from reviewing in a proper case the legality and justice of whatever has been done.

Refers to Commerce.

The distinction between interstate commerce and commerce conducted wholly within a state was his third yardstick. Pointing out that innumerable decisions of the Supreme court had held that commerce wholly within a state was beyond the power of congress to regulate, Mr. Davis said. "Nor is it expected that the courts will listen with patience to the theory put forward here and there that under modern conditions all commerce has become interstate."

Still another yardstick, he went on, was the clause in the bill of rights that no man's life, liberty, or property be taken from him without due process of law. Due process of law, he explained, meant that the citizen is to be protected against arbitrary action and must have an opportunity to be heard before he is condemned.

TWO MORE FIRMS ANNOUNCE EXTRA PAY FOR STAFS

Canonsburg, Pa., Dec. 22.—(AP)—A $40,000 Christmas bonus is going to the 1,900 employés of the Standard Tinplate company of Canonsburg, their first since the depression started. Company officials said the firm had enjoyed a good year.

Button Employés Get Bonus.

Muscatine, Ia., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Five hundred employés of the Iowa Pearl Button company and the Muscatine Pearl works divided more than $4,000 today as extra compensation.

"We are making this extra compensation a permanent Christmas affair for all our employés," O. A. Hammer, president, stated. "We look forward to increased business in the new year."

THREAT TO BOLT G. O. P. MADE BY 'REBEL' IN HOUSE

'Insurgents' Add Their Demands to Borah's.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—A frank threat by some party members to bolt the party unless house Republicans back a "progressive" candidate for the speakership was added today to Senator Borah's demands for a G. O. P. reorganization.

Simultaneously, a call was issued for the Republicans to meet Jan. 2 to select their speakership nominee. Since there are only 102 Republicans in the house, he will be snowed under by the 322 Democrats. But he will remain Republican floor leader and titular party leader.

The "bolt" threat was made by Representative-elect Burdick [Rep., N. D.].

Boost Lemke's Stock.

The "insurgent" Republicans, he said, intend to back Representative William Lemke [Rep., N. D.] for the highest Republican post in the house.

"Would you carry that so far as to bolt the party and vote for another speakership nominee?" he was asked.

"Certainly," Burdick answered, "but if the Democrats name Byrns [of Tennessee] we won't go for him. He won't do."

Burdick said that so far there had been no general meeting of insurgents.

"But a few of the fellows have been meeting here and there," he said, "and they're going to back Lemke."

Snell Now Leader.

The minority leadership post now is held by Representative Bertrand H. Snell of New York. Observers on Capitol Hill generally agreed that despite the bolt threat he had enough votes pledged to assure his renomination.

Recently, in fact, his followers claimed that 90 per cent of the house Republicans had pledged their support to him. And some who were dissatisfied had admitted an inability to find a candidate. Lemke would not say whether he would be a candidate.

Senator Borah, the Idaho Independent Republican, has centered his criticism upon the national party organization and Chairman Henry P. Fletcher. He, too, has threatened a revolt.

Although Borah has not mentioned Snell, the present house Republican leader has held a high place in party councils.

Open New West Side-Loop Surface Line Tomorrow

Easier access to the new postoffice building and the loop from the west side over the surface lines will be available tomorrow when the Roosevelt road-Downtown line is rerouted over Harrison street instead of Polk street. The new line will turn north in Canal street at Roosevelt road to Harrison street, thence east to Wells street, north to Adams, east to Dearborn, south to Van Buren, west to Wells, south to Harrison, and then back over the original route.

Foregoes Comfort

Charlotte King, 18 years old, is a student at Maryville college in Maryville, Tenn. Her parents, who live at 3216 Harlem avenue, Riverside, sent her money for train fare to come home for the Christmas holidays. But, while at church in Maryville last Sunday, Charlotte heard an appeal to those who are going home to have sympathy for those who have no homes.

Charlotte counted her money over and decided that it would cover the price of two fares to Chicago. Then she went to the Maryville Industrial Home, near the college, where there are 27 orphan children.

"One of these children is going to have a real Christmas," was Charlotte's idea, and she picked out little Louise Capps, 11 years old. She wired her mother that she was bringing home some one for Christmas.

"Welcome," Mrs. Alexander King, the mother, wired back.

So Charlotte came home yesterday with little Louise. And, for the homeless little girl there'll be an extra plate at the dinner table, and an extra stocking full of Christmas presents.

DIES AS FRIENDS AWAIT HIM AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

At the home of Joseph Wagner, 2646 North Harding avenue, a birthday cake was baked last night, candles were about to be lighted, and presents had been purchased.

Family and friends were waiting for Wagner to come home from his work as an engineer at the American Tannery company, 1284 West North avenue, and join in the party celebrating his 67th birthday.

The machinery at the factory was due to stop at 3:30 p. m. The whistle blew, and workers started leaving, but the machinery didn't stop. Investigation disclosed that Wagner had apparently fallen from a platform while reaching to turn off the master switch, and struck his head.

He was pronounced dead from a basal skull fracture. His son Arthur, 18 years old, who also works at the plant, carried the news back to the birthday party guests.

Turks with Hats Fight Turks with Fezzes; 5 Hurt

ANTIOCH, Syria, Dec. 22.—[U.P.]—A "hat riot" broke out in the Yenidjumi mosque today in which five young Turks were seriously injured. The outbreak occurred after a preacher had accused modern Turks who wear hats instead of fezzes of being renegades from the Moslem faith and incited the congregation against them. The mosque then became a battlefield between die-hard Moslems and Modernists.

DICKINSON RAPS NEW DEAL RULE; HOLDS NRA DEAD

Unemployment Increasing, Figures Show.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa tonight took an inventory of the second Christmas stocking the New Deal administration has filled for the American people. The senator, who was the keynoter of the 1932 Republican convention Chicago, turned a cool, clinical eye on the gifts of brain trusters.

He began by citing a report of the American Federation of Labor showing unemployment in October, 1934 was in excess of that for the corresponding month in 1933.

"So with the relief rolls increasing, with unemployment in excess of a year ago, and with 14 billion dollars of public money obligated to the New Deal, may we not inquire," he asked, "has the intensity of the depression diminished or are we just getting used to it?"

Cites Plight of Durable Goods.

The NRA claims to have increased purchasing power by higher wages and shorter hours, he said. This may be true of food, clothing, and other consumers goods, but has not contributed to recovery in durable goods, he declared.

"Our expectations under the NRA have not been fulfilled," he stated. "This law was without merit at its inception, proceeded on the basis of ballyhoo and ended in a complete collapse. No reorganization can revive it in the confidence of the public. All we have left is a surplus of Blue Eagles and seven million dollars worth of deserving patrons on the pay roll."

Senator Dickinson said the Brain Trusters have widely heralded the AAA crop control programs as giving increased income to farmers. He pointed that this increase, by New Deal estimates, is a little less than one billion dollars.

"According to the treasury, there has been obligated under the AAA approximately 1 billion 332 million dollars," he continued. "In other words we have charged against the taxpayers 332 million more than we have secured in income. There can be nothing lasting about a recovery program of this kind."

He also pointed to the mounting deficit. He declared a continued deficit will retard recovery.

Would Reduce Spending.

"As a Republican my philosophy for recovery would be to increase production, lower interest rates and curtail government expenditures so that taxation could be reduced," he said. "This is not possible under the existing program."

He urged that congress again assume legislative authority and that government by legislative order cease. He pleaded for an end to government interference with private business. He asked establishment of a definite monetary policy.

"The authority to place through any government agency, large sums of money in definite competition with private enterprise to suit the whims of any individual, should be withdrawn," he concluded. "A program to balance the budget must be formulated. Let us again invoke a sane system of taxation that will protect all interests and punish none."

16 RESCUED NORSE SAILORS HAIL END OF 4 YEAR CURSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
HAMBURG, Germany, Dec. 22.—Sixteen Norwegians here tonight celebrated their rescue from a sinking freighter by the German liner New York and the partial breaking of the curse which has threatened all ships from their home port, Haugesund, for almost four years.

Year after year Haugesund has mourned a full ship and its crew lost in a Christmas eve storm, and sailors' families feared they were all doomed. Now, after the rescue of the Sisto's crew, hope has awakened that the spell is broken.

Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler journeyed from Cuxhaven this morning to board the New York and congratulate Capt. Fritz Kruse and his German rescuers, "who showed to the whole world that the German always is ready to extend peaceful help."

Disabled Ship Found; Crew Safe.

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The Royal Canadian mounted police cutter Fleur de Lis wirelessed today that she had sighted the disabled Lunenburg schooner Shirley B. Corkum, last heard of Thursday evening. The crew of twenty-five was reported safe.

SUICIDE VERDICT RETURNED.

At an inquest yesterday into the death of Mrs. Mary Irwin, 42 years old, 6201 Kirkwood avenue, who was shot and killed herself Friday, the coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide while despondent over ill health.

Divorce Granted Because Wife Insists on Working

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—If a Los Angeles wife insists on working after marriage despite the husband's protest, it is grounds for divorce. Donald S. Heath told Superior Judge Leon Yankwich that his wife Anna, persisted on working as a waitress although he made enough to support her and was willing to provide for her. Judge Yankwich gave Heath a decree.

Car Dives in Elevator Shaft; Driver Is Seriously Injured

An unusual accident, in which an automobile plunged down an elevator shaft carrying its driver with it, occurred yesterday in the Monroe-at-La Salle street garage, 175 West Monroe street. Frank Martin, 30 years old, 500 North Clark street, an employé of the garage, was the victim. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital with severe injuries.

ASKS 44 STATES TO PASS ACTS ON WORK INSURANCE

Miss Perkins Makes Plea for Legislation.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Indicating that the government's job in the social security program would be chiefly to establish uniform minimum rates of contributions to unemployment insurance and old age pension funds which will prevent inequalities and allow the states to go forward to enact their individual laws, Secretary Perkins declared tonight that the chief responsibility in the program was up to the states.

She addressed a plea to 44 state legislatures that are soon to convene, saying "there must be constructive and definite action in the coming sessions" if the program is to succeed as now contemplated.

"The states will have the fullest support and coöperation of the administration," she said.

Would Press for Laws.

"It is the right and duty of all of you to press for the enactment of humane legislation in your various states which will afford the average American citizen and his family a greater degree of security than he has ever had before."

Miss Perkins held that "delay on the part of the states now will retard social legislation for months to come."

The purpose of the new social security program was to provide assistance for people to tide them over in times of trouble, "not as charity, but as a right. We can create a reserve from contributions from which we can all draw when any catastrophe cuts off earning power," she said.

She warned, however, against fantastic schemes now being advocated for large free federal pensions to all old people, regardless of their circumstances.

"Factual studies of these visionary and fantastic schemes at once disclose their complete inpracticability," she said. "The sincere friends of old people should at this time direct all their energies to the strengthening and improving of the state old age pension laws. Federal coöperation will necessarily depend upon enactment of suitable legislation by the states themselves."

Calls Election Mandate.

Miss Perkins held that enactment of social security was one of the mandates of the recent election. The social program was a major election issue, she said, adding:

"Nearly every advocate of social insurance legislation was swept into office."

"There should be no hesitancy on the part of the states now," she went on. "Federal legislation along these lines will, in accordance with the requirements of our constitution, allow the states the fullest measure of freedom to meet their problems as they think best."

Neither unemployment insurance nor old age pensions should be advocated as a "cure-all" for our economic ills, Miss Perkins said.

BEHAVIOR WINS LONDON EXTRA DRINKING HOUR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Because they behaved on the day the duke of Kent, fourth son of King George and Queen Mary, married Princess Marina of Greece, Londoners are going to have the extraordinary privilege of drinking one hour later than usual on Christmas and New Year's eves.

They will be permitted to drink up to 11:30 p. m. or midnight in the 4,000 or 5,000 pubs and cafés which have applied to Lord Trenchard, police commissioner, for the extension of license. Usually the bars close at 10:30 or 11 p. m.

This is the first time since the licensing act came into force during the world war that an hour's extension has been granted. The fact that there was practically no drunkenness during the royal wedding week is given as the reason for the concession.

Machine Factory Ordered to Give Up Blue Eagle

Frederic L. Roberts, acting state NRA compliance director, announced yesterday that C. F. Eckhart & Co., 1250 Fullerton avenue, manufacturers of coin operated machines, had been notified on orders from Washington to surrender its Blue Eagle. The company was accused of failing to file reports with the code authority as required by the code. Officials of the company could not be reached yesterday for comment.

Bound, Robbed of $1,000 Dresses, Woman Reports

Mrs. Janet Regina, owner of a dress shop at 5343 West North avenue, reported to the police that four men entered the store late last night and after binding her hands and thrusting her into a rear room, carried out 300 dresses valued at $1,000. She added that the robbers took two diamond rings, a pistol, a typewriter, and $102.

NEW COMPLIANCE CHIEF TO ARRIVE IN CITY THURSDAY

C. F. Rumely to Guide Revised Code Plan.

Workmen were busy yesterday preparing an office for Cornelius F. Rumely, whose arrival here next Thursday as regional compliance director for NRA will mark the beginning of the new decentralized system of code enforcement. Complaints against code violators which formerly would have been sent to Washington are being held here so they can be handled locally by a regional council yet to be appointed.

Mr. Rumely, whose district includes Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Missouri, will have an office on the sixth floor of the Wrigley building, 400 North Michigan avenue. The entire second floor of this building is now occupied by the state compliance staf.

Member of Farm Machine Family.

Frederic Roberts, acting state compliance director, said that Mr. Rumely, a Detroit industrial engineer, is a member of the family which established the Advance-Rumely Machine company of Laporte, Ind., manufacturers of farm machines. The concern was taken over by a larger company several years ago. For the last six months Mr. Rumely has been a member of the national compliance council at Washington.

The decentralization of compliance work, as described by Mr. Roberts, will save business men accused of code violations the expense of traveling to Washington in nearly all cases. Features of the plan are:

1. State and local compliance offices will continue to function as at present, except that cases which are not adjusted will be reported to the regional compliance director for action instead of to Washington.

"Inventory" to Be Kept.

2. If the regional director fails to settle a case, he will turn it over to the regional council, which will have authority to withdraw the Blue Eagle or recommend prosecution in the courts. Comprising the council will be a representative of industry, a representative of labor and a chairman, probably an attorney from the NRA staf.

3. State and regional offices will be required to keep a constant "inventory" on the labor compliance situations throughout their territory.

The system will result in increased efficiency, Mr. Roberts said, because regional offices will be better informed than Washington on conditions affecting cases they must handle. Also, since there will be only 10 instead of 54 centers reporting to Washington, the national compliance office will be able to act faster and more effectively.

First hearings of the regional council are scheduled for Jan. 3.

Three Exhibits Opened

Three Christmas flower shows of the Chicago park district opened yesterday in conservatories in Garfield, Lincoln, and Washington parks. They will continue through Jan. 6.

All the shows, which are under the direction of August Koch, chief horticulturist for the Chicago park district, feature the poinsettia. Nearly 100 varieties of flowering plants were included.

The largest of the shows is at Garfield park, which has offered the holiday exhibition for twenty-two years. Included in the Garfield park exhibit is a formal English garden.

All the exhibits are free to the public, Mr. Koch said. At Garfield park the hours are 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. The Lincoln and Washington park shows are open daily from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

STORE MANAGER OBEYS NERVOUS ROBBER; IS SHOT

John Godfrey, 45 years old, manager of the Mrs. Stevens Candy company, 721 West Grand avenue, was shot in the left shoulder yesterday afternoon by a nervous robber. Godfrey and five other employès were in the office when two raiders entered, carrying a revolver and a submachine gun. They left two associates on guard outside. As Godfrey stopped to lift the latch of the gate to the cashier's cage, in response to a command from the gunmen, one of them shot him. Alarmed, the two fled without taking $200 in the office till. At the county hospital, Godfrey found his wound was not serious.

Three armed bandits, brandishing their pistols in true Wild West fashion, spread panic among some 250 shoppers in the Woolworth store at 3147 Irving Park boulevard last night, and escaped with $800.

While a fourth member of the gang waited outside in a car, the three stormed in, pushing their way football-fashion through the crowd, mostly women. Screams resounded, although the bandits molested none of the customers.

The bandits made their way directly back to the cashier's desk, where they forced Mrs. Grace Rose, 3056 Irving Park boulevard, to surrender the cash.

Woman Charges Rape Attempt; Suspect Held

Walter Maziaka, 26 years old, 1012 West Erie street, was arrested last night at Ada street and Carroll avenues after Miss Catherine McRae, 1925 West Adams street, said he had beaten her. Miss McRae said that Maziaka snatched her purse and then struck and attempted to rape her. Her screams brought several men to the scene, and they held Maziaka for the police.

QUESTION FAMILY IN MYSTERIOUS MURDER AT HOME

Seek Motive for Killing of Grill Owner.

The Chicago Lawn police strove last night to solve the mysterious slaying of George Ericksen, 46 years old, owner of the Airport grill, 6001 South Cicero avenue, who was found shot to death yesterday morning in the areaway next to his home at 6221 South Keating avenue.

The police questioned witnesses, but were unable to find the motive for the slaying. Ericksen was shot four times. Jewelry and $7 in currency remained undisturbed on his person when his body was found.

Lieut. Otto Erlanson of the homicide squad of the detective bureau believed Erickson was shot with a .32 caliber automatic pistol which he kept in the tavern.

Police Question Widow.

His widow, Mrs. Anna Ericksen, mother of six children, who managed the tavern during the day, was questioned. The police had been told that Ericksen frequently quarreled with her and that he appeared to be jealous of the aviators from the municipal airport who patronized the tavern.

The widow said she knew of no motive for the slaying and asserted that her husband had no trouble with beer "peddlers" of labor unions.

"My husband was extremely jealous of all men who came into the tavern while I was there," she said. "On several occasions he ordered out men whom he thought were trying to become too friendly."

Edward Wilkins, 34 years old, 6113 South Kilpatrick avenue, known to the Erickson children as "Uncle Ed," also was questioned when Capt. John Prendergast learned that the victim had quarreled. It was said that at the time of the quarrel Wilkins threatened "to get" Ericksen.

Details of Discovery of Body.

Ericksen's body was found by Herman Kreuger, a milkman employed by the Clearing Dairy company, who thought the tavern owner might be still alive and carried him into his home.

Mrs. Ericksen and the six children told the police that they did not hear any shooting, but Mrs. Vincent Latora, 6218 South Kilpatrick avenue, related to detectives that at 1:30 a. m. she heard shouts and several shots in the areaway.

Three empty cartridges found in the snow at the scene of the shooting were found to be identical with cartridges that Ericksen kept in his home for his pistol.

The police were unable to find his revolver either in the home or the tavern.

Hold Four in Inquiry.

Because of the generally unsatisfactory nature of the evidence in the case, the police decided to hold Mrs. Ericksen, her son, George Jr., 17 years old; Wilkins, and John Bowman, 41 years old, 6113 South Kilpatrick avenue, overnight for further investigation.

Bowman, like Watkins, was a frequenter of the grill. All but the widow declared they knew nothing about the pistol of the slain man. She declared that her husband had taken it to a gunsmith to be repaired.

COAL TRAIN IS WRECKED BY BOMB AT SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 23.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—A bomb exploded under a Chicago and Illinois Central coal train early today, hurling several cars from the track. No one was injured.

Authorities, searching for the bomber, attributed the attack to the miners' war in southern Illinois. A similar assault was made on a coal train several weeks ago.

Carrying coal from the Taylorville district, principally from mines of the Peabody Coal company operating under contract with the United Mine Workers of America, the train had nearly reached the city limits when the explosion occurred.

The engine and five cars passed over the spot safely, but eight cars rolled down a 50 foot embankment.

HUSBAND SLAYS 'OTHER MAN,' HIS WIFE AND SELF

Fires Without Warning in Farm Tragedy.

Delta, O., Dec. 22.—[U.P.]—A love triangle ended in three deaths here today when Lester Shadd, 42, farmer, killed his wife, her male companion, and then ended his own life.

The shootings occurred at the Shadd farmhouse, near Delta, when Mrs. Shadd, accompanied by Roy Bielhartz, 49, drove up to the house in an automobile.

Shoots Without Warning.

Police said that Beilhartz entered the house and was met by the farmer, who shot without warning, killing Beilhartz immediately.

Mrs. Shadd, hearing the shots, leaped from the automobile and fled. Her husband gave chase and shot her through the back of the head.

Shadd stood over the body of his wife for a moment, and then turned the gun on himself.

Slays Ex-Wife, Friend, Self.

Tampa, Fla., Dec. 22.—[U.P.]—A shooting at the Union Bus terminal here today claimed the lives of a divorcée, her friend, and that of the woman's former husband.

Harry Shakelford, 35, bus driver, sent a bullet into his own brain after slaying his former mate, Mrs. Mary Shakelford, and P. J. Cunningham, 40, also a bus driver.

The three had driven to the bus station together. Shakelford became enraged and started shooting after a brief quarrel.

Jealousy of his former wife was said to be the motive, although Shakelford had married a Jacksonville woman after his divorce several months ago.

Liner Empress of Britain Sets Record in Port Speed

New York, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The giant Canadian liner Empress of Britain established a record today for a ship of her size, steaming into port before daybreak and sailing away three hours and 54 minutes later on a Christmas cruise. In this time, 240 passengers from Europe got off with all of their baggage, 6,075 bags of holiday mail and $1,000,000 in gold were discharged; 250 new passengers with their baggage got on and provisions and fuel oil were taken aboard. The ship was a day late from Europe because of gales.

U. S. SENDS A SPECIAL PROSECUTOR TO HELP TRY PIQUETT JAN. 8

Louis Piquett, Chicago attorney who is charged with harboring John Dillinger and Homer Van Meter, slain outlaws, will go on trial Jan. 8, Federal Judge William H. Holly informed United States District Attorney Dwight Green yesterday.

At the same time Mr. Green announced that a special government prosecutor had been sent from Washington to assist in the prosecution of Piquett. He is J. Albert Woll, a Chicagoan, who served here as an assistant state's attorney under former State's Attorney Swanson. He is 30 years old, married, and his Chicago home is at 20 East Delaware place.

Piquett, who insists the issue in the case involves delimiting the relations of a lawyer to a client in criminal cases, has entered a not guilty plea. Three co-defendants, who have entered pleas of guilty, are Dr. Harold B. Cassidy, Dr. William Loeser, and Arthur O'Leary, the latter an investigator for Piquett. The attorney is free in $20,000 bail.

POLICE CAPTAIN, TWO SLAIN IN RAID ON MEXICAN TOWN

Nogales, Ariz., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Three persons were killed in a raid early Friday by a band of 10 to 15 men upon the little city of Navojoa, Sonora, said reports reaching the border tonight. The dead included Francisco Coronado, night captain of police. Names of the others were not learned.

The raid was attributed by Navojoa authorities to a group known as "Cristeros," or "followers of the cross," one of the elements in Mexico's current religious disturbances. Reports tonight said four of the raiders had been apprehended and placed in the Navojoa jail.

The band of men swept into the sleeping city—birthplace of Mexico's martyred president, Gen. Alvaro Obregon—with a burst of rifle and pistol fire and for nearly 30 minutes ruled the place with a grip of terror.

Truck Crashes Mississippi River Ice; 2 Are Drowned

Hastings, Minn., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Two Hastings men drowned today when their truck, in which they had started across the Mississippi river to get a load of wood from a nearby island, broke through the ice. The dead were Forest J. Gardner, 36, and Arthur Neiderkorn, 26.

Wealthy Woman Recluse Slain In $200,000 Home

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Miss Victoria Muspratt, 79 year old and well to do recluse, who once refused $200,000 for the three story frame house in which she lived on Shore road, in the residential Bay ridge district of Brooklyn, was found murdered this afternoon in a dingy dust covered back parlor of her home.

Her head had been battered with such force that her skull was broken, but detectives who examined the house found no weapon. Officials said she had been dead for ten hours when the body was discovered by a nephew, John Parker, 37, who went, as was his habit, to perform odd jobs for her.

Guard's Name Not Revealed.

The police started a search for a tall, swarthy man who had been employed as a guard around the property by Miss Muspratt ever since she fell and suffered a leg injury in March, 1929, under circumstances that never were explained. This man, whose name was not known to the police and who never mingled with neighbors, has not been seen for two or three days.

Forced to use crutches as the result of the mishap in 1929, Miss Muspratt rarely went outdoors and when she did she presented a strange appearance with her gray hair, alert eyes, and rusty clothes. Few could believe that she had taught pupils at St. Michael's Parochial school, Brooklyn, who later had become priests and nuns and prominent figures in the civic and political circles of the city.

Strange as she appeared, the police found the interior of her dilapidated 14 room house still stranger. Ceilings, floors, walls and the few pieces of antique and broken furniture which she owned were covered with dust, which had accumulated for years. Rubbish and odds and ends were piled high in every room and also in the basement where her younger sister, Miss Violet Muspratt, was found lying dead as the result of a heart attack six years ago.

Sleeps in Deep Chair.

The police found that there was not a bed in the house and no gas, electricity, or a heating system. The crippled old lady slept each night in a deep arm chair in the parlor where her body was found. Her frugal meals she cooked over an open fireplace in the parlor, the only fireplace in the house. When darkness fell, she went from room to room with the aid of a small kerosene lantern.

In one corner of the parlor stood an antique secretary, its drawers stuffed with papers. The police began a search of these papers in the hope of finding out whether anything had been stolen.

They also planned to search through the maze of things in all the other rooms and in the basement, a task which will require two or three days. Whether the house had been ransacked or whether hidden wealth may have been stolen the police were unable to say. As they poked through the house with their electric torches they found no footprints but their own on the dust covered floors.

ARMY FAR BELOW 'SAFE' MINIMUM, SAYS MacARTHUR

Analyzes Land Defense in Report to Secretary.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staf of the United States army, today analyzed the land defense of the country in his annual report to the secretary of war. He concluded the army is far below in strength and equipment a minimum consistent with any regard for continued security.

GEN. MacARTHUR.

Our equipment is vitally inadequate for even the present limited army strength, Gen. MacArthur found. And what is more serious, in his opinion, the equipment is manifestly obsolete. The army cannot now fulfill some of its peacetime duties, and the carrying on of war would require frantic improvisations resulting in waste and ineffective sacrifice of manhood and material resources.

Urges All-Time Preparedness.

"Crises that result finally in the employment of defense forces give little warning of their approach, and it is futile to hope there might be accomplished a reasonable preparation after growing tension once indicates immediate danger," he said. "Armies and navies, in being and known to be efficient, give weight to the peaceful words of statesmen, but feverish effort to create them once a crisis is imminent simply provokes immediate attack.

"Moreover, individual proficiency in the profession of arms and the development of efficient fight organizations both require time, no matter what the intensity of effort or the lavishness of expenditure. Reasonable preparation constantly carried forward as a feature of national policy is not only necessary to assure avoidance of the bitterest consequences of war but is a wise investment in the maintenance of peace."

Gen. MacArthur bluntly gives the weaknesses of the army, hitherto secret to the people, "because only the people can correct them." He said unfortunately the weaknesses are known to "fully qualified military observers abroad and to all governments who give more credence to the trained soldier than we do."

Compares Equipment.

The chief of staff compares the army's equipment with types that have been developed since the world war. For this first demonstration he selected tanks.

The army now has on hand some hundreds of world war tanks, totally unsuited to the conditions of modern war. Of modern tanks, capable of a speed of twenty miles an hour across country, the army has but twelve and only one of these has met most rigid tests.

Of field artillery, he reports the army as having some thousands of the French .75 class. Compared to models produced since the war these are completely out of date. The maximum traverse of the army's guns is 6 degrees while new models achieve 90 degrees. The army models also lack the newer carriage developments which would permit rapid movement of such pieces without danger to their mechanism.

Rifle Out of Date.

The present army rifle is also out of date. The army still clings to the 1903 magazine rifle with some improvements. Of the newly developed semi-automatic rifle, there are but eighty in the entire army.

In anti aircraft material the army is behind other nations. The same is true, according to the report, of transportation improvements vital to the mobilization of armies in the field.

In aircraft the situation has happily been somewhat different, the report states. Some of our latest types of planes are superior to those of other nations, but there is need of further equipment to keep the air force modernized and up to its full strength under the national defense act.

Some Improvements Made.

"In numerous other classes of equipment significant improvements have been realized," Gen. MacArthur states. "Obviously any army supplied with all of these modern weapons and mechanisms would be immeasureably stronger in mobility and fire power than any opponent equipped with the types our army is forced to use.

"Assuming approximate equality otherwise, the badly equipped force would be hopelessly outclassed from the moment it came into contact with its enemy. It could not escape defeat and destruction. It is useless to expect satisfactory modernization of the army until this situation has been substantially corrected; and in our own case efficiency is of paramount importance because of the smallness of our total forces."

Gen. MacArthur gives the present strength of the army at 12,000 officers and 118,750 enlisted men. The national defense act passed after the war fixed the minimum at 18,000 officers and 280,000 enlisted men.

The war strength of an infantry division is about 20,000 men, the report states. The lowest strength at which it can be trained and kept effective for active action is 12,000 men. Yet, at present, according to the report, the United States has three divisions and six brigades of but 6,000 and 2,000 men respectively, far below the extreme low of efficiency.

Army Too Small.

The present army is not of a sufficient strength to man garrisons in foreign possessions and at home. It is also too small to train adequately for wartime action, the general holds.

Gen. MacArthur also finds that National Guard units lack sufficient strength, intensive training and modern equipment. He adds the reserve forces should also be improved.

In conclusion Gen. MacArthur said his suggestions have been formulated by the general staf with a full regard for current government economy.

Gets Reno Divorce

YVONNE HAASE LACOCK.
[Associated Press Photo.]

Yvonne Haase Lacock, daughter of W. W. Haase, president of the American Vault Works, Inc., 1015 Troost avenue, Forest Park, was granted a divorce yesterday in Reno, Nev., from Raymond William Lacock on grounds of cruelty. Miss Haase, a licensed flyer, married Lacock Dec. 19, 1933, while she was a freshman at the University of Colorado. They have one child.

RAIDERS LINK 8 WITH $100,000 HIJACKING GANG

Arrests Follow Seizure of Stolen Cargoes.

Detectives under Lieut. James Kerr of the cartage detail of the detective bureau and Lieut. Fred Mulhausen of the county highway police yesterday raided the butcher shop of Charles Kohlmann at 1014 West 63d street and, finding there five tubs of lard said to have been part of a hijacking gang's loot, arrested Kohlmann.

Seven other men had been arrested previously. Lieut. Kerr said the gang was responsible for thefts in the last six months of butter, eggs, and lard worth $100,000.

The police officials, after arresting Kohlmann, departed for Indiana where, it was said, they were to raid a farm headquarters of the gang.

Arrests Follow Butter Seizure.

The arrests followed the seizure of 300 tubs of butter which had been the cargo of a truck en route from Indianapolis to Chicago. The truck, broke down near Chicago Heights Tuesday night and a telephone call was made to the Chicago Heights Trucking company, asking that the butter be taken from the disabled truck and placed in a storage house.

The next day Joseph Barone, and his son, Dominick, were arrested when they attempted to remove part of the butter from the warehouse. However, before Lieut. Mulhausen learned of the butter cargo's being stored there 228 of the tubs had been taken away, and the Barones were seeking to take away the remaining 72 tubs.

In the investigation that followed Thomas Billoti, Walter Follner, Orazio Epstein, Anton Portell, and John Smith, a colored man, were taken to the detective bureau for questioning. Smith was found in the boiler room of a vacant building owned by the Illinois Brick company, near 138th street and Ashland avenue, and the police found 228 of the tubs of butter there.

Find 307 Tubs in Garage.

Yesterday morning they visited the home of Howard Carlson, 15137 South Western-av., and it was reported they found stored in the garage behind the home 69 tubs of lard, which were believed to be part of a shipment of 307 tubs hijacked on Dec. 4 from a Swifth & Co. truck which was being driven away from a loading platform of the packing house plant. Lieut. Kerr said Carlson, who previously had been questioned and released, evidently had been duped by persons to whom he rented his garage, and that the lard was stored there without his knowledge.

Lieut. Kerr said his investigation was not completed and he had not had time to determine definitly who were involved in the case, but that he expected to have a series of hijackings cleared up within a few days.

Policeman Quits Hospital as Yawning Seizure Ends

George Van Cleaf, the yawning policeman, returned home yesterday. Physicians at the County hospital, where Van Cleaf was taken Thursday afternoon when he was stricken with yawning sickness, stopped the constant yawning Friday by beating sensitive portions of the soles of his feet. Yesterday afternoon when the attacks had not returned he was pronounced cured and returned to his home at 8740 Buffalo avenue.

GERMANY FREES JEW, VICTIM OF U. S. GIRL'S GOSSIP

BERLIN, Dec. 22.—Dr. Fritz Meyer, Jewish physician, was released from prison today when authorities declared they were convinced he was the victim of malicious gossip built upon a vague statement made by Miss Charlotte Emery of Roanoke, Va. The physician surrendered to the police after Der Angoriff, official Nazi organ, published charges that he had told the girl it is "bad taste to study in Germany."

"I made a statement as one does upon coming from a tea party without thinking there would be any possible implications," Miss Emery explained.

Dr. Meyer joined his family upon his release. He intends to leave Berlin for several weeks. He expressed the hope Nazi attacks against him will abate during his absence.

PALESTINE JEWS BATTLE INVASION BY ARABS; 2 SHOT

JERUSALEM, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Two Jewish colonists, Yehuda Sheftel and Moshe Dayan, were wounded today in a clash with Arabs which broke out near Nahalal when Arabs, it was charged, invaded land belonging to the Jewish national fund.

Immigration of 10,000 Jews from east European countries into Syria has been approved officially by the French government, it was announced today. The approval follows several months of deliberations between the league for defending Jewish rights in east European countries and the French government.

LAY SUICIDE TO MIND.

A coroner's jury decided yesterday that George Krisko, 42 years old, an unemployed stone cutter found hanged in the garage at his home, 501 Freeland avenue, Calumet City, committeed suicide as a result of his mental condition.

CASES IN CIRCUIT COURT SET NEW RECORD IN 1934

A record number of cases have been filed and disposed of in the Circuit court during the past year, according to figures up to Nov. 30, released yesterday by Clerk John E. Conroy.

During that period, 35,443 new suits were filed compared to 33,212 during the preceding year and 33,448 disposed of, as compared to 36,310 for 1933. Although, according to Mr. Conroy, the courts speeded up to meet the increase, there were 4,024 more cases pending on Nov. 30 than a year ago, the figures being 30,233 to 26,209.

Tax hearings were chiefly responsible for the increase, there being 4,750 personal property cases filed and 3,992 Skarda act cases. Divorces continued at about the same rate, with 3,909 filed.

CORRIGAN URGES MORE FIREMEN; SAVES $55,000

Spend $1,537,084 Less than in 1931.

The annual report of the Chicago fire department was completed yesterday and will be submitted shortly to Mayor Kelly. Chief Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan in the report told of an acute shortage of firemen and announced that the department will have an unexpended balance of $55,000 from the appropriations totaling $6,316,730 in the 1934 budget.

The fire marshal recalled that in 1931 the appropriations for the department amounted to $8,246,040, of which $7,798,084 was expended, compared with the actual expenditures of $6,261,000 this year. This is a saving of $1,537,084 under the expenditures of that year.

During this year the uniformed members of the department have received a 52 pay day reduction. The expenditures also were driven down by neither filling vacancies nor making promotions. Corrigan pointed out that the 1934 budget allowance for officers and the uniformed rank was 2,605 and at present there are 2,414 employed.

Dire Need for Men.

"There are vacancies in every rank of the department, so numerous that the situation is becoming acute," asserted Corrigan. "I sincerely trust that the city's financial situation for the coming year will be somewhat enhanced and that we will be permitted to bring the department's man power up to the figure we consider necessary for increased efficient operation of the service."

The actual paid fire loss for the current year will not be computed until the middle of February of next year, the fire marshal said in his report, but "experience prompts the prediction that the loss this year will be the third lowest in the past sixteen years, despite the four and a half million dollar loss May 19 at the stock yards fire."

Yards Fire Blocks Record.

"Were it not for the stock yards conflagration," declared Corrigan, "the fire loss in 1934 would have been lower than in any year in the last twenty-five."

In connection with the stock yards fire, he commented that 100 motor pumping engines operated at full capacity for an average of 17 hours without a breakdown and that 133 pieces of equipment moved through the streets of Chicago responding to and returning from a fire without an accident.

The report stated that in 1934 up to Nov. 30 there were 23,603 alarms and 20,071 fires as contrasted with the 1933 figures of 21,679 alarms and 18,045 fires.

The report was prepared in exhaustive detail under the fire marshal's direction by Anthony Mullaney, deputy fire marshal, and Edward A. Maloney, deputy fire commissioner.

WARN AUTOISTS TO AVOID DRIVING WHILE DRINKING

The Chicago Safety Council issued to motorists a warning yesterday against the mixing of holiday spirits with gasoline. "Persons who operate motor vehicles while under the partial or total influence of liquor," the statement declared, "constitute the worst type of menace to public safety. A large per centage of fatal automobile accidents are traced to this cause. Keep away from the wheel while drinking."

Seek Explanation of Bullet in Temple of Ex-Convict

Jack Donahue, 32 years old, ex-convict, was left unconscious early yesterday in the hallway of Dr. Roy H. Cox, 2635 Peterson avenue. He had a bullet wound through his left temple and last night was in a serious condition at the Bridewell hospital. The police were unable to identify him in any robbery in which the bandits were fired upon, so Capt. Martin O'Malley of the Summerdale avenue police station investigated the possibilities of a gang feud. He was paroled last February from Joliet where he served a robbery sentence.

DRIVER KILLED AS AUTO SKIDS AGAINST TRUCK

3 Others Die, Raising Year's Toll to 1,215.

Ralph Albright, 30 years old, 4316 Carroll avenue, was fatally injured last night when he was pinned between a truck, of which he was the driver, and an automobile driven by Alexander Hamilton Jr., 532 Hinman avenue, Evanston, at Rosemont avenue and Sheridan road. He died a short time later at Lake View hospital.

Albright was taking a package from the rear end of the truck when the Hamilton car skidded on the pavement and crushed him. Hamilton took the injured man to the hospital and, after being questioned by the police, was released. He was taken into custody again after the truck driver's death.

Three Others Killed.

This death and three others increased the Cook county motor toll since Jan. 1 to 1,215. The victims:

Louis Silvestri, 40 years old, 5149 Dakin street, died at the Washington Boulevard hospital of injuries suffered when his automobile collided with a surface car at Western avenue and Kinzie street. The automobile was telescoped when the car threw it against the post of a railroad viaduct.

A man believed to have been John Kien of the relief shelter at 509 North Union avenue, killed when he was struck by an automobile at Ada street and Washington boulevard. The driver did not stop.

Helmut Hoeft, 40 years old, 447 Deming place, died of injuries suffered Dec. 5 when he was struck at Wabash avenue and Superior street by an automobile driven by John Bertrand, 5453 Magnolia avenue.

Street Car Hits Truck; 2 Hurt.

Two persons were injured and forty passengers were shaken up yesterday when a street car, apparently unable to stop on the slippery rails, crashed into the rear of a truck loaded with steel beams on South State street between Jackson boulevard and Van Buren street. Loop trafic was delayed while the wreakage was cleared.

The injured were Joseph Piotrowski, 6 East 112th place, the motorman, who was cut by flying glass when a beam shattered the window, and Elizabeth Hunt, 12 years old, 4716 Champlain avenue, colored, who was treated for minor bruises.

VIENNA BANS BLUE CANDLES OF NAZIS FOR CHRISTMAS TREES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Dec. 22.—Blue candles for Christmas trees were banned today by the Vienna police. The reason is that they discovered thousands of blue candles were being purchased by Austrian Nazis in response to German propaganda that as a symbol of German Fascism and a united Germany only blue candles should illuminate Christmas trees.

German Nazis advocated a display of blue candles as a party emblem. The German school society Suedmark, which is a patriotic club and an advocate of pan-Germanism, was alleged to have purchased a large number of blue candles to distribute to its adherents.

The blue candles as a Christmas symbol of Nazidom take a place alongside the white socks which were also adopted last summer as the badge of the Nazis' political faith. The white socks also are banned by police throughout Austria.

Austria Condemns 2 Nazis to Death; Aided July Revolt

VIENNA, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Two Nazis convicted of receiving shipments of explosives during the July revolt were sentenced to death tonight at Graz. The government of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg simultaneously made a conciliatory gesture toward the opposition with a Christmas announcement to the effect that most of the Austrians incarcerated for participation in the revolts of February and July have been released in recent months.

Gunman Wounds Policeman Defending Filling Station

Policeman Robert Christian, colored, of the Wabash avenue station, was slightly wounded in the scalp yesterday as he defended a gasoline filling station at 379 East Garfield boulevard against the 21st attempt this year by robbers to hold it up. Clarence Harrison, 33 years old, 5626 Indiana avenue, colored, was arrested by Christian as he loitered suspiciously about the station. A colored companion fled, exchanging shots with Christian.

FREED BY JURY, INSULL PLANS A HAPPY HOLIDAY

Prosecutors Silent on Pending Cases.

Martin Insull spent a happy day yesterday, following his acquittal Friday by a jury in Judge Cornelius J. Harrington's Criminal court which decided that he was not guilty on a charge of embezzling $344,720 from Middle West Utilities company.

The tall younger brother of Samuel Insull was preparing late yesterday to go with his son-in-law, Maj. William Rafferty, to the latter's large stock farm at Morocco, Ind., to spend Christmas with his daughter. Mrs. Insull, who has been ill with a severe cold, has recovered sufficiently to make the trop, Maj. Rafferty said. Martin Insull has spent much of his time there since his extradition from Canada.

Prosecutors Silent.

At the Criminal court building neither State's Attorney Courtney, his first assistant, Wilbert F. Crowley, nor John O'Hora, the assistant who directed the Insull prosecution, would comment on either of the Insull state cases still pending. It seemed likely, however, that the $66,000 embezzlement case against Samuel Insull would be tried rather than the second case against his brother.

That case will be called before Judge Harrington on Jan. 7. The second Martin Insull case is on the docket for Jan. 15. This indictment charges embezzlement of $20,000 and it has been thought that the first case—in which he was acquitted—was considered by the state as the stronger of the two.

Faces Possible U. S. Trial.

If the state decides that it will not try the second Martin Insull case, he must return to Canada within thirty days or be subject to trial in Federal courts on the bankruptcy charge which is pending there against him. He was extradited only or the state charge but can be tried on any others if he does not return to Canada within one month.

In the Martin Insull federal case his brother, nephew, Samuel Jr., and several others are also defendants.

Here's Better Control for Those Miserable Colds So Prevalent Here Now

With Flu Increasing in Many Sections, Authorities Urge Extra Precaution Against Colds

WHILE there is no immediate cause for alarm over reports of Flu, health authorities urge everyone to take special precautions against the spread of colds just now. Colds pull down body resistance and often pave the way for Flu and other serious ills such as Bronchitis and Pneumonia. Don't take chances. Avoid all colds possible. Treat every cold promptly. For greatest safety and protection follow the simple rules of health and use the medication provided in the famous Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds. Briefly, the Plan is this:

To Help PREVENT Colds

At that first warning sneeze or nasal irritation, quick! . . . use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed to aid and gently stimulate the functions which Nature has provided—in the nose—to prevent colds and to throw off other colds in their early stages.

To Help END a Cold Sooner

If a cold has already developed, use Vicks VapoRub, the modern method of treating colds. Just rub on at bedtime. Its direct two-way action—by Stimulation and Inhalation—loosens phlegm—soothes irritated membranes—eases difficult breathing—helps break congestion. Often, by morning, the worst of the cold is over.

(Note—For Added Protection—Especially when Flu is in the air, it is a wise precaution to gargle night and morning with VICKS VORATONE ANTISEPTIC. Voratone is a balanced mouth-wash—powerful enough to dilute, safe to use full strength, pleasant to the taste.)

ONE SLAIN, FOUR SHOT; POLICEMAN BATTLES BANDITS

Opens Fire When Gang of Five Raids Tavern.

One man was killed and four others were wounded late last night when a policeman engaged in a pistol battle with five robbers in Michael Kilmartin's tavern at 5601 South Halsted street. None of the bandits was wounded, but two of them were forced to surrender by the policeman, Thomas Lydon of the trafic division, who was shot in the right hip.

The man killed was Benjamin Yoder, 67 years old, 5614 South Union avenue. Besides Lydon, who is 32 years old and resides at 956 West 76th street, the wounded are: Earl Hutton, 33 years old, 5614 South Union avenue, son-in-law of Yoder, struck in the left foot; Michael Boyle, 33 years old, 5354 South Peoria street, wounded in the left shoulder, and James Griffin, 34 years old, 5617 South Union avenue, struck in the left hip.

Three Customers Wounded.

Griffin was outside the place and was hurt by a bullet that crashed through the front window. The others, including Lydon, who was not in uniform, were customers of Kilmartin.

When the robbers, all with handkerchiefs over their faces, entered, one of them went behind the counter and forced the owner into a rear room. The others began herding the customers toward another rear room. Lydon first grappled with the nearest one and then drew his pistol and started shooting. The bandits fired back.

Yoder fell dead. A bullet had been fired at him from such close range that powder marks were left on the skin. It was the opinion of his son-in-law that Yoder, slightly deaf, had not heard and consequently had not obeyed a command to raise his hands.

Crash Out Through Glass.

As the other victims were struck in the confused struggle and began to shout and scatter for cover, the robber band divided. Three hurried to the front door. They had locked it going in, but did not stop to unlock it. They crashed through the glass.

Lydon, however, found the other two on the floor. Although his pistol had been emptied, he pointed it at the pair and they remained quiet, unaware that the weapon was useless. They were still under guard when a detective bureau squad arrived at the scene.

The prisoners are Mario De Stefano, 19 years old, 2950 West Jackson boulevard, and Daniel Mirra, 18 years old, 1844 West 13th street. A pistol was found on the floor near Mirra. Lydon, Kilmartin, and two brothers, Michael and Timothy Hastings, patrons of the saloon who escaped without being wounded, identified the bandits.

Adler Planetarium Closes Christmas and New Year's

Dr. Philip Fox, director of the Adler Planetarium, announced yesterday that that institution would be closed on Christmas and New Year's days. He said a normal schedule would obtain during the rest of the holiday season.

BANKHEAD ELECTION AS FLOOR LEADER IS APPARENTLY ASSURED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Election of Representative Bankhead as house Democratic floor leader seemed assured today, Michigan's Democratic delegation declaring that its six votes would go to the Alabaman on the first ballot, and Illinois' delegation planning to cast its twenty-one votes for him after a complimentary vote for its favorite son, Representative Sabath.

Managers for Mr. Bankhead claimed that he would have 125 votes on the second ballot, and on the third ballot would be elected by acclamation. He will enter the race with 118 votes, his managers say, and after Representative Rankin of Mississippi makes an expected withdrawal, Mr. Bankhead's assured vote will be 125. With withdrawal of favorite sons of Indiana, Ohio, and Illinois, it is indicated that he will be the caucus nominee. One hundred sixty-two votes are necessary to a choice, with full party membership present.

Dance Director Draws $200; Robber Gets $170

Mrs. Philomena Borris, 2412 North Spaulding avenue, who directed the Belgian Village folk dancers at the World's Fair last summer, had one small thing to be thankful for yesterday. She spent $30 of $200 she had withdrawn from a loop bank for Christmas shopping before a youth snatched the remainder from her purse. The robbery occurred before 2618 Milwaukee avenue.

CUSACK'S WIFE WINS TEMPORARY VICTORY IN CHASE

Cuero, Tex., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Holiday plans were made for the three small sons of Charles Edmund Cusack at the home of their maternal grandparents here tonight as a race by air and motor car between their estranged parents ended in temporary victory for the mother.

The Chicago broker, who charged his wife, Ann Hamilton Cusack of Beverly Hills, with violation of a court order in removing the children from California, abandoned pursuit at El Paso, Tex., upon learning she had reached Cuero.

"I have decided not to travel further," she said.

Still unsettled, however, was a charge of theft—removal of family silverware—which Cusack preferred against his wife in seeking her detention at points along their route.

Deputy Sherif Willard Killion of Los Angeles was somewhere in Texas with the warant. He was last reported at Fort Worth.

The Cusack boys, ranging in age from 5 to 9 years, assisted their mother in decorating a Christmas tree, welcoming a break in the day and night travel.

Mrs. Cusack said she had brought them to Cuero for Christmas in conformity with an agreement by which she permitted Cusack to take them to Colorado for a 10 day outing this summer.

DISTANT AIRPORT SEEN AS PERIL TO CITY'S AIR HOPES

Discounts Advantages, Says Air Line Chief.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Chicago's present position as the great central metropolis of North America was assured thousands of years before Columbus, when the glaciers melted slowly and left the Great Lakes and the river systems as they exist today. Geography thus made the city the crossroads of a nation, originally when burdens were carried by water, and still more emphatically when the railroads came.

That there is a point beyond which favorable geograpical position must be reinforced by intelligent civic planning if growth is to continue was pointed out yesterday by C. R. Smith, president of American Air Lines. Particularly is this true in the field of aviation, Mr. Smith said, because aviation is not so much subject to the geographical influence which guides and limits the expansion of earth-bound transportation systems. While geography cannot be ignored, the prime considerations to all line executives when they sit down to map their routes are sources of trafic, of which Chicago has an abundance, and terminal facilities, with which it is still inadequately provided.

Airport Too Far Away.

Geographical considerations such as central position and flat topography of the surrounding territory do favor Chicago even in the field of aviation, Mr. Smith said, but he characterized the remote location of the present municipal airport as a detracting factor.

"I'm for anything which will move our terminals as much as four feet toward the loop," Mr. Smith said. "I haven't had an opportunity to investigate the proposal for a lakefront airport thoroughly, but at first glance it seems the best proposal I've heard.

"Eastern cities, such as New York and Washington, also are troubled by remote airports. Whatever large city first builds a good centrally located air terminal is bound to increase its air trafic, just as the leader in any field has an edege in getting busines."

Born of Transportation.

Transportation was responsible for the very birth of Chicago. A century ago the village built about the site of old Fort Dearborn was the western terminal of water transportation on the Great Lakes. Construction of the Erie canal gave an all-water route to the seaboard definitly more advantageous than the route down the Ohio which helped develop Cincinnati and St. Louis.

When William B. Ogden proposed the first railroad into the city, the merchants of Chicago actually opposed it. Ogden's project was the Galena and Chicago Union, to connect this city with the lead mining town on the Mississippi, then larger and more prosperous than Chicago. The current marvel of Chicago was a system of plank roads which enabled farmers to bring their produce to market. Merchants argued that a railroad would kill Chicago retail trade by opening trading towns along its route.

They succeeded in keeping the railroad terminal outside the city limits when it was put in operation in 1848, but they speedily discovered that the hundreds of dollars they lost in retail trade were replaced by thousands in wholesale sales, and the railroad development of the city had begun.

Wealth Brought by Rail.

Geography brought the first railroad in from the east within a year, to haul goods from Detroit, making unnecessary the long lake trip "around the loop" in Lakes Huron and Michigan. Connections were speedily pushed through to New York. The settlement of the northwest got under way. To haul Wisconsin and Minnesota grain to the eastern seaboard, the railroads had to swing around the southern end of Lake Michigan at Chicago. The city tripled its population between 1849 and 1859, and increased its wealth six times. When the civil war started Chicago was served by eleven trunk lines and twenty branch railroads. It was definitly the railroad center of the nation.

Another tale of the period, perhaps apocryphal, is told regarding the difficulties which the Illinois Central had in entering the city from the south, and it illustrates again how geographical factors triumphed over the shortsightedness of some Chicagoans. The railroad, planning a line north from Urbana, sought a right of way through Englewood but was blocked by citizens who didn't want their residential quiet disturbed.

Pay $45,000 for Right of Way.

The railroad officials were about to abandon the whole project, according to the story, when Senator Stephen A. Douglas intervened, and persuaded the railroad to pay the city $45,000 in 1855 for privileges along the lake shore.

Chicago's position at the center of the rail network attracted industry, and industry served in turn to build up the city still further as a railroad center. Cyrus H. McCormick came to Chicago in 1847, a year before the first railroad, because the town offered convenient transportation for materials for his reapers and for their distribution.

City Gets Warning.

Air transportation has already given warnings that Chicago is not absolutely essential to a transcontinental air route. When TAT started its first transcontinental air-rail system six years ago, traversing the middle west through Pittsburgh, Columbus and St. Louis, Chicago found itself on a branch line off the fastest transcontinental route for the first time since the Union Pacific railroad was completed in post-civil war days. At the present time the postoffice department is working on plans for a through transcontinental mail and passenger route running out of New York and Washington, through the southeastern states to Fort Worth, Tex., and Los Angeles.

EXONERATED IN AUTO DEATH.

Ashland, Wis., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—After deliberating two hours, a coroner's jury today brought in a verdict that Joseph Marek, taxi driver, is not criminally liable for the death of William Grant, 40, who was killed when run over by an automobile which Marek was driving. Grant died Wednesday. The injuries resulted Dec. 8 during a snow storm.

LEAPS TO DEATH

MISS MADELON LARKIN.
[Helen R. Webster Photo.]

Miss Madelon Larkin, 38 years old, 5540 Cornell avenue, a former teacher in the O'Toole elementary school, plunged to her death from a window on the eighth floor of the Hotel Windermere, 1642 East 56th street, yesterday morning.

Miss Larkin suffered a nervous breakdown several months ago and she had been forced to give up teaching, according to information given to the police by her mother, Mrs. Caroline Larkin, a widow, with whom she lived. Yesterday morning, accompanied by her nurse, Mrs. Anna Van Cleve, Miss Larkin went to the apartment of Miss Fanna Poundstone on the eighth floor of the hotel to return a book she had borrowed.

While in the apartment she went to the bathroom and locked the door. After several minutes had elapsed Mrs. Van Cleve became alarmed and called to her through the door. There was no response, and Miss Larkin's mother was summoned, as were hotel attachés, who forced open the door and discovered the tragedy. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of temporary insanity caused by despondency over ill health.

COMMUNICATION OFFICIALS' EXTRA JOBS UNDER FIRE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Eleven officials and directors of leading telegraph, telephone and radio companies were ordered today to show cause why they should be allowed to continue as officers or directors of more than one company.

The order, issued by the federal communications commission, under the section of the communication act that forbids interlocking directorates, names Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company; Sosteenes Behn, president of the International Telephone and Telegraph company; David Sarnoff, president of Radio Corporation of America; Edwin F. Chinlund, vice chairman of the Postal Telegraph company; Newcomb Carlton, board chairman of the Western Union Telegraph company, and Edwin F. Carter, John W. Felton, E. Y. Gallagner, Joseph J. Halpin, Lewis MacConnach, and Frank L. Polk, all directors of communications companies.

In setting Jan. 21 for a hearing on applications for permission to hold posts in more than one company, the commission finds that the applicants have thus far failed to convince "that public and private interests will not be adversely affected" by interlocking directorates.

PUBLIC LIBRARY STOCKS OFF 30%; USERS DECLINE

Lack of funds which, since 1931, has prevented the purchase of books, has reduced the stocks of the Chicago public library to 30 per cent below normal, decreased the circulation of books nearly two millions of copies during eleven months of 1934, and depleted the number of book borrowers by 20,000, as compared with 1933, Carl Roden, librarian, said in his annual report yesterday.

"The effect of the heavily reduced tax incomes is clearly shown in the report," Mr. Roden said. "We have been prevented from buying 175,000 new books needed and from replacing 500,000 old ones. People who usually come to the library know of this shortage, and in consequence we have lost their interest. I see little prospect of any immediate relief."

Last year the number of library borrowers dropped from 494,000 to 474,000, Mr. Roden's report shows.

KNIGHTED PILOT, AT CINCINNATI, TO RETURN WEST

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Landing here this afternoon after a flight from Kansas City, Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian trans-Pacific flier, announced soon afterward that he would begin the return trip to Los Angeles tomorrow morning—with a fair passenger aboard his plane.

He brought Harry E. Walker, California ranch owner, here to the bedside of a brother, William G. Walker, who is ill.

Sir Charles' passenger on the westward flight will be Miss Mary Walker, Los Angeles hotel executive, who has been visiting at the home of Walker, her uncle.

The noted Australian praised the American system of airways, as revealed to him on his hop here.

"It is marvelous," he said. "There is none other in the world to equal your air facilities here."

Police Seize 150 Beggars in Cleanup of Loop Area

Detectives in their annual "pre-Christmas cleanup" of the loop yesterday arrested 150 peddlers and beggars. Patrol wagons swept through the loop district and detectives seized persons who were seeking to capitalize on the Christmas spirit to line their own pockets. The drive will continue up to Christmas day, Capt. George O'Connor announced.

YOUNG SET HAILS TRIANGLE CLUB'S 'STAGS AT BAY'

Eastern Debs Share Gayety of Annual Show.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Chicago's younger fashionables joined eastern debutantes last night in their approval of "Stags at Bay," the 46th annual production of the Princeton Triangle club. Presented in the old Auditorium, the musical extravaganza drew an ovation.

It was the laugh provoking romance of a Princeton man who won a debutante's heart from a Yale gentleman and a Harvard scholar. Appropriately enough the play was drawn with a Long Island backdrop, the social locale of Princeton university students.

In a trained gown rather than a full dress suit, Robert M. Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Arthur Wood of Highland Park and a Princeton junior, played the lead as the debutante. Other Chicago undergraduates in the cast who received special applause were John Peter Theurer, son of Mrs. Peter S. Theurer, who had another leading rôle as the debutante's father, and Hiram T. Gilbert Jr., Wayne Wells, and Kennedy Paul Ross.

Hundreds at Debutante Ball.

An undercurrent of Christmas gayety swept through the audience as it assembled from dinner parties at clubs and in private homes and later thronged the Auditorium foyers for the intermission. The climax of the evening for several hundred was the debutante ball in the Crystal ballroom of the Hotel Blackstone, at which Mr. and Mrs. John Leo Fortune, Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Babson, and Mr. and Mrs. George Bates Harrington presented their daughters, Miss Barbara Fortune, Miss Betty Babson, and Miss Mary Harrington, to society.

One of the largest box parties at the Triangle show was that given by Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr. and Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson for Miss Mary Frost and her sister Jane, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. Frost of Boston.

Party Dines at Casino.

In the group were Miss Jean Wilhelm who bowed to society a year ago at a ball following the Princeton show; Miss Jean Schweppe, Miss Mary Reed, Miss Alice Spaulding, another Chicago visitor; Miss Patsy Keith, who was escorted by her fiancé, Robert MacDonald; Miss Louise Brewer with her fiancé, Frank Wood; Miss Nancy Ryerson, Miss Jean O'Brien, Wyndham Hasler, Hugh Johnston, and Rosecrans Baldwin. Before the show the party dined at the Casino.

Several more boxes in the golden horseshoe were occupied by Miss Pauline Seipp, who was entertaining for Miss Mary Elizabeth Reid, who will become the bride of Ralph Chatillon on Jan. 5. Miss Laura Thorne, gowned in leaf green satin, and Miss Priscilla Morse, a debutante of this season, were in this group. Others were Miss Jane Chatillon, Miss Josephine Templeton, Miss Nancy Doering, Miss Bette Rich, Walton Wetten, Otto Madlener and his twin brother, William.

Rosses In Family Box Party.

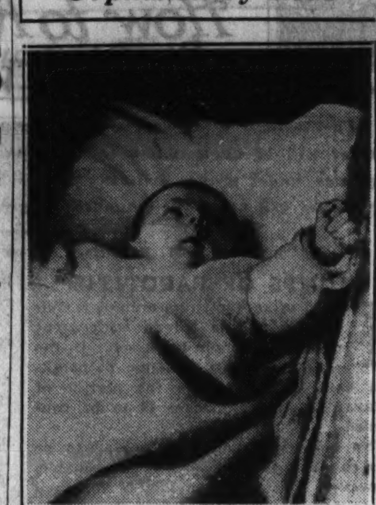
Very much interested in the production was the family box party of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Ross, parents of Kennedy Ross, a member of the cast. In this party there were, besides Mr. and Mrs. Ross, John Ross, who is home from Choate for the holidays, Mrs. Ora Ross, Bradley Ross and Livingston Ross.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams, whose son, Cyrus H. Adams III., was chairman of the Chicago committee in charge of the Triangle show, were host and hostess to another large party and so were Mr. and Mrs. R. Douglas Stuart and Mr. and Mrs. T. Albert Potter, who entertained at dinner for Miss Mary MacDonald and Miss Fanny McPherson. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney S. Gorham came with their two sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney S. Gorham Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Willett N. Gorham.

BANDIT'S CAR KILLS GIRL.

Ravenna, O., Dec. 22.—[U. P.]—One girl was killed and four others were injured when the automobile of a fleeing holdup man struck a carload of Garretsville High school students returning from a basketball game last night, authorities revealed today.

Orphaned by Reds



Recent picture of Helen Priscilla Stam, 3½ months old, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. John C. Stam, formerly of Chicago, who were executed by Chinese Reds.

REV. STAM'S LAST LETTERS REVEAL OMENS OF DEATH

Slain Missionary Tells Wheaton Kin of Peril.

The presentiment of death was in the last letters of the Rev. John C. Stam, Chicago missionary to China, who was slain by bandits early this month, it was learned yesterday when the last letters from the church worker were received by his brother in Wheaton.

"Do be praying that God will guide our footsteps and give us safety."

That was one of the lines read by the brother, Peter Stam Jr., 715 Ohio street, Wheaton. It was written just before the Rev. Mr. Stam, his wife, and their infant daughter, Helen Priscilla, moved into the Red-ridden and bandit-infested territory about Tsingteh.

Letters Tell Rumors of Unrest.

It was there that the missionary and his wife were slain. The baby daughter was saved by the heroism of a Chinese Christian minister, and brought back to Wuhu by the Rev. George Birch, a Canadian missionary.

The Rev. Stam's letters were full of rumors concerning the unrest and violence in the province, but in no line was there a hint but that the missionary would go ahead on to where he believed his duty called him.

"This southern end of our province has been comparatively barren of spiritual results," he wrote. "We missionaries need so much to be set on fire by Jesus Christ."

Tells of Church Ceremony.

In another paragraph, the Rev. Mr. Stam wrote of the church ceremonies for his little daughter—the only one of the three who survived the swords of the Chinese bandits.

"Yesterday the Birches [referring to the missionary who eventually saved the little girl's life] had their little John, and we had our little Helen dedicated. It was very impressive and very blessed. Mr. Weller prayed that she might be a help to the church and minister to the saints.

Word from Wife, Too.

"Incidentally, we have transliterated 'Helen' as nearly as possible into 'Ai Lien,' so that her name in Chinese means 'Love Link.' She surely is a darling, and behaves wonderfully."

Another letter received by Peter Stam was from the wife of the missionary. Her last words to her relatives concerned the little girl, also, with the usual mother's proud boast that "the baby looks like John, everybody says at first sight."

Rules Husband May Spank Wife if She Deserves It

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dec. 22.—[U. P.]—If a wife deserves it, a husband has the privilege to whip her occasionally, according to a ruling by Judge John S. Fine in domestic relations court. Harry Bell of Ashley, arrested on complaint of his wife, Lorraine, admitted spanking her because she spends all his money using their automobile while he works and "does not pay the bills." Judge Fine held that if a wife doesn't "obey" she may be chastised by her husband and dismissed the case.

NYE WOULD PASS ON BILL TO CURB PROFITS ON WAR

Munitions Committee to Ask More Money.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The senate munitions committee today sought to take control of any legislation which the Presidents' committee, headed by Bernard Baruch, may propose to take the profits out of war.

The group, headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye, also laid plans to carry on its inquiry into the munitions industry indefinitly. At the time the President named the Baruch committee, Nye and one or two of his colleagues said they were afraid the White House wanted to cut their investigation short.

The committee decided to ask that any administration recommendations for control of the arms makers be referred to it by the senate. This would give the group the power to rewrite the proposals, or disapprove the bill if it disagreed with its provisions.

Disagreement Is Seen.

The war department's positive stand against nationalization of the munitions industry has convinced the committee that it does not see eye to eye with the administration on the question of war profits.

A majority of the committee has expressed approval of nationalization in one form or another, and its members plan legislative recommendations once their inquiry has been completed.

Nye has declared for a full government monopoly on the munitions manufacture. Other members support him in varying degrees.

The committee chairman explained today that his proposal for nationalization would not affect the question of national defense.

Strong Army Favored.

"I want an army and navy sufficient to repulse a foe or group of foes that might be so foolish as to attempt to attack us," the North Dakotan said.

He scoffed at the war department view that nationalization would double the annual cost of national defense in peace times.

Convinced that the senate will grant it more money, the committee ordered the inquiry to continue as though there were no shortage of funds.

COUNTY REALTY TAX COLLECTIONS TOTAL $3,637,000 IN WEEK

Collection of real estate taxes during the last week amounted to $3,637,451, making a total of $240,618,975 collected by the treasurer's office since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda tax receivership act began on April 28, 1933, County Treasurer Sweitzer reported yesterday.

A tabulation of the week's collection of real estate taxes with the total amounts collected and the taxes still due to the county, follows:

HORNER CALLS PARLEY ON LAW ENFORCEMENT

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Gov. Horner today sent out invitations for the second annual conference of law enforcement officials of Illinois. A thousand sherifs, states' attorneys, mayors, and police chiefs are to meet in Springfield Saturday, Jan. 5.

Coöperating in the conference, the governor announced, will be representatives of federal law enforcing agencies and Attorney General Otto Kerner's office, T. P. Sullivan, head of the bureau of criminal indentification and investigation, and L. M. Taylor, acting chief of the highway police.

The Illinois conference will recommend that suggestions of the national meeting be incorporated into new legislation for submission to the forthcoming session of the general assembly. Among the suggestions were provisions for the registration of firearms, the filing of direct information against defendants in felony cases, and changes in the Illinois jury system to permit convictions, in all except capital offense cases, by a 10 to 2 vote.

Gov. Horner said that recent disclosures of organized and widespread dope rings would also receive attention at the conference.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

WHY THE ILLINOIS WATERWAY.

A correspondent for whose views we have the greatest respect wrote us recently that he could not understand our favorable attitude toward the development of the Illinois waterway. He correctly stated that railway construction has been the greatest factor in the rapid growth of Chicago. As a railway center our city is so far in the van that there is no real second. All this is admitted as to genesis, but the city's progress must not be dependent on that of the railways. Chicago is the world's greatest railway center—but not only that.

Let us review for a moment the background of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's policy. As the railways crawled over the Appalachian mountains they entered a country that had been poorly developed except along the rivers. As they pushed their way forward they left established communities in their wake. Farther and farther westward they progressed until the great Mississippi valley was supplying the more populous east with its great staples and in return receiving manufactured necessities. When the rails finally reached the Pacific coast the continent had been conquered. The next duty of the railways was to so develop efficiency as to offer the entire public all the transportation that was needed at a price that it could pay. Little or no competition was available except to a limited extent by water "around the Horn."

Then the Panama canal was conceived. Its completion produced revolutionary conditions. Where once we proudly spoke of our railways "spanning the continent," they were now forced in a measure to become feeders to boat lines operating between the coasts through the canal. Canned goods, lumber and other products of Pacific coast valleys destined to eastern points no longer moved via the railway transcontinental lines. Instead they were back hauled to move through the Panama canal to eastern ports—Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore—there to be transshipped and forwarded by rail to Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, etc. In the reverse direction, steel, paper and other commodities produced in the eastern third of the United States moved to Atlantic ports for transit via the Panama canal to the Pacific seaboard and adjacent territory. Both ends of our railway system prospered while the center starved.

As is well known, the basic need of the railways is volume. Deprived of a substantial tonnage that formerly moved both ways across the continent, the residue was forced to assume the burden of a railway fabric constructed to bear the load of the whole. Our friend must be able to see the transportation plateau that is being created in the Chicago territory. As railway rates from the two coasts increase with distance, they must reach a maximum in midcontinent.

The obvious cure is for the western railways to establish rates from Chicago that will enable it to market its goods on the Pacific coast in competition with the eastern seaboard. We are perfectly well aware that the lowest rates would apply to the most distant points because the structure is dictated by the Panama canal lines. To a public accustomed incorrectly to assume that distance dictates transportation costs, the rate fabric would seem discriminatory, but it would not be unjustly so because the competition was artificially created by the construction of the Panama canal. The railways would prosper. Volume, not mileage, is the arbiter of their transportation costs. The interstate commerce commission has the power to say that under the circumstances such rate construction would be just and reasonable, but so far it has refused.

What else have we to turn to except water competition via the Mississippi waterway? Nothing whatever. Without its use the middle west will become a commercial No Man's Land.

CHRISTMAS WEATHER.

Wayne Thomis, aviation editor of THE TRIBUNE, has reported from Florida that the newspapers were headlining Chicago as in the grip of a blizzard which was tying transportation into a knot. Climate is business in Florida, although it hasn't got the high religious California fervor to make a flood a high mist and may be easier to take for that reason. There are fewer Aimee McPhersons, Dr. Townsends, and Epicacians in Florida than there are on the golden coast.

The truth about the blizzard which delighted the Florida press is that a great majority in the region in which the snow fell were delighted to see it come. Even the less fortunate did not have their discomforts increased by it and it promised what people in this versatile region rejoice to have, a white Christmas. A green Christmas disappoints nearly everybody, and although nearly any one hereabouts would be pleased to include a part time winter within the sound of the Florida tides and within sight of the Florida royal palms and bougainvillea and subtropical vegetation, it would not do for hardier folk to have life all on these terms.

The people who live where winter produces some rigors like to take it as long as they are physically able. Variety rather than monotony is desired in their lives. They like to see the December moon showing his full countenance upon fields and woods snow covered. It is not a misfortune when the goose is plucked in a steel blue cloud and the feathers come swirling down.

The full flavor of American life is found in the infinite varieties of its climate, and the proud American is gratified to reflect that the ingenuity of his technicians and the enterprise of his promoters combine with nature to put winter and summer within less than ten hours' reach of each other. American enterprise is bringing many glorious sections of the United States into a golden wedding for the children of the land.

Florida may exploit, if it cares to, what is conceived to be the miseries of the Chicago climate, but sympathy is mostly wasted and Chicago's reply after visiting Florida is to come up and see us next summer, even if you couldn't enjoy a four inch fall of snow which the native hereabouts finds esthetic and stimulating.

THE PROFIT SYSTEM IN FOOTBALL.

Eddie Casey of Harvard is another coach who has bowed politely to his fate and stepped aside to allow some other producer to take over the show. College football is, as is pretty well understood, a good deal more than a collegiate competitive sport. It is big business, and a succession of failures is about as disastrous as a half dozen flops would be to Metro-Goldwyn, Fox, or any other movie firm.

It is known that the gate receipts of the football season support the other sports, and not only the competitive sports but the general physical education department, at least of the endowed universities. The state universities could do something with taxation, but in the other schools the ticket sales must do the job or there must be an endowment. Otherwise the whole college athletic system must be flattened out.

Harvard's financial statement for two college years is available and it is probably a fair summary of conditions in other schools, except that Harvard plays fewer games away from home than the majority of teams, and consequently its guarantees to visitors may be larger than in most cases. In the college year of 1933-'34 the total receipts were $600,000 and the guarantees paid visiting teams were $220,000. This gave an amount available for athletics and physical education of $380,000, and the total expenses were $412,000, leaving the physical education department in the red.

Baseball cost $10,000 more than it earned. The crew cost $17,000 more, varsity track $15,000, and varsity hocky about $6,000 more. No earnings were credited to minor sports and physical education, which had expenses of $82,000. Maintenance of athletic buildings and grounds cost $100,000, administrative expenses nearly $90,000, and improvements nearly $6,000.

The football team cost $65,000 and it showed a net profit of $200,000 after the guarantees had been paid the visiting teams. It may be assumed that by far the largest item in the $220,000 paid in such guarantees was for football.

In the college year of 1932-'33 Harvard football earned for the home team $321,000. It was not a good year, although by beating Yale some of the defeats had their compensation. This year prospects were still worse and the team was reduced to about the status of Bates and New Hampshire. The attendance fell off and there was a $55,000 decrease in earnings, partly relieved by a $20,000 decrease in expenses. If the team had done as well this year even as it had done the year before, the general physical education deficit would have been wiped out and there would have been some cash available for physical education extensions.

The football earnings, even in an off year, represent an endowment of, say, 4 million dollars. Multiply that by the number of colleges doing football in a large way and you will form an idea of what the game means in terms of capital.

It may not be necessary for a team to win all its games. It is indeed desirable that there should not be such unbalanced competition, but it is necessary that a team within its field of rivalry offer a prospect of successes. When Harvey Woodruff can pick it on the losing side Saturday after Saturday, the partisans are likely to keep their money in their pockets and seek some other diversion on Saturday afternoon. The real loyalists will stick it out, but they don't pay the coal bill. Harvard has always prided itself upon its ability to take a licking in good spirit, but the management frankly confesses it is up against it.

The high pressure coach who knows that a succession of defeats is a professional disaster to himself, will destroy his earning power and make him a failure, insists that he be given the material with which to work. The way to do that is to scout the prep schools and get the promising boys for his squad. If a college management doesn't like that, if it sniffs at such practices, the coach prefers a school with a different standard of ethics. His reputation is at stake and the welfare of the physical education department is at hazard if he can't put eleven competent young men out on the field, with sufficient replacements to push the ball over the goal line.

The physical education department is not concerned solely with the spectacular competitive sports. In these days it has carried physical training in games or exercises to nearly all the students and no doubt to their physical benefit. Football pays for this and it only pays when the right coach has the right men who can win enough games to keep the money flowing in.

College football is a profit seeking enterprise. It must be managed for that purpose and it must be successful. The alternative is more taxation or more endowment.

Editorial of the Day

WATERWAY TRAFIC INCREASE.

[The Rock Island Argus.]

Water transportation between Peoria and Chicago is ended for the season. Figures just released show that trafic between the two cities was three times what it was last year. More than 300,000 tons were cleared. This increase is due in large measure to large shipments of corn and other grain to the Chicago market.

When William E. Hull was in congress he predicted the Lakes-to-the-Gulf waterway would prove to be a big thing for the farmer. Most certainly this movement of grain over this waterway aided the farmers.

In the opinion of the Peoria Star, "unless the proposed St. Lawrence seaway nips it in the bud the waterway is expected eventually to prove of inestimable benefit to every one anywhere near the Illinois and Mississippi valleys."

PUBLIC DISCUSSION

[From the "Essay on Liberty," written in 1859 by John Stuart Mill, the Father of Modern Political Economy.]

Before quitting the subject of freedom of opinion it is fit to take some notice of those who say that the free expression of all opinions should be permitted on condition that the manner be temperate and do not pass the bounds of fair discussion. Much might be said on the impossibility of fixing where these supposed bounds are to be placed, for if the test be offense to those whose opinions are attacked I think experience testifies that this offense is given whenever the attack is telling and powerful, and that every opponent who pushes them hard and whom they find it difficult to answer appears to them, if he shows any strong feeling on the subject, an intemperate opponent.

But this, though an important consideration in a practical point of view, merges in a more fundamental objection. Undoubtedly the manner of asserting an opinion, even though it be a true one, may be very objectionable and may justly incur severe censure. But the principal offenses of the kind are such as it is mostly impossible, unless by accidental self-betrayal, to bring home to conviction. The gravest of them is, to argue sophistically, to suppress facts or arguments, to misstate the elements of the case, or misrepresent the opposite opinion. But all this, even to the most aggravated degree, is so continually done in perfect good faith by persons who are not considered, and in many other respects may not deserve to be considered, ignorant or incompetent, that it is rarely possible on adequate grounds conscientiously to stamp the misrepresentation as morally culpable, and still less could law presume to interfere with this kind of controversial misconduct.

With regard to what is commonly meant by intemperate discussion, namely, invective, sarcasm, personality, and the like, the denunciation of these weapons would deserve more sympathy if it were ever proposed to interdict them equally to both sides, but it is only desired to restrain the employment of them against the prevailing opinion: against the unprevailing they may not only be used without general disapproval but will be likely to obtain for him who uses them the praise of honest zeal and righteous indignation.

Yet whatever mischief arises from their use is greatest when they are employed against the comparatively defenseless, and whatever unfair advantage can be derived by any opinion from this mode of asserting it accrues almost exclusively to received opinions. The worst offense of this kind which can be committed by a polemic is to stigmatize those who hold the contrary opinion as bad and immoral men. To calumny of this sort those who hold any unpopular opinion are peculiarly exposed, because they are in general few and uninfluential and nobody but themselves feels much interested in seeing justice done them; but this weapon is, from the nature of the case, denied to those who attack a prevailing opinion: they can neither use it with safety to themselves nor, if they could, would it do anything but recoil on their own cause. In general, opinions contrary to those commonly received can only obtain a hearing by studied moderation of language and the most cautious avoidance of unnecessary offense, from which they hardly ever deviate even in a slight degree without losing ground: while unmeasured vituperation employed on the side of the prevailing opinion really does deter people from professing contrary opinions and from listening to those who profess them. For the interest, therefore, of truth and justice it is far more important to restrain this employment of vituperative language than the other and, for example, if it were necessary to choose there would be much more need to discourage offensive attacks on infidelity than on religion.

It is, however, obvious that law and authority have no business with restraining either, while opinion ought in every instance to determine its verdict by the circumstances of the individual case, condemning every one, on whichever side of the argument he places himself, in whose mode of advocacy either want of candor or malignity, bigotry, or intolerance of feeling manifest themselves, but not inferring these vices from the side which a person takes, though it be the contrary side of the question to our own, and giving merited honor to every one, whatever opinion he may hold, who has calmness to see and honesty to state what his opponents and their opinions really are, exaggerating nothing to their discredit, keeping nothing back which tells, or can be supposed to tell, in their favor.

DANIEL WEBSTER ON CONSTITUTIONAL LIBERTY

"If disastrous war should sweep our commerce from the ocean another generation may renew it; if it exhaust our treasury further industry may replenish it; if it desolate and lay waste our fields, still under a new cultivation they will grow green again and ripen to future harvests. It were but a trifle even if the walls of yonder capitol were to crumble, if its lofty pillars should fall, and its gorgeous decorations be all covered by the dust of the valley. All these might be rebuilt. But who shall reconstruct the fabric of demolished government? Who shall rear again the well proportioned column of constitutional liberty? Who shall frame together the skilful architecture which unites national sovereignty with state rights, individual security and public prosperity? No, if these columns fall they will be raised not again. Like the Coliseum and the Parthenon, they will be destined to a mournful, a melancholy immortality. Bitterer tears, however, will flow over them than were ever shed over the monuments of Roman or Grecian art, for they will be the remnants of a more glorious edifice than Greece or Rome ever saw, the edifice of constitutional American liberty."

BETTER LUCK NEXT TIME.

The school inspector had been questioning the class for a considerable time. Presently he said:

"I wish I were a boy again and back to school." He paused. "Do you know why I wish that?"

For a second or two there was silence. Then a grimy hand went up. "Well?" asked the inspector.

"'Cos you've forgotten all you ever knowed," said the youth.—Vancouver Province.

NOT BAD!

"I have spent nearly $20,000 on that girl's education," complained the aggrieved father, "and here she goes and marries a young feller with an income of only $1,000 a year."

"Well," said the friend of the family, "that's 5 per cent on your investment. What more can you expect in these times?"—Vancouver Province.

KNEW HIS FOWLS.

Judge—Sam, you are accused by this man of stealing three chickens. What have you to say?

Sam—All Ah kin say, jedge, is dat any man dat could call dem ole hens chickens hab a pow'ful tough conscience.—Pathfinder.

MUMPS OR PAROTITIS.

THE disease known as mumps is contagious and is spread with great ease from person to person. In the presence of an epidemic painstaking care is required in the matter of quarantine if the disease is to be controled.

No bacterium has been proved to be the cause of the disease. It is probable, however, that the organism is so small as to defy detection, and that it exists in the saliva that is poured into the mouth from the various glands.

Mumps is longer in manifesting itself after exposure than almost any of the contagious diseases. Rarely do cases develop in less than fourteen days and the majority require from seventeen to twenty days.

The disease is characterized by swelling of the parotid gland that lies in front of the ear and extends backward under the ear lobe. The size of the gland frequently interferes with the movement of the lower jaw. As a rule the enlargement is at its height by the end of the third day and begins to recede after the sixth or seventh day. There is usually headache, loss of appetite, vomiting, and a fairly high fever. In most persons the swelling will be noticed first on one side of the face, followed in two or three days by the involvement of the gland on the opposite side. Sometimes the opposite gland will not be affected at all or only after several weeks.

The face is usually grossly distorted and the condition has been the subject of caricature by such famous artists as Gilray and Hogarth. The diagnosis cannot be made by attempting to bite the proverbial pickle.

As a rule the disease is not serious if it affects the individual early in life. It may, however, be attended with complications in persons who have passed the age of puberty, chiefly swelling of the sex glands in both males and females. This symptom may appear during the second or third week and is usually accompanied by a rise in temperature. In young women the general glandular structures are sometimes secondarily disturbed, including the thyroid, the tear glands, the pancreas, and the ovaries. Orchitis (swelling of the sex glands in males) takes place in from 15 to 30 per cent of the cases. Fortunately complications are not the rule and yet when they do occur skilful management is required. When the disease occurs in adults it must be regarded as of considerable importance, as the sex glands may be involved even to the point of sterility.

Many cases of deafness have resulted from mumps. This is not a usual sequel to the disease, but sometimes occurs, particularly in cases that have been neglected or have received poor care. Occasionally secondary bacteria will invade the middle ear due to a drop in resistance of the patient.

Treatment consists of rest in bed, mild diet, and the application of ice bags to the swollen glands. In children, while good care is necessary, the disease is usually mild. It is never wise to permit the patient to leave his bed, even to sit up in the room, until all swelling has completely subsided and all signs of temperature have disappeared. Few complications follow the disease if bed rest is strictly enforced.

Serum obtained from the blood of persons who have recently recovered from the disease has been used. In one series of 44 boys who received 5 cc. of this convalescent serum no cases of mumps developed following exposure. This is a means of preventing and not of curing the disease, as the serum has no effect if the disease has become established. If one must have mumps, early childhood is the most favorable period.

ENJOYS OLD AGE.

L. C. L. writes: As an old man of 80 years I realize no one can harness time. When a boy on the farm I harnessed horses and drove them and no doubt that helped to give me a good constitution. For some 30 years after the age of 35 I rode horseback every morning. At 69 I entered an old men's home and enjoy old age more than I can tell you. I keep busy and time flies too fast to suit me. I have in mind to make up a brief address embodying your suggestions as to living. I was surprised that you recommended using water sparingly. Most of our men use it freely and, as far as I know, there have been no bad results.

REPLY.

Congratulations on your philosophy.

As blood vessels become less elastic overfilling the circulation with fluid is not advised. This does not mean that several glasses of water cannot be taken daily.

A MILKMAN'S LEGS.

Mrs. M. C. writes:

My husband, a milkman, must climb about one hundred third floor apartment stairs daily, and has done so for the past ten years. When he gets home at night and sits down or goes to bed the muscles of his legs twitch and jerk. This is growing worse each day.

Is there anything that will relieve this condition, as our living depends on his work?

REPLY.

The chances are that your husband's circulation is somewhat below par. There may be no organic disease whatever. Muscles and nerves both tire. A hot bath when he reaches home or shortly thereafter, followed by massage of the muscles, will help. Sometimes applying heat in bed, by means of an electric pad, is beneficial.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY NORMAN INGREY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile.—Whether they realize it or not, South American daily newspapers, even those of international ranking, are gradually having their columns filled with foreign propaganda. The independent news agency, run on a commercial basis, is having a hard time to combat the subsidies that brings the opposition "news" to this continent and the politics that secures its publication.

It is customary, of course, for domestic news to be distorted and operation of a censorship is normal. Practically every South American government would deny it censored news and opinions, but newspaper editors and foreign correspondents all know the telephone number to call and the official to consult before passing any item that reflects on the administration or its policies. Failure to follow this procedure frequently results in dismissal for the one or deportation for the other.

Havas, the French agency, was the pioneer of subsidized news transmission to South America, although it has always been able to argue that it sells its services at competitive rates. It also denies that it disseminates propaganda, but the average South American reader readily detects in Havas dispatches an unswerving adherence to the French foreign office viewpoint.

There is nothing subtle about the propaganda that trickles through Havas. It is transparent and monotonous for a trained reader or student of international politics. It specializes in verbatim reports of the Sunday speeches of French statesmen and discoveries of German rearming, and no adverse foreign criticism of Germany escapes quotation.

Transocean, the official German agency, which supplies several thousand words free to the daily newspapers, attempts to offset the French "stories" with a Teutonic thoroughness. It denies practically every Havas report on international affairs and performs a solemn daily duty of transmitting every British editorial which is favorable to Germany on the Saar, rearmament, and other problems.

The Stampa Italiana agency, which is also making headway with its daily radio service, free of charge, reflects the voice of Mussolini in European affairs. The variety of its rôle can be gauged from the fact that in one recent transmission it denied an "opposition" report that there had been a row between British and Italian football players in London, lauded the sales of Italian wine in the United States, emphasized Il Duce's cordial reception of Jewish leaders, and quoted Bulgarian newspaper criticism of minority government imposed by the peace treaties.

This kind of propaganda is obtaining more and more space in Latin-American newspapers, squeezing out the real news and impartial reports of independent agencies and correspondents. National papers in Chile, for instance, have devoted whole pages—standard American size—to this "news."

How newspapers of good standing have come to print free radio "news" is a puzzling problem in many quarters. Diplomatic pressure is suggested. This sounds possible when it is remembered that South America depends for its very life blood on foreign markets for its prime commodities.

Lately it has been forced into numerous compensation trade pacts with European countries to conserve markets for nitrate, wool, frozen meat, coffee, and cereals. It would be comparatively easy, therefore, for foreign diplomats to suggest that the South American governments "recommend" the papers to take a free "news" service.

SHOULD APPLY FOR CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—[Friend of the People.]—1. My husband died six months ago. He had only his declaration of intention [first paper]. I am very anxious to become a citizen. Do I have to make application for citizenship papers? 2. May a person who is on relief apply for naturalization? M. B.

1. The writer, in order to become a citizen, will have to apply for citizenship papers. If the husband's declaration of intention was filed before May 24, 1934, then the widow may use such declaration of intention in applying for naturalization, provided the same is less than seven years old, and provided also that she has had at least five years' continuous residence in the United States and at least six months' continuous residence in the county in which she is residing.

2. The fact that a person is accepting charity is merely one of the factors considered when an applicant applies for naturalization. It has not been held to be a controling factor.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director of Immigration and Naturalization, Chicago District.

ADOPTION.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What legal steps must be taken to adopt a baby? 2. If a state's attorney has the adoption case are there any charges? 3. About what are the adoption fees in court, if any? 4. How long would it take to have all adoption papers, etc., closed so one may claim the child? F. G.

1. The procedure is outlined in the chapter entitled "Adoption" in the Revised Statutes.

2. It is not a function of the state's attorney.

3. Depends on the attorney whom you employ.

4. Depends on whether publication is necessary and on other facts not before us.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEGALITY OF DIVORCE.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Are Mexican divorces recognized in Illinois? If not, what states accept them as legal? W. G.

It is the general rule that if the court has jurisdiction of the marriage relation [by virtue of the parties having lived in the jurisdiction] or of the parties [by virtue of the defendant being served with process or his appearance being entered] a decree can be entered which will be recognized in other states, but many of the divorces secured in such states as Nevada have no extraterritorial effect because the court lacks jurisdiction. Hence, we advise persons who contemplate going to a foreign state for a divorce to first get the advice of a disinterested lawyer in their home state. Do not rely on advertising, on news articles, nor on the claims of the lawyer who makes his living out of exploiting such cases.

In Bergeron vs. Bergeron, decided Sept. 15, 1934, by the Massachusetts Supreme court, a Mexican divorce was held invalid, although the wife had contracted another marriage in reliance on the decree.

ASSETS IN BANKRUPTCY.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A certain party went into bankruptcy about three years ago. 1. Who will receive the money due on the telephone rebate? Has the telephone company a right to hold the money? If I understand correctly, all bills are paid when you go into bankruptcy. 2. My husband has money coming from four different people who filed bankruptcy. D. C.

1. Depends on the facts. If a trustee was appointed in the bankruptcy proceedings and sold the assets including this claim, then the purchaser of the assets would be entitled to collect from the telephone company.

2. We suggest that you take the matter up with the telephone company.

JAPANESE PURCHASES IN AMERICA.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 18.—One of your contributors, Mr. Isadore Bell, in commenting favorably on proposed higher tarifs, makes the following statement, "It is surprising to see the conglomeration of Japanese novelties . . . etc., distributed all over the country—and our American factories are idle."

Such a statement sounds patriotic and reasonable, but I wonder if Mr. Bell has bothered to dig out the facts regarding Japanese imports and exports. The facts are easily obtainable from various government publications, and Mr. Bell will probably be surprised.

During the nine months, January to September of this year, Japan shipped to this country $88,905,000 of products of one sort or another, and it is quite possible that this importation may have done some harm to certain American manufacturers.

But, and here is the other side of the picture which Mr. Bell may not have considered: During the same nine months Japan bought from this country $137,270,000 of goods grown on American soil or manufactured by American manufacturers. For every dollar's worth of Japanese novelties, etc., that we have bought from them they have bought over a dollar and a half's worth of American cotton, automobiles, manufactured articles, etc., from us.

The situation is about the same regarding all other countries as a whole. During the nine months mentioned we sent abroad slightly more than one billion 500 million dollars' worth of goods. We bought from them only one billion two hundred and twenty millions of their goods.

It seems to the writer that the foreigners, Japanese included, are treating our farmers and manufacturers better than we are treating theirs, and it would seem sportsmanlike, if nothing more, to have no prejudice against imported goods.

My figures were taken directly from a pamphlet entitled "Our World Trade," recently published by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Washington, D. C., and they should be correct.

EDWARD S. MARPLES.

A SCHOOL FOR CRIME FIGHTERS.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—There has been considerable agitation in recent months for the reëstablishment of the Great Lakes Naval Training academy. It would seem to me that in view of the crime situation in this country the government could use the property to far better advantage if it would establish it as a training school for police and federal agents. The property is ideally located close to a large city and crime center that would be an excellent field of practice; it is located in an attractive and scenic setting, and it is fairly centrally located as to other parts of the country. If the government should establish such a school it would increase the morale of the anti-crime forces and would be an added deterrent to those with criminal tendencies. Chicago should back a program to make the Great Lakes academy the Lincoln Academy of Criminology.

AN ACCUMULATION OF TAXES.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—Your editorial, "Get Your Motor Plates Now," evidently is written by some one whose sole contact with government is confined to a motor vehicle license.

Don't you know that owners of real estate have had to dig up what amounts to two years' taxes this year? Do you know that all special assessments are due Jan. 2 each year and that in many cases they amount to more than the taxes, with vicious penalties for nonpayment?

I suggest that this cheerful optimist be compelled to buy a house or lose his job so as to complete his education.

GORDON G. BURDICK.

ECONOMY IN THE HIGH SCHOOLS.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—The recent sale of school bonds at a point over par is being interpreted as conclusive evidence of the rehabilitation of the school system's finances. If so, a return to a decent instructional standard ought to follow without delay.

Most of the publicists presume that the economies were effected by the elimination of ultra-modern frills and the abandonment of costly educational experiments. Unfortunately, however, those expedients represented but a small part of the sacrifice.

Particularly in the high schools the very principles of education have been impaired. Administration has been demoralized by shifting the ratings and responsibilities of personnel. Physical property has been misused or allowed to languish in poor repair. The teaching staf, pressed for money and disturbed by unaccustomed instructional reponsibilities, has permitted its morale to lapse to the point where classroom time has been devoted to the airing of the teacher's personal grievances against the taxpayers. The absence of faculty interest in the practice of imparting knowledge has been reflected in the students' lack of enthusiasm for absorbing it. Discipline has been so lax that nobody seemed to care whether class met or not, or who was present. Reception of parents, seeking to coöperate, has been indifferent, if not actually antagonistic.

These facts are familiar to almost any parent who was so unlucky as to have a child during the last two year in attendance at the high schools, particularly those that have not yet met the standards imposed by colleges for their admission of high school students.

The price has been paid by the generation now arriving at maturity, by the boys and girls who will be expected to pay the debts of this depression. They face the responsibility for the social, moral, and economic renaissance of America under the dire handicap of inadequate education. We have not only plunged them into the abyss but we have deprived them of the means whereby they reasonably might extricate themselves from it.

In our jubilation at the reëstablishment of school board credit it is our duty to recognize the extent to which our children have suffered and to make our first object the revival of a standard of education that is worthy of the name.

ABOUT STREET CARS.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—I ride on the Grand avenue car every morning, getting on at Narragansett. This, mind you, is 6400 west, and even at that distance from the city it is impossible to get a seat. Robey street cars are so few and far between that passengers can be seen clinging to the steps several blocks before they reach Grand avenue. There is usually time to eat breakfast at 22d street between cars.

Why not send out a reporter now and then to make a survey of conditions which vitally affect the lives of thousands of your readers? Send along a cameraman to get the evidence and have him bring a thermometer to test the temperature in some of these ice boxes.

DISGUSTED.

FOR JUDGE McGOORTY.

Harrisburg, Ill., Dec. 17.—I noticed an article in your paper in which the name of the Hon. Judge John P. McGoorty was mentioned for the appointment to fill the vacancy in the Illinois Supreme court bench which is caused by the recent death of Justice De Young. This is a splendid suggestion. I have known Judge McGoorty for a number of years and he certainly is a splendid type of man and would serve the people of Illinois better than any one I can think of on the Supreme court bench. I am hopeful that he will be appointed.

THREE WEDDINGS HOLD ATTENTION OF SOCIAL WORLD

Ceremonies Performed in Charming Settings.

BY JUDITH CASS.

Society's attention was divided among three fashionable brides yesterday. Two were married at afternoon ceremonies and one in the evening.

Miss Jeannette Schreiner, daughter of the Joseph O. Schreiners, was married to Paul Christian Loeber Jr., son of the Paul C. Loebers of Lake Forest, at 4:30 o'clock in the chapel of St. James' church. Miss Jane Ashcraft, daughter of the Raymond M. Ashcrafts, became the bride of William Henry Alexander, son of Cyrus Hall Alexander of Rockford, Ill., at 4:30 in the Ashcraft home at 4950 Woodlawn avenue.

Miss Louise Stanton, daughter of the Henry Thompson Stantons, was married at 8 o'clock last night to John Dudley Clemens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hays H. Clemens of Erie, Pa., in the beautiful Stanton home, White Thorns, in Wayne.

Wed in Beautiful Setting.

The Stanton-Clemens wedding was the largest of the three, and one of the loveliest of the winter weddings. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a stunning gown of silver cloth, threaded with gold, with a bertha of heirloom rose point lace that fell off the shoulders in back and cascaded the length of the train. A tulle veil over this was fastened to a tiny gold filigree in her hair, and she carried a shower of lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor, Miss Julia Keenan, a cousin from Berkeley, Cal., wore gold slipper satin with a full skirt and shoulder caps of gold lace trimmed with mink. She wore a gold fillet in her hair and carried talisman roses.

The bridesmaids wore turquoise blue moiré period gowns trimmed with mink, made with long sleeves and off the shoulder necklines. They had silver fillets in their hair and carried talisman roses.

Plan Bermuda Honeymoon.

At the head of the receiving line, which formed after the ceremony, read by the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard of Winnetka, stood Mrs. Stanton in silver metal cloth, shot with blue, and the bridegroom's mother, who wore rhinestone studded blue crêpe and orchids. After a wedding trip to Bermuda Mr. Clemens and his bride will be at home temporarily in Joliet.

Miss Schreiner designed the lovely gowns she and her sister, Miss Lura Schreiner, and their little cousin, Joanne Landis Phillips, wore at the St. James ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Duncan Browne. The bride wore a simple, severely cut ivory satin gown with square neckline and turnover collar of rose point lace, full sleeves to the elbow, with frills of rosepoint falling over her hands. Rosepoint edged the tulle veil, and another veil of rosepoint fell just to her shoulders. All of the lace was taken from her mother's wedding gown. She carried an armful of tiny calla lilies.

Carries Muff of Roses.

The maid of honor wore a period gown of old blue taffeta with puffed sleeves and a matching hat and carried a muff of roses. The flower girl wore a rose colored period dress, floor length, with a tiny train and drop shoulders. She carried an old fashioned bouquet of sweetheart roses and forget-me-nots and wore a wreath of the same flowers in her hair. There was no reception following the ceremony, for Mr. Loeber and his bride left immediately for Phoenix. They will be at home at 70 East Walton place when they return.

The living room of the Ashcraft house assumed a gay Christmas appearance yesterday for the marriage, which was solemnized by the Rev. Wilfred A. Rowell of Hinsdale. The bride wore a demure white satin with long sleeves, V neckline, and an accordion plaited train. The tulle veil was fastened to a lace cap and she carried a spray bouquet. Miss Betty Ashcraft, her only attendant, wore a light blue period frock, and Mrs. Ashcraft wore wine crêpe and brown orchids. After a wedding trip south Mr. Alexander and his bride will be at home at 1118 Hyde Park boulevard.

Virginia Nicolson to Wed.

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Miss Virginia Nicolson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo M. Nicolson of Chicago and Wheaton, will be married to Orson Welles, actor now playing with Katharine Cornell in the holiday production of "Romeo and Juliet," this afternoon. The ceremony will be read at the home of Mrs. Herbert Gay, the bride's godmother, in the Llewellyn section of West Orange, N. J. A number of Chicagoans, including the parents of the bride and Dr. Maurice Bernstein will be present.

Rex Larbow Beldam Name Given to Clara Bow's Baby

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The four day controversy over a name for Clara Bow's baby ended today in a three way compromise. The baby's name is Rex Larbow Beldam.

Jeannette Schreiner and Jane Ashcraft Wed

MISS HARRIET WALKER WED TO R. P. CROSS JR. IN CHURCH CEREMONY

In a pretty ceremony in the First Presbyterian church in Evanston at 8:30 o'clock Friday night, Miss Harriet Donna Walker, daughter of the Louis Roy Walkers, became the bride of Robert Patterson Cross Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Cross of Evanston. The Rev. Paul Austin Wolfe read the ceremony, and the bride was attended by Miss Elizabeth Walker and Miss Margaret Nash Walker, her sisters. Donald Francis Campbell Jr. served Mr. Cross as best man, and ushering were John Phillips and Phelps Asbury Walker, the bride's brother.

The bride was lovely in an antique white velvet gown and an heirloom rosepoint lace veil which has been worn by her cousins, Mrs. Frederick Spencer and Mrs. Walter Webb Crawford, daughters of the Ralph R. Richardsons. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley. The honor maid wore American beauty moire and the bridesmaid wore green and lavendar changeable taffeta. Both carried a cascade of Hollywood roses.

Mr. Cross and his bride went north for winter sports on their wedding trip and upon their return will be at home at 8003 Edgewater road, Riverside.

DIRIGIBLE CHIEF AND LOS ANGELES WOMAN MARRY

New York, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Commander Charles Rosendahl, 42, former skipper of the dirigible Los Angeles and ranking officer among the survivors of the wrecked Shenandoah, was married today in the Church of the Transfiguration.

His bride was Jean Wilson, 32, of Los Angeles.

The Episcopalian service was performed by the Rev. Randolph Ray, rector of the church.

Commander and Mrs. Rosenthal were accompanied by Hugh Allen of Akron, O.; Mrs. Claude Collins, and Miss Helen Frederickson, both of this city.

Rosendahl, who gave his address as Cleburne, Tex., is a naval officer of the United States lighter-than-air service at Lakehurst, N. J.

U. S. Issues $1,106 Income Tax Lien vs. Joan Blondell

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Joan Blondell of the films received a Christmas present with reverse English from Uncle Sam today when the federal collector for this district imposed a federal lien for $1,106 against her, asserting this much additional payment was needed to square her 1933 taxes.

Messrs. Hopkins, Brothers, Wed Misses Hopkins, Twins

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 22.—[U. P.]—Grace and Florence Hopkins, twins, were married to two brothers here today but the only change from their names was from "Miss" to "Mrs." The girls married Lester and Carl Hopkins, respectively.

SOCIETY THRONG ENJOYS OPERA'S "STUNT NIGHT"

Many Entertain with Jolly Parties.

Many of the opera enthusiasts who attended the première in the Civic Opera house six weeks ago were there again last night when the curtain was rung down for the last time this season. It was as gay and as gala an occasion as those who arranged it had promised, with some serious operatic music and a ballet first and then a riot of burlesque that kept the audience laughing.

Even those husbands who are the most reluctant to accompany their wives to the opera enjoyed last night's rollicking fun and every one agreed that "stunt night" was a jolly way to end the season. The opera house was crowded and everywhere was manifest the spirit of informality and lack of stiffness that characterized the première.

Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, chairman of the committee that planned the night's entertainment, was there, of course, with Mrs. Laflin Kellogg, Miss Edna Kellogg, Miss Anna Fitziu, the George Woodruffs, the Clifford Caldwells, Eleanor La Mance, Frederick Persson, Paul Longone, and Gennaro papi. Mrs. Arthur Meeker, one of Mrs. Graham's committee, and Mr. Meeker had with them their son, Arthur Meeker Jr., the Walter Paepckes, and Mme. Edith Mason, who joined the party after she had sung in the first act of "La Traviata."

Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, whose daughter Janet also sang in "La Traviata," were with the John Alden Carpenters, whose other guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Weber Linn. Ben Fairbank, who returned to Chicago from Nebraska for the holidays, and Kellogg Jr., also were in the audience last night.

Mrs. Jacob Baur had with her Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mowrer, the Henry Fields, Ove Vett, and Vincent Bendix. Mrs. Chadwick was chairman of the cabaret opera supper that followed the program at the College Inn and to which many of the audience went.

The Charles B. Goodspeeds' guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leonid Massine, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Robb of Minneapolis, and Eugene Stinson.

Senator and Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis were host and hostess to Mrs. Harry H. Shearson, Edward H. Bennett [Mrs. Bennet was ill with influenza], Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, and Ira Nelson Morris.

GATTI-CASAZZA OPENS HIS FINAL SEASON WITH METROPOLITAN

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—With every seat sold and the standing room space populated thickly, the Metropolitan Opera house began tonight its fiftieth regular season. Its twenty-seventh and last under Giulio Gatti-Casazza's general management. All seats, except for a few giving only partial view of the stage, had been taken a week ago, while the first members of the hardy group of operatic standees eager to hear Verdi's "Aïda" had taken their places before the inner doors of the lobby soon after 4 o'clock.

Having begun his first season at the Metropolitan, back in November, 1908, with "Aïda," Mr. Gatti-Casazza made a concession to sentiment by presenting this most popular of Italian operas to open the season which is to close his forty-two year career in operatic management.

The performance marked two debuts. One of the newcomers was the conductor, Ettore Panizza, an Italian musician. The other was Desire Defrere, formerly of the Chicago and Ravinia operas, engaged this month as stage director.

Elizabeth Rethberg and Marie Olszewska, were in the leading women's rôles of Aïda and Amneris. Giovanni Martinelli as Radames, Ezio Pinza as Ramfis and Giordano Paltrinieri as the Messenger were heard. The American contingent, headed by Lawrence Tibbett as Aïda's stern Ethiopian father, Amonasro, included Louis D'Angelo as the King of Egypt and Lillian Clark as the unseen priestess.

OPERA ENDS YEAR IN GUFFAWS OF GAY BURLESQUE

Artists Make Pointed Fun of Their Fellows.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

With what was announced as the first and final performance of a music laden objet d'art entitled "Syringomyelia," the Chicago Grand Opera company finished its second season last night in a burst of uproarious laughter, a frank but good natured burlesque directed at the general cause of opera, at those who direct its course, at those who go to see it, and finally at the critics who write about it.

For perhaps the first time since opera was invented, certainly for the first time since Chicago started its own opera company back in the year 1910, opera was willing to make fun of itself, to admit that serious things could be parodied, to get itself off from a lofty pinnacle of educational uplift down to the plane of nothing but amusement with a satirical point to it.

A Versatile Artist.

Perhaps this was best illustrated by one person. Those of you who were in the Civic Opera house during the afternoon had occasion to observe with what dignity, forcefulness, and dramatic power Carlo Morelli did the name part of "Rigoletto." If you came back in the evening you saw the same artist doing a triumph of, not exactly impersonation, but witty comment on every outstanding mezzo-soprano in the world. He appeared as Sophonisba Salome in the Antipas Café cabaret, singing and dancing with altogether unexpected grace. Altogether he offered a genuine and pointed criticism on the whole subject.

Afternoon Offering Is Striking.

It was preceded in the afternoon by the above mentioned "Rigoletto," wherein Rosalinda Morini came in at short notice and gave a brilliant interpretation of Gilda; Giuseppe Bentonelli made his customarily lyric and dramatic picture as the duke; Mr. Morelli was a great Rigoletto, and Ada Paggi was immense as Maddalena.

The evening performance followed the definition of a gala evening by being made up of various diverse operatic acts. In the beginning there was the second act of "Aïda," far from being what was printed on the program, since Anna Turkel appeared instead of Hilda Burke as Aïda, Myron Duncan instead of John Pane-Gasser as Radames, Sidor Belarsky instead of Chase Baromeo as Ramfis, Leo Kopp instead of Gennaro Papi as conductor, and there was no stage band, although there were four audible trumpets and eight inaudible ones.

A Very Quiet Crescendo.

At that, Coe Glade as Amneris carried the main load of a rather striking performance, and the triumph scene, though uncommonly quiet because of the lack of band, made a striking impression.

Next came the first act of "La Traviata," with Edith Mason, who has this season given new notions of what a Violetta ought to be, appearing again, and in one of the great hits of the season, Mr. Bentonelli, apparently restored from the spiritual difficulties of the afternoon, as Alfredo. There followed the ballet, "Gold Standard," with Ruth Page, Bentley Stone, Blake Scott, and Mark Turbyfill in the leading parts. Then came the burlesque.

Here was expressed in mocking verse and parodied example the difficulty of putting on opera, a directors' meeting of the company, with Paul Longone acted by Mr. Scott, explaining that he can get any kind of cast if he can spend $50,000, $60,000, or $70,000, the rest of the directors insisting that he must engage Americans who will sing for nothing. At length comes the American opera, "East Lynne."

A Glimpse Into the Future.

It develops into the Ride of the Valkyries, done on bicycles, the spinning quartet from "Martha" in sewing machines, finally "Salome" as it would be in a cabaret, with Mr. Morelli, Mr. Scott, Sonia Sharnova, Joseph Royer, Isaac Van Grove, and others as the leading characters. Since no one is able to kill Salome, they start to kill the prompter, but this is prevented by the entrance of Santa Claus, who distributes subscription blanks for next season. And with this hilarious ending, the audience last night and the public generally were assured that there would be a season next year. It is by no means a bad ending for the present series and a good hope for what is to come.

MISS HULBERT MAKES DEBUT

MISS ADELE EVERTSEN HULBERT.

Bows at Tea

For her debut tea yesterday afternoon Miss Adele Evertsen Hulbert wore a clinging gown of jade green crêpe with a silver lame jacket for contrast. Her flowers were orchids. Miss Hulbert and her mother, Mrs. Milan Hulbert Hulbert, received between 4 and 7 o'clock in the drawing room of their apartment at 3150 Sheridan road. The Hulberts have only recently come back to Chicago to live after extensive travels around the world and residence in the east.

7 BELIEVED DEAD WHEN AIRPLANE FALLS IN PACIFIC

Steamer Searches Ocean for Wreckage.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The steamship Sonora reported tonight by wireless it had sought unsuccessfully for the wreckage of a plane of the Aireas Occidentales believed to have carried seven persons to their deaths in the Pacific off Mazatlan, Mexico, today.

The message, intercepted by Radio-Marine corporation, read:

"Steamship Sonora, 125 miles west of Mazatlan, looking for fallen airship. We arrived at the place late in the afternoon with the shore plane from Mazatlan; searched within radius of 20 miles, but without results. Will repeat same again at daylight tomorrow with the aid of the shore plane."

Hunt Missing Mail Plane.

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 22—[U. P.]—Four National Guard planes will take off from Sky Harbor airport at dawn tomorrow to renew the search for a mail plane missing on the Louisville-Nashville route since early today.

American Airways officials had no reports of the missing ship at 9 p. m. tonight.

Russell Riggs, pilot and sole occupant, reported by radio last at 2:52 a. m., 12 minutes after he left the Louisville airport. The monoplane, a Lockheed Vega, carried sufficient fuel for five hours. Six planes searched fruitlessly over the route for eight hours today.

Maj. Walter Williams, commander of the 105th observation squadron, Tennessee National Guard, will direct the search. Each plane will carry a pilot and observer and be guided by a radio beam from the Louisville airport.

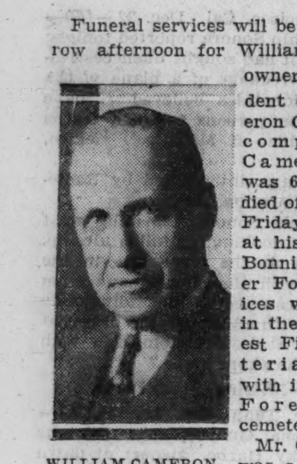
WM. CAMERON DIES; MAKER OF CAN MACHINERY

Scotland Born Inventor Is Pneumonia Victim.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon for William Cameron, owner and president of the Cameron Can Machine company. Mr. Cameron, who was 61 years old, died of pneumonia Friday afternoon at his home, 824 Bonnie Brae, River Forest. Services will be held in the River Forest First Presbyterian church, with interment at Forest Home cemetery.



WILLIAM CAMERON.
[Moffett photo.]

Mr. Cameron was a recognized authority in the manufacture of high speed automatic can manufacturing machinery. The company he headed maintains offices in Paris, London, Hongkong, and New York, and has agents all over the world.

Trade Learned in Scotland.

Mr. Cameron was born in Scotland, where he served his apprenticeship as a machinist, coming to Chicago in 1897. He held patents to numerous developments in the mechanical engineering field.

In addition to his prominence in the industrial and engineering field, Mr. Cameron was prominent in activities of Scots in America. He was president of the Illinois St. Andrew society, chairman of the board of directors of that organization, and past chief of the Clan Campbell, and held numerous offices in the Masonic lodge.

Inventor of Air Tester.

Mr. Cameron's greatest development in his own field was the invention of the air tester which separates the perfect cans from faulty ones at a speed of 300 a minute.

Although always prominent in the activities of Scots, he never was interested in golf. Aside from his professional activities his main interest was concentrated on game bird growing on a 1,300 acre preserve he maintained in Indiana.

He is survived by his wife, Kathryn, and four children, Allan, William Jr., Jean and Kenneth.

PLAN EPOCHAL CHRISTMAS RITES FOR CATACOMBS

ROME, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The ancient catacombs Christmas afternoon will be the site of a ceremony the early Christian never imagined could happen—a radio broadcast, and to a country they did not know existed, America.

Father Michael Ducey of the Catholic university at Washington, D. C., arranged the program. Bishop Joseph F. Busch of St. Cloud, Minn., will speak. Fifty Benedictine monks of the College of St. Anselm at Rome will chant Gregorian Christmas chants in the St. Domitilla catacomb fifty feet underground.

St. Gregory, father of this chant, once preached a famous sermon in the room where the broadcast will take place and one of the chants will be a hymn believed to have been sung in the catacombs nearly 2,000 years ago, called "Ubi Caritas Et Amor," or "Where Charity and Love Are There Is Christ."

ROOSEVELT'S SON IS ARRESTED ON SPEEDING CHARGE

Orange, Conn., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., a son of the President, was arrested here late today on a speeding charge by Policemen Carl A. Peterson and Joseph Cummings. Roosevelt was accompanied by his brother John.

Officer Peterson said Franklin, who was operating the car, passed a red light here and it was necessary to chase the Roosevelt car for some distance before it halted.

Franklin was given a summons to appear here Dec. 31. The President's sons were on their way home to Washington, D. C., from Cambridge, where they are students at Harvard university.

Mrs. Marcia R. Geraghty, Head of Factory, Is Dead

Mrs. Marcia R. Geraghty, 75 years old, president of Geraghty and Co., manufacturers of advertising novelties, died yesterday in her home at 832 Argyle street. Mrs. Geraghty was head of the concern founded by her late husband, John J. Geraghty, for five years. She was an active worker in many Catholic church and social organizations and served as chairman of St. Anne's Day nursery. Four children, two daughters and two sons, survive. Funeral services will be held tomorrow from the home at 9:30 a. m., with mass at 10 a. m. in St. Thomas of Canterbury church. Burial will be at Mount Carmel cemetery.

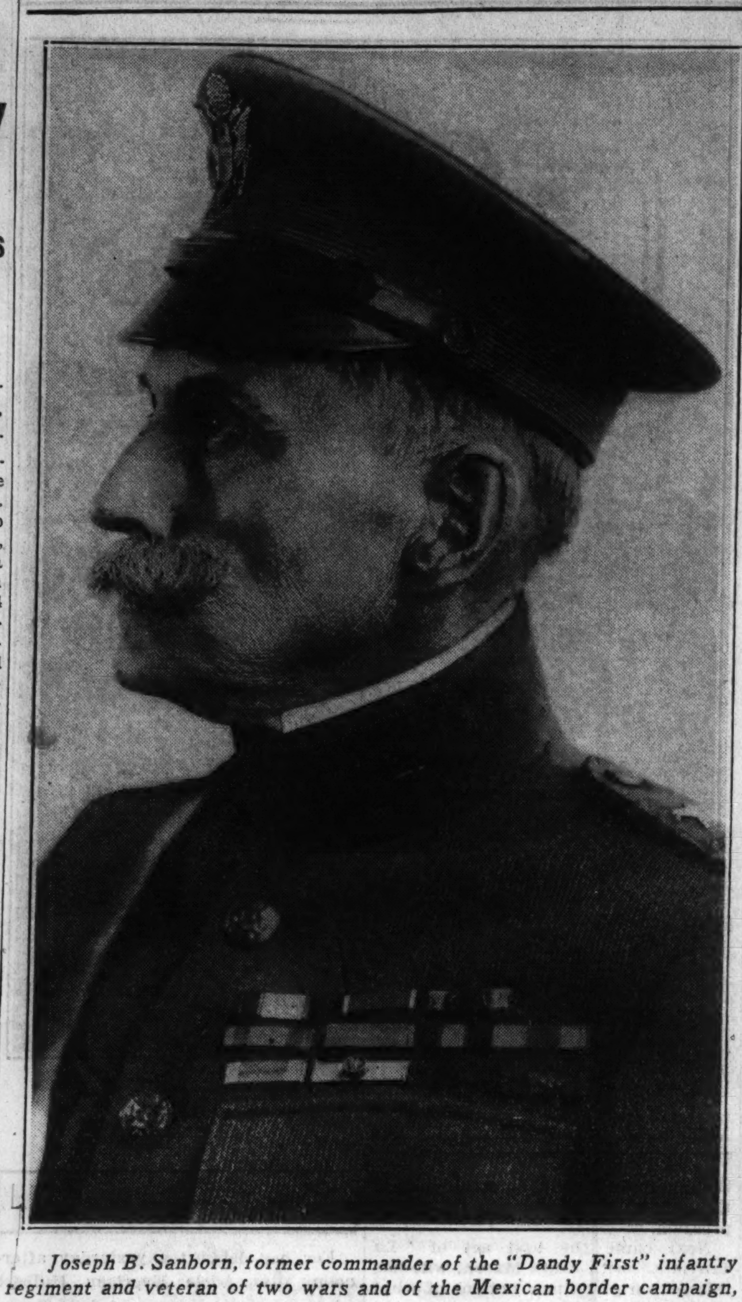
Mrs. Bilter, Daughter of an Elgin Founder, Dies

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Bilter, 79 years old, a resident of the Big Woods district near Aurora for 45 years, will be held at 3:30 p. m. today at the chapel at 332 Downer place, Aurora. Mrs. Bilter will be buried in Oak Woods cemetery, Chicago. She was a daughter of the late Dr. Halsey D. Rosecrans, one of the founders of Elgin, and a niece of William Starke Rosecrans, civil war general. Surviving her are four sons, Raymond and Eugene of Eola, Halsey, of Oak Park, and Hale, of West Chicago.

Victor McLaglen Says He and Wife Separated

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Victor McLaglen, he-man of the films, today announced that a separation had occurred between him and his wife, and that he is residing in a hotel. Mrs. McLaglen remains in the pretentious McLaglen estate near Flintridge. The couple have two children.

GEN. J. B. SANBORN DEAD



Joseph B. Sanborn, former commander of the "Dandy First" infantry regiment and veteran of two wars and of the Mexican border campaign, died yesterday after short illness. He had the rank of lieutenant general of militia, retired.

GEN. SANBORN IS DEAD; FAMOUS AS WARTIME OFFICER

Leader of 'Dandy First' Dies Suddenly.

tablished his post of command in a shell hole and directed the battle to a successful termination. The courage and fearlessness of Col. Sanborn, despite his advanced age, were remarkable to all under his command."

And the men under Sanborn's command in France had the same idea of the courage of their leader. During the war Sergt. C. William Keane of Chicago, himself a wearer of the British Military Cross, and who served in the 131st, said of his colonel:

"We were up there [in the Chipilly Ridge battle] badly shot up, and had had nothing to eat or drink for a couple of days until Col. Sanborn personally brought rations on his back under the most terrible fire I ever experienced."

Gen. Sanborn received the American Distinguished Service medal as well as the cross. In addition to his American and British decorations he was given the Belgian Order of Leopold, and the French Croix de Guerre with Palm. He was also made an officer of the Legion of Honor on a citation by Marshal Petain.

Fights in 25 Battles.

In all, during the war, he served in twenty-five engagements, including the Somme and Argonne-Meuse offensives.

On his return to the United States after the war he returned to business as head of the J. B. Sanborn company, mercantile agency, now located at 407 South Dearborn street. He retired from active business in 1925.

He also was a member of the state tax commission from 1919 to 1921. He was a member of the Society of Santiago, the American Legion, and the Masonic order.

Gen. Sanborn's first wife, Mrs. Julie Flanders Sanborn, died in 1922. Surviving are his second wife, a daughter, Mrs. Katherine Boice of Minneapolis, and three grandchildren. Another daughter, Mrs. Helen Kline, died several years ago.

Gen. Davis Recalls Career.

Brig. Gen. Davis, former commander of the 66th infantry brigade, enlisted in the old "Dandy First" and rose to the rank of major under Gen. Sanborn. Gen. Davis recalled last night how completely had Sanborn's life been bound up with the regiment.

"Gen. Sanborn was a member of the old cadet corps, from which the regiment was recruited," Gen. Davis said. "He served in every rank from private to colonel.

"After the Spanish-American war Col. Sanborn and his lieutenant colonel, who was later Gov. Frank O. Lowden, did yeoman service in rebuilding the personnel and in removing the large mortgage from the armory at 16th street and Michigan avenue.

How They Lifted Mortgage.

"As I recall it, the pair convinced the bondholders that they should tear up their bonds, thereby eliminating the mortgage.

"Gen. Sanborn was known as one of the best National Guard officers in the army. He was a strict disciplinarian and at the same time a fair man. He was a born soldier.

Gen. Garrity said Gen. Sanborn's death was a great loss to the military life of Chicago.

"He was revered as a fine soldier," he said.

Mrs. Caroline Mathews Janpolski Buried; Musician

Funeral services were held in Rosehill cemetery yesterday for Mrs. Caroline Mathews Janpolski, wife of Albert G. Janpolski, Russian singer and musical director. Mrs. Janpolski died in her New York home Wednesday. She was 54 years old. A native of Chicago and a member of a widely known Chicago family, Mrs. Janpolski was married here more than 25 years ago. She was a musician and accompanied her husband on concerts throughout the country. They had no children.

LOUIS WITTBOLD, PIONEER FLORIST IN CHICAGO, DIES

Succumbs at Winter Home at Pharr, Tex.

Louis Wittbold, pioneer Chicago florist, died in his winter home at Pharr, Tex., yesterday, according to word received here. He had been in ill health for the last three years, according to members of the family, and during that time had undergone three major operations.

LOUIS WITTBOLD.

Mr. Wittbold was born in Chicago Jan. 27, 1873, and was the son of George Wittbold, who in 1857 established one of the first greenhouses in the city. It was situated at Clark street and North avenue when the south area of what is now Lincoln park was a cemetery.

Enters Father's Business.

Educated in Chicago, Mr. Wittbold entered his father's business when a young man and eventually became president of the company, a position he held at his death. Six brothers also were interested in the company, but only two survive, Henry and Otto.

In 1928 Mr. Wittbold assembled a tract of 165 acres along Touhy avenue in the vicinity of Edgebrook forest preserves. He established his greenhouse at 6558 Loleta avenue and built a home there which is still maintained as the Wittbold Chicago residence.

Body To Be Returned Here.

He also formed the Wittbold Realty company to develop the property as a subdivision.

Mr. Wittbold is survived by his widow, Mrs. Alma Wittbold, two sons, Carl and John, and four grandchildren. Mrs. Wittbold and John were with him when he died. The body will be returned to Chicago, relatives here announced, for burial after Christmas. Arrangements will be announced later.

MAJ. BARTLETT, EX-CHICAGOAN, DIES IN KANSAS

Leavenworth, Kas., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Maj. Charles W. Bartlett, 60, of Kansas City, Mo., and formerly of Chicago, died today at the United States Veterans' hospital here.

During the world war Bartlett served one year as finance officer for the 89th division. When the American Legion national convention was held in Kansas City in 1921, he was chairman of the distinguished guest committee.

Maj. Bartlett at one time engaged in a manufacturing business in Chicago. He had been retired several years.

He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Anna F. Bartlett, Kansas City, a son, Spencer F. Bartlett, Chicago; a daughter, Mrs. Albert Collins, Kansas City, and a sister, Mrs. Nellie B. Chase, Chicago.

The funeral services will be held in Kansas City tomorrow afternoon. Burial will be Monday in Mount Hope cemetery, Joplin, Mo.

A. M. FOSTER DIES; DEAN OF BOTTLE TRADE

Adelbert M. Foster, 75 years old, dean of the glass bottle manufacturing industry, in which he was engaged for 60 years, died yesterday at the Presbyterian hospital. Mr. Foster was president of the Foster-Forbes company at Marion, Ind. He lived at 1220 Hinman avenue, Evanston. His home had been in the Chicago area for more than fifty years.

Mr. Foster was born in Stoddard, N. H. His club memberships included Chicago Athletic, Evanston and the Society of Mayflower Descendants. He was a Mason. Surviving are his widow, Lillian, and four children: Robert B. of London, England; John M., of Marion; Mrs. F. Miller Fargo Jr. of Plainfield, N. J., and Mrs. H. E. Board, of Evanston.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence, with interment at Memorial Park cemetery.

ISABEL O'NEILL IS DEAD AT 82; LONG A TEACHER

Funeral services for Miss Isabel A. O'Neill, 82 years old, for forty-five years a teacher in the public schools, will be held tomorrow morning frm the residence, 1451 Norwood street, to St. Gertrude's church. Burial will be at Calvary cemetery.

Miss O'Neill died Friday. Until her retirement ten years ago she had taught at the Lincoln and Audubon schools. She was the daughter of the late Judge John H. O'Neill of St. Louis and Chicago. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. L. C. Sangwinet of St. Louis and Mrs. Dan Reardon of Chicago, and a niece, Miss Isabel Reynolds, principal of the Onahan school.

Dan Desouza, Washington Reporter, Dies in Crash

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Dan Desouza, a reporter for the Washington Star and president of the Washington Newspaper Guild, was killed tonight in an automobile collision. William Peake, also a newspaper man, was injured. They were en route to Newark, N. J., with an automobile load of Christmas presents for the families of striking members of the Newspaper Guild there.

John Ingtis McClymont, 75, Colorado Artist, Is Dead

Colorado Springs, Colo., Dec. 22.—(AP)—John Ingtis McClymont, 75, an artist, died today after an illness of two weeks.

AUGUSTUS F. BEARD, OLDEST ALUMNUS OF YALE, IS DEAD AT 101

Norwalk, Conn., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The Rev. Augustus Field Beard, 101, Yale's oldest alumnus and reputed to be the oldest Congregational minister in the United States, died at his home here today.

THE REV. A. F. BEARD.

Dr. Beard, who was a relative of Dan Beard, noted in the national Boy Scout movement, had enjoyed excellent health until recently although his hearing had previously been somewhat impaired. He took his first airplane ride at the age of 100 and pronounced it a wonderful thrill. He also preached a sermon on his 100th birthday.

A stanch Republican, he voted in the last general election. His family persuaded him to use an absentee ballot though he had wanted to go to the polls. He wrote in a letter on his 101st birthday:

"I am too old and old-fashioned and way off from the 'New Deal' and its naw fangled theories. I am up to date in admiration of our President and his remarkable qualities but I do not think him infallible."

Edward Moore, Employe of Valve Company, Dead

Funeral services will be held in the chapel at 6338 North Clark street tomorrow afternoon for Edward Moore, 73 years old, 1727 Thorndale avenue, who died of a heart attack Friday in the offices of the Crosby Steam Gauge and Valve company, 549 West Randolph street.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES PLAN $4,000,000 SLASH IN BUDGET

Begin Paring Program to Avoid 7 Million Deficit.

The board of education yesterday began informally the work of paring a $79,182,081 tentative budget, representing a prospective deficit of $7,455,208 in the educational fund, to a figure which, President James B. McCahey predicted, will not only balance the budget but will hand the taxpayers a saving of at least $4,000,000 as compared with 1933.

This will be accomplished, Mr. McCahey said, despite the fact that there will be an increase of $1,586,198 in the bond redemption fund needed to repay on a federal loan which made possible payment of teachers' salaries and a $1,660,252 educational fund increase, largely necessary to satisfy teaching requirements of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Building Fund Reduction.

The proposed reduction, Mr. McCahey said, will come in the building fund, now set at $18,028,400, the full limit of the board's resources. The board's building program, which includes the construction of four new high schools and seven elementary school additions, is now estimated at $6,500,000, however.

The budget deficit now facing the board is restricted to the educational fund, showing resources of $40,915,756 and a tentative appropriation of $48,370,965, as compared with $46,710,713 appropriated last year.

"We have set our building fund appropriation tentatively at the full limit in order to have bargaining power in our request for a pegged educational fund levy from the state legislature," Mr. McCahey said. "In other words, if the pegged levy is granted, we'll increase the educational fund resources nearly $5,000,000, and we'll cut the building fund that amount. This will still leave an educational fund deficit of $2,000,000, which remains a problem before the board.

Plan Further Savings.

"However, we intend to balance that fund, and in addition we'll reduce the building fund further to the point where there'll be a great saving to the tax payer. We can do this by using materials processed for junior high schools in the new senior high schools and by building elementary school additions, rather than separate buildings. Slight changes in architectural plans will do this and save several millions of dollars."

The 1935 tentative budget, virtually unchanged, except for the increased building fund, will be formally presented at the board meeting Wednesday. A public hearing date will then be announced, and the board will seek to pass its budget by mid-January.

A report of 1934 education activities issued by the school officials yesterday showed that financial difficulties facing the system since early in 1931 have been largely brought under control during the past year and that the outlook for the schools is brighter than in many previous years.

Cites Year's Fine Record.

"We have had a very fortunate year," Mr. McCahey said. "School credit has been restored, teachers have been paid in full, accounts of general creditors have been reduced, and the educational program has been expanded."

Listed in this program was the opening of three new junior colleges, the opening of three new high schools, including Lane, described as one of the finest technical schools in the country, the elimination of 104 iron portables, in addition to 300 closed in 1933, the restoration of 145 principals to elementary schools, the addition of 103 teachers to the high schools, the addition of modern technical courses, such as air conditioning and aviation, and the payment of $26,000,000 in back salaries to teachers and employés.

BRITAIN TO PLACE 750,000 TILLERS OF SOIL ON DOLE

LONDON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Wide extension of the British dole system is contemplated, it was revealed today. Seven hundred and fifty thousand land workers who hitherto have been excluded from unemployment insurance are expected shortly to be brought within its scope.

The statutory committee which investigated the whole question has recommended inclusion of persons employed on the land, whether in straight farming or horticulture.

Weekly contributions probably will be the equivalent of 6 cents each for workers and employers and 12 cents by the government. For workers over 21 it is expected the benefit will be about $3 weekly with an extra 50 cents for wife and child. This proposed extension of the dole system to land workers will require parliamentary approval.

GREEK ASSASSIN TRIAL IS HALTED AFTER BOMBINGS

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Bombs thrown at the homes of jurors sitting in the trial of alleged assailants of former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos resulted today in indefinite postponement of the case.

The bombs were thrown two days ago, causing slight damage but terrifying the occupants. Several jurors, pleading they had been intimidated, failed to appear in court today. The judge ordered a fine of $150 each against them.

The trial of persons accused of the attempted assassination of the then premier, just a year ago, began Nov. 24 and had been postponed to today.

Earthquake of 15 Seconds Shakes Nicaragua Capital

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 22.—An earthquake lasting 15 seconds shook the capital at 8:30 a. m. today, sending an anxious populace into the streets. Although it caused no damage, according to available reports, the temblor seemed to have rocked the entire western slope.

Evanston Girl Weds Musician

MR. AND MRS. BOYD RAEBURN.

Notifies Parents

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Anderson, 814 Dobson street, Evanston, received a telegram yesterday from their daughter, Lorraine, 21 years old, at Memphis, Tenn., announcing her marriage Friday night to Boyd Raeburn, young orchestra leader. Mrs. Anderson said Lorraine left for the southern city three days ago to join the orchestra as soloist. Mrs. Anderson said her daughter graduated from the Evanston Township High school, attended Northwestern university, and studied singing under Dudley Buck.

Weekly Review of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Ready for Christmas.

EVERYBODY is ready for Christmas on the experimental farm. The snow that fell a few days ago trimmed all the spruces, pines, and red cedars on the farm and whitened the fields and woods. Mrs. Louis Thurow Sr. baked her old fashioned Christmas fruit cake several weeks ago. It has been mellowing on a pantry shelf since then. It won't be cut until the Christmas dinner is served. All the children here on the farm had early contacts with Santa Claus when they attended the rural school Christmas parties. They heard old Saint Nick arrive outside the school and then saw him come stamping into the schoolroom to distribute presents.

While Mrs. Thurow, who has lived on a Kendall county farm for 45 years, was busy yesterday with the Christmas tree, she was telling me of the big difference between this 1934 holiday season and some of those that she experienced during the early days in this county. Forty years ago a winter was not so easy to combat, she said. Instead of a modern heating system that furnishes hot water, the farm home four decades ago relied on the old oak heater, which called for cutting good sized chunks of wood, and then bringing them into the house on cold winter days to feed the fire. Now you can wake up and find the house warm in the morning, thanks to modern heating, but in the old days the wood fires burned low during the nights, and it was so chilly that the children were hustled down to the big heater to dress near it on cold mornings.

"I like to think of those old Christmas holidays," said Mrs. Thurow yesterday, "because they always meant a thrilling ride to the church Christmas party behind a frisky team of horses. Mr. Thurow always kept a fast driving team for the buggy or the cutter, and it was great fun driving across the snow covered country to the music of sleighbells. I remember one Christmas holiday season when the snow was so deep that Mr. Thurow carried a hammer and a pair of pincers in the cutter to cut fences, because the roads were blotted out and we had to drive across country through the fields to get to town.

"Now that thrill of country life is gone. The highways are kept clear of snow. Instead of cutters and fast horses, we have the automobile."

"In the early days of farming here in Kendall county," Mrs. Thurow continued, "we had to ford the river to get to Plano because there was no bridge. Well do I remember going across that stream with Mr. Thurow to go after a doctor on a day when the icy water almost came into our sleigh. Now we can step to the telephone if we wish to call a doctor. That is just one example of how all the modern things on the farm make life easier, especially during the winter."

The snow on the farm has made the old bob sled out here a real bit of atmosphere for the Christmas and winter scenery. The sled is in use every day. Yesterday the boys hitched up a team and hauled water on the sled from the supply furnished by the hydraulic ram, because the windmill near Guenther's house hasn't been working enough to furnish water for the stock.

The youngsters on the farm are figuring on a bob sled ride Christmas day, so they want the snow to stay. In fact, they said yesterday that they wished it would snow some more. With turkeys scheduled for the Christmas dinners, and snow to provide the true Christmas atmosphere, the farm is ready for a happy holiday season.

Courtney's Staf Surprises Him with Birthday Party

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney left his office hastily yesterday afternoon in response to an urgent summons from First Assistant Wilbert F. Crowley. A half hour later he returned to his office, somewhat perplexed, because Crowley really had nothing important to discuss. He found his office bedecked with Christmas wreaths and on his desk was a vase containing 48 roses. Several dozen members of his staf were gathered. Then Mr. Courtney remembered that yesterday was his 48th birthday.

U. S. COURT SENDS CONFORTI GIRL TO PRISON FOR YEAR

Madison, Wis., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Marie Conforti, 21 year old gangster's girl, was sentenced in federal court here today to serve a year and a day of imprisonment at Alderson, W. Va., for associating with her sweetheart, Homer Van Meter, while on parole.

Last summer the girl pleaded guilty before Federal District Judge Patrick T. Stone to harboring John Dillinger, Thomas Carrol, and other members of the gang when federal agents raided the Little Bohemia resort at Spider Lake, Wis.

She was sentenced by the court but her sentence was suspended on her promise not to associate with members of the old gangland crowd. In court today, the girl insisted she had tried to avoid her gangster friends, but that her fear of being killed by them and her need for money after failing to find work forced her to return.

"Homer and Johnny [Van Meter and Dillinger] were afraid I was going to sell out and they even thought I talked too much when I was in court here before. I was afraid they'd kill me if I didn't go along with them," said the girl.

200 PRISONERS IN ARGENTINA FIGHT GUARDS; 2 KILLED

CORDOBA, Argentina, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The provincial government today was investigating an uprising of 200 prisoners in the province penitentiary last night in which two were killed and one was wounded by guards who quelled the riot.

One hundred prisoners from one cell block, attempting to fight their way to freedom with sticks and clubs, entered another cell block to be joined by 100 there.

The rioters locked several guards in cells and then attempted unsuccessfully to set fire to the print and carpenter shops. Prison guards then fired several shots, dispersing the group, and returned the prisoners to their cells. The three victims all were serving sentences for murder.

Plays Last Hand of Losing Game of Euchre; Falls Dead

Michigan City, Ind., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Losing in a game of euchre Robert Langman, 74, farmer, slumped in his chair in a tavern this afternoon, dead of a heart attack. Langman had just played his last hand and had finished adding the score on the table with a piece of chalk when he fell back.

COMMUNITY FUND NEAR GOAL; ONLY $10,000 NEEDED

New Tabulation Shows Leaders of Drive.

With subscriptions to the 1934 Community fund less than $10,000 short of the $3,000,000 goal set by the fund committee, contributions by the various trades and business groups were tabulated yesterday. The public utilities, their executives and employés, led all other groups with a total of $332,982 contributed.

The machinery industry was second with $263,667, while the packing industry was third with $249,575. The city's banks were fourth with $210,969. The total subscribed to date is $2,990,989.

The fund is allocated among 130 charities in the city. The total requirements of these charities during the year amount to nearly $7,000,000. Distribution of the Community fund among its recipients has already begun, it was announced.

A list of other trades and business groups and the amounts they have contributed follows:

Fred A. Preston, general chairman of the fund committee, sent Christmas greetings to more than 1,000 business men who were active in the campaign.

TIME EXTENDED IN SUBSCRIPTION PRIZE CONTEST

The Newspaper Carriers' association announced yesterday that the offer of free Christmas gifts to boys and girls of Chicago and the suburbs has been extended to Dec. 31 so that those who have already obtained part but not all of the necessary subscriptions may participate in the prizes.

Thousands of contestants have already received presents which include 25 inch talking dolls, American Flyer electric trains and hocky and racing skates. The prizes are awarded for obtaining from two to five subscriptions for home delivery of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the Chicago Daily News or the Journal of Commerce.

"This announcement means that we are allowing one more week's time to those who have already entered," said Joseph Epstein, president of the association. "The extension will not apply to new entrants."

The association's offices in room 1224, North American building, 36 South State street, will be open all day tomorrow for those who wish to report.

FREE METHODISTS MAY LIFT BAN ON MUSIC IN CHURCH

Free Methodist churches, which for years have banned the use of any musical instrument in their houses of worship, may lift the ban on organ and piano music; the use of church bells also may be permitted. Members of the one thousand congregations of the country are now voting on the question by sealed ballots. The result of the voting will be announced in June at the annual conference.

The ban was placed on musical instruments seventy years ago. The reason, according to J. M. Wolfe, pastor of the Englewood Free Methodist church, was that all members could not play musical instruments and it was decided that none should play.

If the Free Methodists remove the ban on instrumental music only one major denomination will exist in which such complement to worship is prohibited. That organization is the Christian church, an offshoot of the Disciples church. In both organizations singing is permitted.

PLAN EXPERIMENT TO AID BACHELOR RELIEF "CLIENTS"

Act to Speed Personal Adjustments.

Departure from the present method of shelter care for nonfamily relief "clients" was revealed yesterday in a plan under consderation by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. Leo M. Lyons, Cook county relief administrator, recommended that an experimental group of 500 men be taken from the shelters and placed in private domiciles and given work which would make it possible for them to provide fuel and food. This would mean greater cost to the commission.

"Some men with a high degree of training and skill, many of them with professional degrees and having had, during other periods, substantial incomes," said Mr. Lyons, "are finding it extremely difficult to make adjustment under the congregate housing program.

Outdoor Relief Projects.

"In order to preserve the resources of these men and remove, as fully as possible, the difficulties they face in regaining positions approximating those formerly held. I have arranged 'outdoor relief' as an experiment."

These men, under the plan, would be provided with unfurnished rooms without heat, or with furnished room or rooms in lodging houses. They would be enabled to buy necessities with pay received from working on relief projects. Up to the present all work relief assignments have been given to family men.

Plan $11 to $27 Monthly Pay.

They would receive from $11.65 to $27.90 a month, but, Mr. Lyons declared, only a small number would receive the top figure. In contrast, the present cost of supporting men in Cook county shelters is only $4 a month because of mass methods, according to an official bulletin of the statistical department. Mr. Lyons said, however, that the actual cost is nearly twice this much, "if everything is included."

On the basis of the official figures, the increased cost of providing for the experimental group would be about $7,500 a month.

Mayor of San Diego Faces Trial as Hit and Run Driver

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Rutherford B. Irones, San Diego's mayor, was accused today of being a hit and run driver. His preliminary hearing was set for Jan. 4. George Dewey Pickett, navy machinist's mate, charged his wife was injured seriously Nov. 23 when their car was sideswiped by a heavy sedan he identified as the mayor's car.

MALARIA SWEEPS THROUGH CEYLON; HUNDREDS DYING

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Dec. 22.—[U. P.]—Dreaded malaria swept like a scourge through Ceylon tonight, killing hundreds and ravaging thousands as overtaxed medical centers proved inadequate to stem the epidemic. Authorities estimated one-tenth of the population of 5,312,000 was affected. Some sources reported the dead at more than 2,000.

Colombo hospitals registered 82 deaths. Hundreds were dead or dying in outlying villages. Most of the victims were children and it was no uncommon sight to see a father, dead child over his shoulder and spade in hand, trudging along to dig a grave.

Bells tolled as the bereaved, many themselves ill, saw members of their family carried away to burial grounds. Many villages were without food or water.

Traced to Polluted Water.

Medical officials traced the epidemic to polluted water occasioned by a severe drouth. Regular and volunteer nurses worked to the point of exhaustion, caring for the stricken populace.

In Columbo alone they were treating upward of 500 victims daily, administering quinine, the recognized cure, in such quantities that the supply was threatened. To offset this, 2,000 pounds were received from India, 1,000 pounds from Java and 15,000 additional pounds were en route from India and England.

The sufferers were treated in 37 government hospitals, 300 dispensaries and 167 medical centers which were set up at strategic points as the epidemic spread.

Boost Price of Quinine.

Many apothecaries took advantage of the outbreak to profiteer, hiking the price of quinine from $7.45 a pound to $27.94.

Few, if any, Europeans were stricken in the epidemic. They adhered strictly to preventative measures of physicians such as boiling water and otherwise fortifying themselves against the malady.

BEG YOUR PARDON

By error, it is stated in the north side metropolitan section of today's TRIBUNE that the marriage of Miss Petrina R. Attardo to Walter S. Szymanski took place yesterday. The marriage and wedding reception at the Medinah Club will be on Dec. 29.

TORONTO BEATS HAWKS, 1-0, IN LAST 2 MINUTES

N. U. WINS FIFTH IN ROW, 39-26; WISCONSIN LOSES, 33-25

FISHER LEADS DRIVE AGAINST MICHIGAN STATE

Veteran Piles Up 17 Points.

Northwestern's basketball team scored its fifth consecutive triumph by turning back Michigan State, 39 to 26, at Patten gymnasium last night.

The Wildcats easily held command all the way with the exception of the last two minutes of the opening period, when the Spartans unloosed a rally that came within two points of tying the count. The score at the halfway point was 16 to 14 in favor of the Purple.

Once again it was reliable Lyle Fisher, veteran forward, who supplied the Wildcats with the scoring punch that meant the difference between victory and defeat. As has been the case in all of the games to date, Fisher led the scoring. He piled up 17 points on seven field goals and three free throws. The rangy forward now boasts a total of 82 points in five games, for an average of 16 points a game.

Fisher Starts Spree.

Fisher started the Wildcats on a scoring spree at the outset of the second half. Five of his seven baskets came during this rapid fire splurge that sent the Purple into a comfortable lead that enabled them to coast along with a substitute lineup in the closing minutes of the game.

The Spartans conceded several inches in height per man to their Big Ten opponents. Arnold Van Faasen, lanky center, led the visitors in scoring with seven points, but it was the defensive work of Rogers and Herrick, midget guards, that stood out. The latter's removal on fouls in the second half took away much of Michigan State's defensive strength.

Pile Up Early Lead.

The Wildcats ran up a 14 to 4 lead in the first ten minutes of play and seemed headed for a walkaway when the visitors turned on the steam to score eight straight points to trail, 14 to 12. McAnally scored the second of his two field goals of the half to widen the gap, only to have Van Faasen pitch in a long basket just as the gun sounded to bring the score to 16 to 14.

Northwestern wasted no time in running up a wide margin in the second period. Three field goals by Fisher and one each by McAnally and Kawal sent the home team out in front, 26 to 14, a margin that was maintained until the end.

BADGERS LOSE, 33-25

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Marquette's basketball team displayed its best form of the season to snap Wisconsin's winning streak in the Auditorium tonight, 33 to 25. A capacity crowd of 6,100 watched the Hilltoppers, led by Capt. Ray Morstadt and Jim Rasmusen, square season's accounts with the Badgers.

Morstadt made five field goals and three free throws for 13 points. Rasmusen's contribution was five baskets, all in the first half, and a free throw. Marquette led at the intermission, 19 to 14.

Marquette Likes Auditorium.

Marquette never has been beaten by a Wisconsin team in the Auditorium. It was the sixth time in the last nine meetings the Hilltopper five has won.

Once Marquette established its lead, it played conservatively. This was especially true in the last ten minutes. Personal fouls took Al Ehrig and Cy Rubado of Marquette and Ed Stege and Rolf Poser of the Badgers.

Marquette missed 12 times from the free throw line, Morstadt being charged with nine. Wisconsin tossed away six potential points in this manner.

RACING SERVICE CITES ROBBERS OF OLD IN SUIT

Shades of English highwaymen, dead these 200 years, stalked through Circuit Judge John Prystalski's court room yesterday as attorneys of the General News Bureau, Inc., horse race information bureau, Moe L. Annenberg and associate defendants, sought dismissal on jurisdictional grounds of the $1,000,000 suit for accounting brought by Jack Lynch and other stockholders.

A court of equity never has and never should take cognizance of a suit for accounting of profits in an illegal business, Defense Attorneys Robert N. Golding and Albert Fink declared. They contended that the General News Bureau's only source of income was from supplying gamblers and handbook operators with a service which made their existence possible.

Cites Case of 1725.

In support of his argument that courts of equity have refused to interfere in squabbles between partners engaged in an illegal business, Golding referred to the celebrated "Highwaymen's Case" in England, back in 1725, as the first evidence on record.

"This was a suit brought by one Everett against his partner, Williams," Golding explained. "Everett represented himself and his partner as skilled workmen dealing successfully in certain commodities, such as watches, rings, and other trinkets. Everett claimed his partner had not accounted properly for their profits.

"When the deputy remembrancer, corresponding to our master in chancery, found that the partners were in fact accomplished thieves, he threw the bill out of court."

Questions Court's Authority.

While Golding did not mean to infer that the operations of these highwaymen pertained directly to the suit in question, he declared a court of equity could not divide the profits of an illegal business or help any one to get a disputed share of them.

"Why, if chancellors were to become accustomed to grant aid to participants in such businesses," he re-

Temple's Second Half Attack Crushes Indiana Five, 50-30

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—After outplaying Temple during most of the first half, Indiana university's basketball team faltered before a drive staged by the Owls that carried the Philadelphians to a one sided victory tonight, 50 to 30.

The Hoosiers scored soon after the first half opened and after six minutes of play held a 4 to 0 advantage over their eastern rivals. At this point, however, Temple scored once from the foul line and twice from the field to take a 5 to 4 lead.

Gunning scored from the floor to put the Hoosiers ahead again and from that point, until with only two minutes remaining to play, Temple trailed Indiana, 15 to 11. Temple's offensive then began to click and at half time the Owls had passed the Hoosiers and led, 19 to 15.

In the second half Temple scored 31 points to 15 for the Hoosiers. Gunning was high scorer for Indiana, with seven field goals and three free throws. Eleven of his points were scored in the first half. The lineup:

LOYOLA LOSES, 22-16

St. Ambrose of Davenport, Ia., handed Loyola its second defeat of the week by beating the Ramblers, 22 to 16, at the Loyola gymnasium last night. Marv Colen of Loyola led the scoring with two baskets and five free throws. All but Gustitus of St. Ambrose's first team made five points each.

Loyola took the lead in the opening minutes when Schuessler scored with a field goal. Murray added a free throw and Colen succeeded on two chances from the free throw line. At the end of the first quarter the Ramblers held a 7 to 6 lead, but from then on they failed to hit the baskets with any regularity.

Dvorsky, Pahl, and Gustitus broke through the baskets to give St. Ambrose a 12 to 7 advantage at half time.

During the first ten and a half minutes of the final period the Chicagoans compiled 3 points on Schuessler's shot and Colen's free throw. St. Ambrose picked up 10 points to assure the triumph. Loyola's offense began to function in the last two minutes, but clever control of the ball by St. Ambrose cut short the rally.

PURDUE WINS, 34-31

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Purdue won a fast and thrilling basketball game from Butler here tonight, 34 to 31.

A crowd of 7,000 was in a continuous uproar during the last fifteen minutes as the Boilermakers ate up a lead which Butler had maintained since early in the game. The Bulldogs were ahead at the half, 19 to 15.

In winning, Purdue broke a jinx which the Butler fieldhouse floor has held on the Boilermakers' basketball teams. It was the first time Purdue has beaten Butler in the fieldhouse, the Bulldogs having won three previous games.

Butler had possession of the ball during most of the first period, but lost the advantage as Purdue's swift breaking offense picked up speed. Lineup:

BEARS CONQUER DODGERS, 20-6, IN KNOXVILLE GAME

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The Chicago Bears' professional football team scored a 20 to 6 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers here today on a soggy gridiron before a crowd of 5,000.

The southern fans, accustomed only to the college variety of football, were amazed and delighted by the colorful laterals, bullet forward passes and the powerful running of the Bears and Dodgers. The Bears registered 12 first downs to one for the Dodgers.

The game was played on the Knoxville baseball field after the University of Tennessee had refused use of its stadium because of "our opposition to professional football."

After a scoreless first quarter the Bears opened up their aerial offense which soon netted a touchdown.

Manders Misses Kick.

Keith Molesworth threw to Bernie Masterson for 15 yards, placing the ball on the Dodgers' 20 yard line midway in the second period. The Brooklyn defense stiffened and Jack Manders tried for a field goal. The effort was low and wide. After the Dodgers had kicked out of danger Masterson, Manders and Johnny Sisk took turns advancing the ball goalward. The touchdown came when Masterson faked a lateral to Molesworth and then shot a 19 yard pass to Sisk, who ran 14 yards to the goal. Manders kicked the extra point.

The half ended with the Bears leading, 7 to 0. The third quarter was a thriller. The Bears kicked off to the Dodgers. After they advanced to their own 39 yard line Kercheval punted 53 yards, the ball going out of bounds on the Bears' 8 yard line.

Pass Called Back.

George Corbett took the ball from center and threw a flat pass to Luke Johnsos, who ran about 12 yards and then lateraled to Beattie Feathers, who ran 29 yards farther. Officials ruled that Johnsos' pass to Feathers was a forward instead of a lateral, so the ball was brought back to the point where Johnsos let go of the ball. Bronko Nagurski fumbled a couple of

SILVER SKATES DERBIES WILL BE HELD JAN. 12-13

Waveland Rink Site of Races Again.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The eighteenth annual Silver Skates Derbies, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be held on Jan. 12 and 13 at the Waveland avenue skating ponds in Lincoln park. Today an entry blank is printed for the first time, which will permit thousands of Chicago's skaters to enter in the seven Derbies.

The contests are the oldest in sports promotional history in Chicago. The number of entries has reached 5,000 in several years, which figure tops all American records for skating competition. There is no entry fee and no requirement other than proper age classification and, for those boys and girls 16 years of age and over, membership in the Western Skating association, governing body for this territory.

Events Are Listed.

The list of Derbies, age limits, qualifying distances, and finals' distances follows:

MEN'S SENIOR—18 years and over. 1 mile qualifying. 2 miles final.

BOYS' INTERMEDIATE—16 and 17 years, half mile qualifying, 1 mile final.

BOYS' JUNIOR—14 and 15 years, quarter mile qualifying, half mile final.

BOYS' JUVENILE—12 and 13 years, 220 yards qualifying, quarter mile final.

BOYS' MIDGET—Under 12 years, 110 yards qualifying, 220 yards final.

GIRLS' SENIOR—16 years and over, half mile qualifying, 1 mile final.

GIRLS' JUNIOR—Under 16 years, quarter mile qualifying, half mile final.

This program of events permits all boys and girls to enter the competition for the Silver Skates. Beginning with the first race in 1917 when only one age class, the men's senior, was held, the Derbies have been expanded gradually until, with the adoption of the boys' midget class in 1931, the list of seven has been reached.

Prizes for All.

The awards, five in each of the seven races, are unsurpassed. Each winner will receive a pair of silver skates. Those placing second and third will be awarded plated silver and bronze skates. Fourth and fifth places in the seven Derbies will win silver and bronze medals. In the three longest races, the men's senior, boys' intermediate, and girls' senior, gold medals will be given for those skaters who lead for the greatest number of laps.

In addition, each skater who reports for his or her racing number will be awarded a bronze button, emblematic of the events.

The races were held last winter at, the Waveland avenue field. This year it was decided to utilize the facilities of the Waveland avenue fieldhouse and the rinks again. Since these are flooded surfaces, only two days of freezing weather are necessary to prepare the courses.

Preliminaries on First Day.

The commissioners of the Chicago Park district, in which Lincoln park is located, have granted the permit for the Derbies. The Western Skating association, under whose auspices the Derbies will be held, has sanctioned the meet and granted Jan. 12 and 13 for the Derbies.

Preliminaries in all of the larger classes will be held on Saturday afternoon. Further announcements will be made. These announcements will include the time to report for racing numbers and the starting times. All other preliminaries and all seven championships will be decided on Sunday afternoon.

The entry blank is sufficient for individual entry. Team entries may be made by the coach, captain, or manager if the ages of all contestants are certified. Mail all entries to Wilfrid Smith, Sports Department, CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Entries close at midnight Jan. 6.

NEXT N. U. COACH MUST HAVE TACT, TECHNIQUE: SCOTT

President of University Outlines Code of Requirements

The standards and qualifications which will govern Northwestern in the selection of a new football coach were announced yesterday by Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of the university.

In preparing the "personnel specifications for a football coach," Dr. Scott drew upon his experiences as director of classification of personnel during the world war. These duties consisted of drawing up specifications for every position in the army, 565 in all.

The specifications which will be used by the athletic committee in selecting a football coach are patterned after those prepared for the army. Dr. Scott also called upon his knowledge as a psychologist, a field in which he gained fame before becoming president of the university.

Turning out winning teams is only one of the three requirements of the Wildcats' new coach, according to Dr. Scott's specifications. The coach also will be expected "to develop men physically, mentally, and morally, and to promote friendly relations with colleagues, officials, other universities, alumni, students, prospective freshmen, and with the public."

Among the qualifications essential to performing such duties, Dr. Scott lists "football technique, leadership, coöperation, scholarly interest, and high moral standards."

Dr. Scott's specifications follow:

"A football coach should b able to perform such duties as the following:

"1 To produce good teams. We cannot expect our coach to produce a winning team every year, but every game should manifest wisdom in tactics and skill in performance.

"2 To develop men physically, mentally, and morally. It is more important to develop men than to train teams and the coach must be a teacher as well as a trainer.

"3 To promote friendly relationships. This includes friendly relationships with colleagues, officials, other universities, alumni, students, prospective freshmen, and with the public.

"To perform these duties successfully a coach should possess such qualifications as the following:

"Football technique — Practical knowledge arising from experience as a player and coach, and theoretical knowledge arising from experience as a student of the game.

"Leadership—Tact and force in inspiring others to unite in a common purpose and to exert maximum efficiency in its accomplishment.

"Coöperation — Ground mindedness such that he will join enthusiastically with others in the work of his department, the university, and the conference.

"Scholarly interest—Appreciation of the broader aims of the university and concern for the scholastic attainments of the football players.

"High moral standards—Such as are characteristic of a gentleman capable of creating and maintaining a fine sense of sportsmanship among the men under his jurisdiction, and of promoting the highest ethical standards in his organization."

Accompanying Dr. Scott's code of requirements was the announcement that no offers have been made to any coach to succeed Dick Hanley, who resigned last week. It was indicated, however, that the committee has several well known men under consideration.

Ray Morrison, coach and athletic director at Southern Methodist university, visited friends in Evanston yesterday and called on Tug Wilson, Northwestern athletic director, and Dr. Scott. Morrison was made acquainted with the Northwestern situation, but was made no offer. He left last night for New York to attend the national coaches' meeting without intimating whether he would accept or refuse if the committee decided to make him an offer.

RANGERS ACQUIRE HAROLD STARR FROM MAROONS

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 22.—[U. P.]—Harold Starr, former Montreal Maroons defense man, has been sold to the New York Rangers, Tommy Gorman, manager of the Montreal club, announced here tonight.

Starr, a sturdy player of the hard hitting type, was farmed out this year to the Windsor, Ont., club of the International Hocky league. He will report to the Rangers at once.

Gorman revealed also the recall of Sammy McManus, left winger, who was undergoing early professional hocky seasoning at Windsor.

McManus came up to the Maroons this fall from the Canadian and international amateur hocky champions, the Moncton Hawks. He will report to the Maroons at Montreal Monday morning.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 22.—(AP)—A penalty to Bill Kendall in the final 2 minutes of play enabled the Toronto Maple Leafs to defeat the Chicago Blackhawks, 1 to 0, in a National Hocky league game before 14,000 tonight.

Harvey Jackson took a pass from Hec Kilrea at the blue line, coasted in and beat Goalie Lorne Chabot shortly after Kendall had been sent off for tripping Harold Cotton in the third period. The time was 18:29.

The result did not alter the position of the two teams as leaders of their respective divisions in the national league.

Goalies are Stars.

So closely did the teams check and so fierce was the play that 20 penalties were called. A majority of these were for tripping. The excellent play of Goalies George Hainsworth and Chabot was the principal reason for the first two periods.

An impressive tribute to the memory of Charlie Gardner, one of hocky's greatest goalies, was held before the game. The throng stood for two minutes while a picture of the former Blackhawk star and captain in his familiar goal-tending pose, was thrown on a screen. At one end of the rink a bugler sounded the last post.

Day took March out of the first play after the opening faceoff and started goalward. Chabot stopped nicely, however, and the teams battled through a rough period to a scoreless tie.

Boys Wrestle a Bit.

Trudel went down for Chicago and almost scored on a trick shot from the corner. Hainsworth juggled the unexpected shot, but Cook missed the loose puck in front of the goal, wasting the best scoring chance of the period.

Kendall was still in the penalty box for tripping Primeau in the last few seconds of the first period as the second period opened. Toronto's gang attack was held at bay until Kendall came back. Hainsworth made a spectacular save on Cook, then on Trudel to avert a Chicago score.

Boll and Coulter began wrestling in a corner and the game was held up while the referee and players argued. No penalty was called. A moment later, however, Day was put off for tripping. The Hawks piled in on Hainsworth while they had an advantage. The attack failed.

Penalty Proves Costly.

Thompson, Primeau, March, and Jackson followed each other to the bench for minor infractions and play slowed up as the teams played with four men apiece.

Play continued fiercely in the third period with both teams rifling the puck at the goalies in spirited forays.

Kendall was penalized for tripping Cotton in the 18th minute, and it proved costly for Jackson scored with less than two minutes to go, taking Kilrea's pass as the pair reached the blue line.

PLAY CANADIENS TONIGHT

A bit travel worn because of their strenuous week-end, the Blackhawks will return home today, but there will be no rest for them. Tonight they will meet the Montreal Canadiens at the Stadium in their third National Hocky league game in four days.

Tonight's game marks the Canadiens' first visit to the Stadium this season. The flying Frenchmen will present several new faces. Missing from the Montreal ranks and now wearing Blackhawk uniforms are three former Canadien stalwarts, Howie Morenz, Marty Burke, and Lorne Chabot and facing them in Canadien colors will be Roger Jenkins and Leroy Goldsworthy, Blackhawks of last year.

This year the Canadiens run from Gallic to Gaelic and the roster shows Riley, Jenkins, McGill, and Crutchfield, names with the ring of Erin to them, and Cude, who was born in Wales. Of the old guard carrying on for the Canadiens there is Aural Joliat, one of hocky's tiniest men and likewise one of its greatest players.

BOWL BATTLE WILL SETTLE 7 YEAR ARGUMENT

Alabama on Way West; Stanford Fit.

Player Under Knife

DEL RIO, Tex., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Bill Young, member of the Alabama football team en route to the Pacific coast for the Rose Bowl engagement with Stanford, underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis here late tonight.

Young, stricken on the train just before it reached Del Rio, was rushed to a hospital. The train was held in the yards pending the outcome of the operation. Earlier in the day, at San Antonio, Coach Frank Thomas announced that Jim Whatley, regular left tackle, had been stricken with a slight attack of appendicitis but would be able to play in the New Year's day game at Pasadena.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 22.—An intersectional argument which has remained inconclusive since Jan. 1, 1927, will be decided seven years later when Stanford's Red Shirts, champions of the Pacific gridiron terrain, bump into the granite forward wall of University of Alabama's football team in the annual Rose Bowl game here New Year's day.

In 1927 Stanford and Alabama played a 7 to 7 tie. The Stanford boys always thought they should have won that game inasmuch as they put over twelve first downs to the southerner's six and gained 309 yards to the Tuscaloosa eleven's 105. But the Palo Alto team couldn't get to that Dixie goal line more than once, and the southerners scored in one sharp, alert sally, leaving an argument which heaps a bit more fuel onto the fires of competition for next week's fray.

Stanford Stronger Than Ever.

Stanford, which has played four Rose Bowl games, and won only one of them, although looking good throughout most of the playing period of all four games, will come to Pasadena stronger this time than ever before.

Bobby Grayson, who hurls his 196 pounds into the line on bucks, or streaks through a broken field with equal celerity, has recovered from the effects of two fractured ribs. Word from Palo Alto is that Grayson's injuries have responded gratifyingly to treatment and that Stan Anderson, substitute at full back, has sufficiently recovered from influenza to guarantee additional power at that key job in the Stanford running offense.

Monk Moscrip, Stanford's outstanding end, and his partner, Keith Topping, at the other wing, both of whom suffered knee injuries, also are pictured in the best of condition. Moscrip does Stanford's field goal kicking.

Other Players Fit.

The rest of the Stanford players, who have been keeping in shape by occasional scrimmages and a lot of speed and formation work, are due here the day after Christmas in a condition described as the absolute pink. Led by Coaches Tiny Thornhill and Ernie Nevers, they will arrive two days following the welcome accorded to Alabama's big boys, who come in Monday, and who are so intent on keeping their physical edge for this game that they even sent word ahead, asking to be excused from Christmas feeds and parties.

Contrary to what might be expected, many of the coast football writers are stringing with Alabama to get no worse than a tie. Alabama has been represented in the Rose Bowl three times, and each of the three teams was exceptionally scrappy and exceptionally alert. What an alert team can do to a more powerful Stanford football machine was shown in last year's New Year's Bowl game, when a light Columbia eleven scored a 7 to 0 victory over Grayson, Moscrip, Reynolds, Bones Hamilton, Muller, Topping, Alustiza, and all the rest of the current edition of Stanford's coast championship team.

Powerful Alabama Line.

Playing an adapted Notre Dame system under Frank Thomas, one of the late Knute Rockne's quarter backs, Alabama brings an extremely powerful line. Bulwarks of this wall are Capt. Bill Lee, 230 pound tackle and Don Hutson, pass snatching end, and Charlie Marn, 220 pound guard. The line averages more than 200 pounds.

It probably will be the best line Stanford has met this year, and the writer saw Stanford's running plays stopped fairly well by a spotty but hard fighting scrimmage line of University of California at Los Angeles. This is taken to mean that part, at least, of the coast team's offensive efforts will be aimed through the air. Stanford possesses fine passers, a good punter in Alustiza and a handful of good pass receivers.

Howell Leads Attack.

Alabama's back field strength is not so highly headlined as the Stanford collection, but Dixie Howell, a 161 pounder, who has averaged 6½ yards a try, tops a pretty lively bunch of ball carriers. Jimmy Angelich, a 168 pounder from East Chicago, Ind., a vicinity from which several recent Alabama stars have hailed, plays the important right half position under the Notre Dame attack, and is a rugged boy who relishes making a good block.

Riley Smith, a 198 pounder also specializes at blocking as the quarter backs generally do under this system. Joe Demyanovich bumps the line at full back.

MICHIGAN CITY PREPS DEFEAT NEWARK, 52-20

Michigan City, Ind., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Michigan City's High school basketball team remained one of the few undefeated quintets in Indiana tonight by defeating Newark, N. J., five, 52 to 20.

Vergane, Michigan City's 6 foot 6 inch center, scored 13 points, bringing his average to ten points per game for the season. Gay also scored 13 points. It was Michigan City's seventh straight victory.

When Stanford needs yardage it usually calls on Bobby Grayson, 196 pound full back, and it isn't often that he fails.

On the coast they say there are no ends who can match Monk Moscrip, a sturdy wingman who helped to bring Stanford a Pacific Coast conference championship.

East All-Stars Reach Coast and Hold Drill

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Greeted by the blare of bands, handshaking and shouting, 22 eastern football stars who will face a western team in the annual east-west charity game here New Year's day arrived today.

The players, accompanied by Co-Coaches Dick Hanley, formerly of Northwestern, and Andy Kerr of Colgate, were guests at a luncheon given by the local Big Ten Alumni association.

Mayor Greets the Boys.

A parade up Market street followed. It ended at the city hall, where Mayor Angelo Rossi formally welcomed the group to San Francisco. A visit to the Shriners' crippled children hospital, which receives the proceeds of the annual game, was followed by a brief workout at Kezar stadium, scene of the forthcoming contest.

Coaches Hanley and Kerr described their squad as "the best ever to represent the east."

Kerr Likes His Team.

"As usual," Kerr said, "we have an all around back field and this year we have the line to go with it. You can't deny the east had the edge in the football situation this year and we have the best eastern players."

Coach Kerr indicated the starting eleven might shape up as follows:

Ends—Larsen, Minnesota, and Bogdanski, Colgate.

Tackles—Monahan, Ohio State, and Stein, Syracuse.

Guards—Hartwig, Pittsburgh, and Barclay, North Carolina.

Center—Akerson, Colgate; quarter—Munjas, Pittsburgh; half backs, Lund, Minnesota, and Purvis, Purdue; full back, Weinstock, Pittsburgh.

While the eastern boys received acclaim as a unit, the western players checked in throughout the day to their coaches, Percy Locey of Denver and Orin Hollingbery of Washington State. A number of the westerners came in last night.

TEMPLE STARS READY

New Orleans, La., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Football foes in New Orleans' New Year's day Sugar Bowl game were encamped near the battleground tonight.

Coach Pop Warner and his squad of 33 Temple U. players were quartered at Baton Rouge, 80 miles away, preparing for a week's training on the Louisiana State university field.

In New Orleans the Tulane Green Wave went through a scrimmage on the home field.

Both Expect a Battle.

"It will be a real battle," Warner said today as he stepped off the train. "It will be a great fight," echoed Dr. Wilbur C. Smith, Tulane director of athletics.

Warner wasted no time today in getting the Owls down to serious work again after a five day absence of outdoor scrimmage. The players went through their paces on State field at Baton Rouge after having been greeted by city and university officials.

Temple Is in Shape.

Warner said the team was in better shape physically than when it left Philadelphia. Several of the mainstays who had colds were recovering today.

The great sophomore full back, Smukler, who was among those indisposed, seemed in good shape when the team arrived, and will be able to see plenty of service against Tulane.

"The climate? It's great!" exclaimed the players and coaches as they stepped off the train into the warm glow of the southern sun.

Mississippi Football Team Schedules St. Louis

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The University of Mississippi will oppose St. Louis university on the gridiron at Walsh stadium here next fall, Coach Cecil Muellerleile of St. Louis announced today. The game will be played the week-end of Nov. 2, either on Friday night or the following afternoon.

plays later and the Dodgers recovered on the Bears' 31 yard line.

Corbett Runs 33 Yards.

Feathers nipped this threat when he intercepted a pass on his own 20 yard line and returned 36 yards to the Dodgers' 44 yard line. Sisk rammed left tackle for six yards and Corbett followed with five more. On the next play Corbett swung wide around his own left end behind two men, eluded a tackler, hurdled another, and outran the secondary for a 33 yard jaunt over the goal line. Nagurski's try for point was low.

It was not until midway in the fourth quarter that the Bears got under way again. Masterson tossed a lateral to Red Grange for a gain of 16 yards and then fired one to Gene Ronzani, who carried it to the 8 yard line before being hauled down by Shipwreck Kelly. Another pass to Ronzani was incomplete and then Manders punched through the line for three yards. Masterson tossed a short pass to Grange who gathered it in and stepped across the goal line for the Bears' final touchdown. Manders kicked the point.

Kelly Races 90 Yards.

The Dodgers then made their lone tally. The Bears kicked off to Kelly who took the ball on his 10 yard line. A powerful wedge headed by Tennessee's Herman Hickman got him into the clear and he stepped 90 yards to a touchdown. Hickman's try for point was blocked by Karr.

The game afforded additional thrill to the crowd because it brought back the former University of Tennessee stars, Beattie Feathers, Hickman, Sherif Maples, center for the Dodgers, and Harry Thayer, Dodger guard.

TENNESSEE EXPLAINS

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The University of Tennessee issued a statement today defending its action in refusing the Chicago Bears and Brooklyn Dodgers, professional football teams, use of the university's gridiron for a charity game.

"It is the general opinion of colleges throughout the country that professional football must ultimately make inroads into the present sports program of the colleges," said the statement, signed by James D. Hoskins, president of the university, and N. W. Dougherty, chairman of the athletic council.

"We believe our action taken by the council will tend to preserve a game which we and our supporters have built up over a long period of years."

The athletic council based its refusal of the stadium on grounds that "members of the southeastern conference believe professional football in the south will injure the present intercollegiate athletic program," that facilities of the university were dedicated to amateur sports, and charity would not profit by the game.

YALE WINS FROM MINNESOTA SIX TO SWEEP SERIES

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Yale swept its hocky series with the University of Minnesota tonight, 3 to 1, after rallying against a sizzling Gopher attack.

Set behind when Capt. Spencer Wagnild, Minnesota, crashed the Eli defense in the first period for the only Gopher score in the two games, the Bulldogs tied it in the second and scored twice again in the third period.

A surprising Minnesota attack, different from the Gophers' moderate methods of Friday night, almost sent Yale reeling under the first period bombardment. Wagnild counted on a solo rush.

Tommy Rodd, Yale forward, skated through Minnesota's defense to score in 4.30 of the second period.

A fast break by Jimmy Mills and Warren Colby laid in another goal in 4.40 of the third period, the former scoring. Ten seconds later Doug Robinson, Minneapolis youth, teamed with Rodd for the third. Robinson shot from the side.

Maroons Are Beaten, 2-1, by Rangers

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Two quick thrusts by the Cook-Boucher-Cook forward line and a magnificent goal tending performance by Dave Kerr enabled the New York Rangers to score a surprising 2 to 1 victory over the Montreal Maroons tonight.

Bun Cook scored Ranger goals in the first and second periods, with Bill Cook and Boucher drawing assists on each, but Kerr's work at the nets was the prime feature. The Maroons sold Dave to the Rangers last week, and must have regretted it tonight.

Montreal had a wide edge in territorial play throughout, but Kerr stopped them repeatedly at the goal. All told the Rangers' new goal tender made 37 shots, while Alex Connell, in the Maroons' nets, had only 16 stops.

The Rangers seemed headed for a shutout until the third period, when the Maroons took advantage of an opportunity presented after Ching Johnson had been banished to the penalty box for tripping. Just before he got back Lionel Conacher carried the puck into a corner, passed to Russ Blinco, who relayed the puck to Earl Robinson. The latter's shot, from in close, beat Kerr.

BRUINS, 4; WINGS, 3

Boston, Mass., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Big Nels Stewart pulled the Boston Bruins into a 4 to 3 victory over the Detroit Red Wings with a sensational closing rally tonight before a crowd of 7,500 at the Boston garden.

The Red Wings, thanks to the sharp-shooting of Larry Aurie and Cooney Weiland in the first and second periods, appeared to have the game under control. But in the last seven minutes of play the Bruins tied the score when a shot fired by Marty Barry deflected off Doug Young's stick into the Detroit cage.

This freak goal tempted the Bruins and they forced matters by throwing five men into the attack. Eddie Shore was trapped on a rush broken up by Herb Lewis and that left winger beat the pack back to the Boston zone, where he fed Weiland, who figured in all of the Wing's tallies, a second scoring shot.

Trailing 3 to 2 with less than three minutes to play, Stewart, Beattie, and Charley Sands cut loose in wild abandon and forced over two goals in 69 seconds to turn back Jack Adams' players for the third consecutive time this season.

FOUR DEANS TO SPEND CHRISTMAS DAY IN COUNTRY

Bond, Miss., Dec. 22. — (AP) — The Deans, Dizzy and Daffy, were here today with their wives of which one, Mrs. Paul Dean, is a newly acquired member of the famous baseball clan. They prepared to spend a quiet country Christmas at the home of Dizzy's wife's parents.

Daffy and his wife were honeymooning while Mr. and Mrs. Dizzy were merely tagging along.

Paul, with the bride he married in Russellville, Ark., Thursday, joined him.

Dizzy, the older brother, gave his fraternal blessing to the marriage of Daffy, saying, "It suited me fine."

Then, he predicted St. Louis would win the pennant again next year and quickly announced the present to his wife's parents will be a new home on the spot where the old frame cottage now stands.

The Deans plan to remain here until Dec. 28 when they will make a motor trip to Florida.

[Finals.]

St. Patrick, Chicago, vs. St. Mel, 9 p. m.

De Paul vs. St. Patrick, Kankakee, 8 p. m. [for third place].

It will be St. Mel against St. Patrick of Chicago in the final round for the championship of the first annual pre-season St. George Catholic High school basketball tournament tonight at St. George gymnasium in Evanston.

St. Mel advanced to the finals by defeating De Paul, 33 to 17, while St. Patrick triumphed over St. Patrick of Kankakee, the last out of town team in the tournament, 38 to 22. De Paul and Kankakee will play for third place at 8 o'clock.

Clem Naughton, tall center, led St. Mel to victory over De Paul. He scored three field goals and sank two free throws. Paul Pare also starred for the winners, collecting two baskets and two free throws. St. Mel led at the end of the half, 15 to 7.

St. Patrick of Chicago took an early lead against Kankakee and remained in front throughout the game. The Chicago quintet led at the close of the first period, 10 to 4, and held a 24 to 13 advantage at the half. Janus, forward, led the Chicago scorers, contributing five baskets and four free throws.

Riding Club Poloists Beat Ramblers, 8-6

The Chicago Riding club poloists defeated the Ramblers last night, 8 to 6, at the 124th Field Artillery arena, by making a strong finish after trailing in the first half.

Jim Hannah was the scoring leader, with 6 goals. Capt. Maxwell Corpening accounted for 3 and in addition gave a polished performance in setting up the ball for Hannah. The game was settled in the final two minutes of play, when Hannah and Capt. Corpening drove in points.

The Chicago Riding club and the Cleveland Riding club are now the only undefeated teams in the Metropolitan league high goal senior division.

With Lieut. Bill Kirby leading the attack by scoring six goals, the Chicago Black Horse Troop took the lead in the Metropolitan league junior division, beating the Chicago Cardinals, 10 to 8, in the first game of the evening. A three goal handicap award proved too much for the Cardinals to overcome.

ARTILLERY WINS

Before one of the largest audiences ever to tax the capacity of the Chicago Riding club, the 122d Field Artillery poloists moved into second place in the Black Horse Troop league by defeating the Shamrocks, 19½ to 6½.

The game was marked by many spectacular clashes, in one of which Capt. L. B. Callahan, number one man for the Shamrocks, suffered a spill that knocked him unconscious for several minutes.

Lieut. Cliff Harrison drew the applause of the crowd with an individual score of ten points.

In the opener the University of Chicago defeated the 106th Cavalry, 10½ to 8½.

Pope, Robinson Retain City Doubles Squash Title

Dudley Pope and Jimmy Robinson successfully defended their city doubles squash championship by defeating Henry Parker and Louis Sterling, 3-0, in the tournament final yesterday at the John Marshall Squash club. Scores were 15-4, 15-6, 15-7.

LEVINSKY SEES ADVANTAGE IN 4 ROUND BOUT

He's a Fast Starter and Baer Slow.

A four round contest between Max Baer, heavyweight champion, and King Levinsky at Chicago Stadium Friday will top this week's national boxing schedule. To safeguard Baer's crown the Illinois athletic commission has announced no official decision will be rendered. However, this will not prevent Levinsky from taking advantage of his chance to hand the champion a whipping and lay claim to the title.

Three years ago Jack Dempsey and Levinsky met in what was labeled a four round exhibition. It failed to stop the King from giving the former champion a beating, one which caused Jack to decide to hang up the gloves for good. The accomplishment gave Levinsky tremendous prestige. He convinced a capacity attendance that Dempsey's fighting days had ended. Levinsky may repeat against Baer and earn a newspaper decision.

Baer Slow to Start.

At any rate critics believe Levinsky will beat Baer in what may develop into one of the best battles presented here this season. They point out that, whereas the King is a fast starter, the champion seldom gets warmed up to his work before several rounds have been spent. The Chicago fighter holds the same opinion. He was so sure of whipping Max, and perhaps force him into a championship bout, that he jumped at the opportunity to sign.

Levinsky will receive 15 per cent of the net gate receipts, which Co-Matchmaker James C. Mullen estimates will be at least $24,000. On the basis of this gate the Kingfish will be paid only $3,600, approximately $8,000 less than what he was awarded for the exhibition against Dempsey. Of course the Dempsey-Levinsky gate amounted to much more than that expected Friday. Nevertheless, the $3,600 would be one of the smallest purses Levinsky has earned during his six year career. Even when he knocked out Leo Lomski in 1930 to obtain top notch recognition the Kingfish was paid more. Baer will get 40 per cent for Friday's match.

Always Seems to Collect.

Other instances of Levinsky getting the worst of financial arrangements were in scraps with Tuffy Griffith and Jack Sharkey. To get these matches and enhance his rating the Chicago heavyweight took a percentage from which he paid each a $25,000 guarantee. At that the King's end was about $4,500 for the Griffith bout, which he lost, and almost $6,000 for the Sharkey fight, which he won.

Levinsky's handlers contend he never has received the worst of it on terms. They predict that terms for the impending match will prove in the long run the best ever made for their charge.

Friday's meeting will be the third between the champion and Levinsky. Both previous engagements, which Baer won, were closely contested, the first in ten rounds at New York and the other in twenty at Reno, Nev., in 1932.

Hardest Test Since Carnera.

Their third contest is expected to be Baer's hardest fight since his eleven round knockout over Primo Carnera June 14 when he won the title.

He has appeared in numerous exhibition encounters since the Carnera fight, the latest against Johnny Miler at Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 7. In two previous efforts here Max won a ten round verdict over the late Ernie Schaaf and scored a seven round technical knockout over Tuffy Griffith in 1932.

Baer will open drills this afternoon at Trafton's gymnasium, probably at 2 o'clock, an hour before Levinsky is scheduled to work out at the same gym.

Bouts on this week's schedule include:

TUESDAY.

At Pittsburgh, Pa.—Lou Brouillard vs. Sammy [Kid] Slaughter [12], middleweights.

FRIDAY.

At Chicago Stadium—Max Baer, heavyweight champion, vs. King Levinsky [4], nontitle; Frank Battaglia vs. Kid Leonard [10], middleweights; Buddy Baer vs. Gene Stanton [4], heavyweights.

At Madison Square Garden, New York—Sammy Fuller vs. Lou Ambers [10], junior welterweights.

At Peoria, Ill.—Johnny Phagan vs. George Black [10], middleweights.

At Minneapolis, Minn.—Charley Retzlaff vs. Johnny Risko [10], heavyweights.

NAVY ELEVEN TO PLAY PRINCETON, YALE, AND PENN

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The United States Naval academy, with football games in 1936 with Princeton, Yale, and Pennsylvania, may round out the old "Big Four" by arranging a game with Harvard. It was stated at the naval academy today that the athletic officials and those of Harvard were considering an arrangement by which the Navy team would play at Cambridge in 1936 and Harvard at the academy the following year.

A game with Yale, to be played in New Haven, has been arranged for 1936, and the understanding with Princeton and Pennsylvania is from year to year, but an indefinite continuance is expected. Games with the Army and Notre Dame will also be played by the Navy team in 1936.

PEPPER MARTIN SIGNS CONTRACT WITH CARDINALS

St. Louis, Dec. 22.—(AP)—John L. [Pepper] Martin has signed a one year contract to play with the world champion Cardinals in 1935, it was announced today.

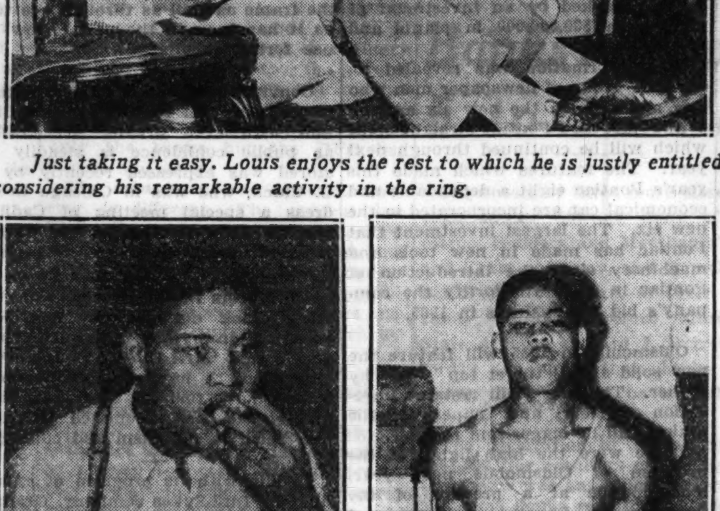
Dr. Robert F. Hyland, club surgeon, predicts Martin, handicapped by his injury last season, will be as good as ever in the next campaign. He probably will leave the hospital today.

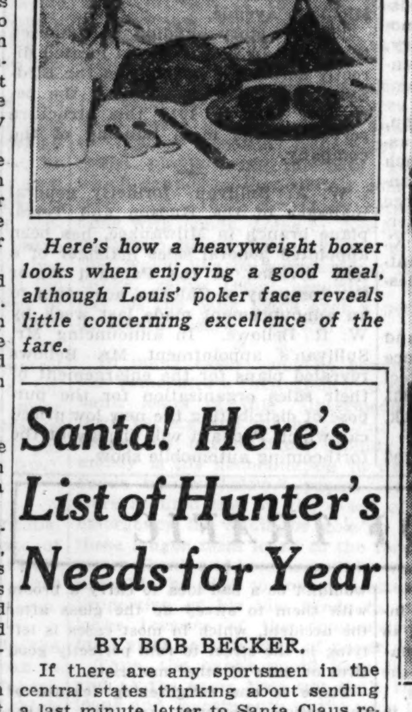
Terms of Martin's contract were not announced.

ALL IN THE LIFE OF A HEAVYWEIGHT BOXER

Joe Louis, Golden Gloves graduate and colored heavyweight sensation, does a little crooning aided by Johnny Vorce (left), his stablemate.



Just taking it easy. Louis enjoys the rest to which he is justly entitled considering his remarkable activity in the ring.

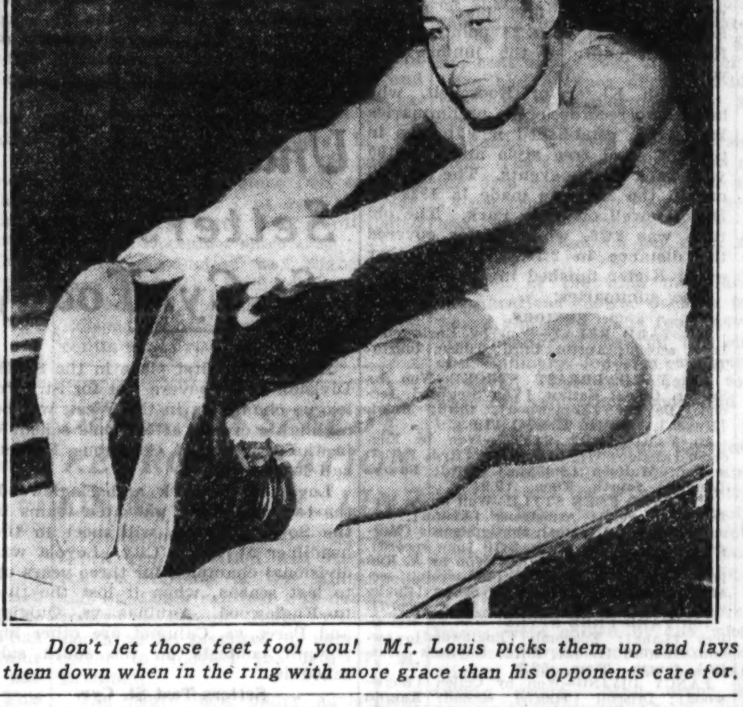


Here's how a heavyweight boxer looks when enjoying a good meal, although Louis' poker face reveals little concerning excellence of the fare.

Skipping rope is just the thing to keep a boxer's legs in trim. Joe Louis, new heavyweight threat, takes a couple of thousand turns.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Louis gives the punching bag a taste of the power of two fists which have enabled him to win 12 straight professional fights, 10 by knockouts.



Don't let those feet fool you! Mr. Louis picks them up and lays them down when in the ring with more grace than his opponents care for.

Santa! Here's List of Hunter's Needs for Year

BY BOB BECKER.

If there are any sportsmen in the central states thinking about sending a last minute letter to Santa Claus regarding some gifts wanted, possibly the following Christmas "memo" to old St. Nick may furnish an idea or two. There are so many things that must be done for the future of field and waterfowl hunting that it behooves all of us to get busy with our pens and ask Santa's help.

Here is a list of things that Santa [as well as conservation heads, and all hunters] will have to keep in mind this Christmas:

1. Santa had better work with the weather man this winter and spring to fill every possible northern slough, marsh, lake, and river bed with water so that the waterfowl will have plenty of nesting sites. If this doesn't happen and we have another small crop of ducks, all of us will have to figure on rabbit, squirrel, and skeet shooting next season.

Coöperation of States Needed.

2. Old St. Nick can give us a lot of help by poking up every northern state in the "duck belt" to join hands with the government in acquiring drained and now worthless marshes and lakes to flood them for the waterfowl. When reclaimed and planted with foods they will provide both nesting and feeding grounds for the ducks and geese. If some of the states would quit complaining about getting unfair duck laws, how the "other states" get all the hunting, etc., and get to work on plans that grow ducks, the quicker we will have better waterfowl hunting.

3. Santa should be asked to keep his eye on that $8,500,000 the government has to spend to help migratory waterfowl. We don't want it to get away! Already several hundred thousands of acres of marshes have been purchased for duck nesting and feeding grounds, one of the few constructive moves made in the last year actually to grow ducks.

Game Growing Scientific Business.

4. What a boon it would be if Santa Claus would get this idea over to Illinois sportsmen and the conservation department: Growing game for sportsmen to hunt is no longer "up to nature." It's a scientific business, requiring planning and well trained men. Moreover, this business can't get anywhere unless the landowner takes part in it. Therefore the sooner we form a partnership with the landowners and compensate them to grow game, and the sooner sportsmen make up their minds that hunting is a luxury and we have to pay for it, the quicker we get good upland game hunting.

5. Kindly arrange for that pheasant preserve law to be put on the Illinois books right away, will you Santa?

Sport Poll Brings Out Popularity of Pro Football

New York, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The amazing growth of professional football and the more open style of play on college gridirons were the most striking sports trends during 1934.

Sports editors, participating in the Associated Press' annual poll, noted also the wholesale drift of amateur tennis stars into the professional ranks and the return to almost boom time normalcy of gate receipts for all major sports except professional boxing.

Listed in order of their importance these are the principal sports trends of the year:

Profesional football boom, more open attack in college football, revival of major and minor league baseball, decline in professional boxing, general impetus in all pro sports, amateur-to-pro trend, especially in tennis, and increase of horse racing interest.

The observers also took note of the decision to try out night baseball in the National league, increase in soft ball and golf competition, the rise of the southwest as a college football power, and the growing interest in amateur boxing.

The spread of popularity of professional football was voted the most striking trend and led one sports editor to predict that the next five years would see a pro team in nearly every American city with a population of 250,000 or more.

While increased gate receipts along almost every front made promotors happier than they've been since 1929, it also impressed them with the fact that the public has become more discriminating and will patronize only those attractions offering the most for the money.

One sports editor said:

"Except for professional boxing, every sport attracted bigger crowds and furnished more exciting competition than we have had in some time."

There were others who saw pro football as a dangerous rival to the college sport, citing the professionals' advantage over the collegians in going back to some of the game's fundamental regulations.

85 Games Are Scheduled For C.Y.O. League Quintets Today

Today's schedule in the Catholic Youth Organization Basketball league calls for 85 games among the lightweight and heavyweight teams. Twenty of the 26 sections into which the boys' league is split will play this afternoon in gymnasiums scattered throughout Chicago, Joliet, Kankakee, Blue Island, Cicero, Oak Park, Evanston, and Waukegan.

Games expected to have decisive bearing upon the outcome of the sectional race are scheduled for St. Columbanus gym, St. Andrew's gym, St. Rita High gym, St. Agatha's gym, St. Willibrord's gym, and De La Salle gym. St. Augustine's, St. Michael's High, and St. Mel's High gymnasiums will also be the scene of activity this afternoon.

St. Leo, St. Columbanus Meet.

At St. Columbanus gym on the south side, the heavyweight and lightweight meetings between St. Leo and St. Columbanus take the center of interest this week, while at St. Augustine's gym encounters between Visitation and St. Augustine's lights and heavies vie with the games at St. Columbanus in general interest.

Other interesting games will be between St. Joseph's and Holy Name heavies at St. Michael's gym, St. Viator's and St. Andrew's at St. Andrew's gym, and St. Clara and St. Bernard's at De La Salle gym.

Schedule 105 Girls' Games.

THREE TIE FOR PASADENA OPEN LEAD WITH 137

Guest, M'Spaden, Revolta Top Field at 36 Holes.

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 22.—(AP)—After a long parade of sensationally low scores, Charley Guest, Los Angeles Harold McSpaden, Kansas City, Kas., and Johnny Revolta, Milwaukee, held the lead at the half way mark of the Pasadena $4,000 open golf tournament tonight with cards of 137.

Guest, last of these three cash seeking golfers to finish, had the most amazing score of all, a 66, five strokes under par to add to his 71 of yesterday.

Revolta Collects 68.

Early in the day McSpaden had posted a fine 67 to match his 70 of the first round. It appeared for a time that this would stand up without opposition until Revolta, putting with the skill he showed two seasons ago, paraded in with a 68 on top of his 69 of yesterday.

Needing only a par on the eighteenth for a tie with Revolta and McSpaden, he nearly captured the lead with an amazing 45 foot putt that stopped just two inches short of the cup.

Ties Tourney Record.

Guest, a Los Angeles driving range professional, missed other chances to better his score because putts would not drop

The score tied the record for tourney play here, equaling the card turned in by Craig Wood when he won the championship three years ago.

In fourth place, two strokes back of the three leaders, was Jimmy Hines, Long Island, who shot a 68 today for a 139 total. Dick Metz, youthful Chicago pro, added another 70 to his list today for a 140 and fifth position, followed by Ralph Guldahl, Los Angeles, who was sixth. Guldahl dropped a 40 foot putt on the 18th for a 73, which with his 69 yesterday gave him 142.

Three Tied for Seventh.

In a three way tie for seventh were Victor Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., MacDonald Smith, Los Angeles, and Sam Parks Jr., Pittsburgh, with 143.

A dozen players shattered perfect figures of 71 as the field warmed to its task. As a result cards of 149 and better were required to continue play tomorrow through the last two rounds in quest of the $1,000 first prize money and nineteen other cash awards.

Henry Batista, a Pasadena amateur, continued to claim first honors among the amateurs with a 144 total which placed him in an eight way tie for tenth position. The scores:

FT. WAYNE TEAM GETS 6TH PLACE IN PIN TOURNEY

Toledo, O., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The Centlivre Beer team of Fort Wayne, Ind., hit 3,000 pins here tonight to take sixth place in the Central States Bowling association tournament. D. Harrington paced the quintet with 645.

With Everett Scott, former major league baseball star, in the anchor position, the Grace Construction team of Fort Wayne rolled 2,881, out of the money. Scott totaled only 564.

Nebraska Five Triumphs Over North Dakota, 34-21

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Playing a tight defense and a deliberate passing game on offense, the University of Nebraska basketball team defeated North Dakota university in a non-conference game here tonight, 34 to 21.

The Huskers took the lead at the start and never relinquished it. At the half they held an 18 to 12 advantage.

Holidays Bring Tourney Plans for City Bowlers

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

During the holidays, when most leagues suspend competition temporarily, the thoughts of many bowlers turn to tournaments. Plans are going ahead for several events, one of the most notable of which is the 23d annual Windy City tournament, which draws the outstanding pin topplers of the Chicago district.

Jerry Peck announces that entries will close Jan. 6 for the Windy City special, which will get under way Wednesday, Jan. 19. Each Wednesday, Saturday, and Sunday thereafter the event will be continued until the entire entry list is accommodated.

A feature that is attracting booster teams of 875 averages and under is the $5 team entry fee, half the amount assessed each team competing in the open division.

Further proof that this is tournament time is offered by Pete Howley, who is staging the 21st annual Brothers' two man meet Jan. 6 at the 131 South Wabash Recreation.

North End League.

The Milfords vaulted back into first place in the North End Traveling league by piling up a 3,170 total while taking two games from the Samuelsons, who got 3,093. Meanwhile, the Foxes dropped back a notch by losing two to last year's champions, the Birk Brothers, and the Idle Hours bumped the Butterfingers for two to tie them for third place.

The Michelobs had 3,152 for second high series and the Westers followed with 3,146 in a postponed series which included a high game of 1,166, a new season record for this circuit. Harry Kaad of the Millers, was high individual with 706, Art Butler of the Milfords had 686 and George Miller of the Michelobs, 684.

On North Side Alleys.

Benny Krysiak, substituting on the McKesson team, cracked out a 733 series that included a 27? game in the Gold Coast Major league, which now will take two weeks off because of the holidays. Krysiak's score gave him second high league series and second high game. Curtiss Butterfingers remain at the head of the team procession. . . . W. Banka with 196 is on top in the Chicago Junior Traveling league and the Ald. Orlikoskis have regained the team leadership with 18 won and 9 lost. At the last session E. Wendt helped himself to a 670 series with the aid of a 256 game.

With games of 225, 233 and 176 Reed shot 634 to break the high series record in the A. and P. league. Welter turned in second high series of 603 and Pascale registered high game of 245. Ross and Copper celebrated their best performances of the year, the former getting 586 and the latter 568.

On South Side Alleys.

H. Kluge led the Bruck Major league with a 702 series on games of 235, 269 and 198. Close behind was H. Heerman's with 205, 256 and 230 for a total of 691. Other leaders were: G. Maurer, 676; C. Caldwell, 660; W. Taylor, 653; E. Hannan, 654; F. Spencer, 650. . . . Harry Lippe gave the South End Traveling league a score to shoot at when he massaged the pins for 813. His games were 265, 248 and 300, a bombardment that led Laurel Recreation to three victories over the Morgan & Hansons, who were fighting to overtake the leading Reed Butterscotch for the first half championship. J. Skovie is averaging 216 to lead the individuals.

Randolph League.

Paced by Wright's 692 series, the Mineralites took two out of three games from Mell-O Ice Cream in the Randolph league. Among the other high series were those of Walshon, 684; Schroeder, 664; Barker, 654; Kimble, 652; Kraft, 649; Rusch, 646; Butler, 646, and Krisch, 644.

Here and There.

Members of the Classic league are in Toledo competing in the central states meet, so there will be no league matches this evening. The Pabsts, with a two game lead over the Monarch Beers probably will win the first half championship as the initial portion of the race ends with Wednesday's games at the Garden Recreation. . . . The North End Traveling league's next sweepstakes is scheduled for Jan. 5 and 6 at Harry Kaad's alleys. . . . Windy City alleys have been chosen for the site of the 1935 Elks national tournament to start March 23. Jerry Krizek is local chairman in charge of entries and the tourney. . . . Two teams from the Chicago Retail Credit league piled up 4,782 pins to defeat a pair of teams from the Milwaukee Retail Credit league, who totaled 4,682. Gildorf's 553 was high for the Chicagoans. . . . Despite Wesley Richmond's 655 series, the Stores Department team lost two games to Collection No. 1 in People's Gas Club league. Capt. Ed Kopp of Collection No. 1 blasted out a 628.

About the Women.

Agnes Crocombe, captain of the Pabst Blue Ribbon team of the Woodlawn Recreation league turned in high series and high game when she toppled the pins for 652 on games of 203, 245, and 204. . . . Irving Smart Shop is setting the team pace and Charlotte Ehrns tops the individuals in the Samuelson Major league. High scores were: C. Ehrns, 556; F. Strassburger, 547; E. Sullivan, 539; E. Carlson, 535; G. Samuelson, 525; R. Boyle, 522; L. Walder, 517; B. Ramsey, 516; A. Heidem, 503, and M. Ledene, 500.

While National Tempered Maples were knocking off the Birks Superbs for three games the Budweiser Girls took undisputed possession of first place in the Congress league, with the Alberti Jewelers second. Dorothy Burmeister collected games of 221, 239, and 243 for 703, which surpassed her own previous record by two pins.

R. Forward's 574 was the best series of the week in the Monte Cristo-Lorel Rug league. Other lofty totals fell to M. Hardenstein, 557; P. Strassburger, 522; A. Walz, 518; M. Reglin, 517; S. Walz, 517, and T. Berlinger, 516. . . . Alice Gay connected for another 600 series when she passed that figure by six pins in the Pioneer Major league. Lu McGrath's 543 led the Senior league and Minerva Blettner's 530 topped the Junior league. In the Major league Emily Goldammer had high game of 241.

CHICAGO TO SEE WORLD'S TABLE TENNIS CHAMP

Barna to Lead Hungarians Against U. S. Stars.

Chicago will have its first opportunity to see the world's greatest table tennis player when picked teams from Hungary and the United States meet in an international match in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel, Sunday afternoon and evening, Jan. 6.

VIKTOR BARNA.

Viktor Barna, a Hungarian living in Paris, is the present and four time world champion. He will arrive in New York tomorrow aboard the Ile de France with his partner, Sandor Glancz of Budapest, the only player who has beaten him in the last two years.

Barna has been the outstanding star of the game since Fred Perry, now world's ranking lawn tennis player, last won the world's table tennis championship in 1929. Glancz, a former singles champion of England, Germany, and Hungary, was the No. 1 world's ranking player in 1927.

Complete Tour of Africa.

This famous pair of internationalists have been the backbone of the Hungarian team which has won the Swaythling cup, emblematic of world's team supremacy, seven out of eight times since this trophy was donated by Lady Swaythling in 1926. They have played exhibitions in every capital of Europe and have recently completed a tour of Africa.

According to Ivor Montagu, president of the International Table Tennis federation, American players will be lucky to score ten points in the twenty-one point games against the invaders.

However, there is no player on the American team who does not expect to down the foreign invasion. Captained by the veteran Coleman Clark, former national champion, the team has been putting in a strenuous schedule of tournament play to prepare for the internationalists.

McClure Tops Americans.

Foremost among these stars is 18 year old Jimmy McClure of Indianapolis, national ping-pong champion, who last week won the American zone tryouts for the world's championships in a tournament in New York. McClure's only previous appearance in Chicago was last February, when he carried his Indianapolis team almost single handed to a tie for second place in the national intercity team championship which was won by Chicago. At that time he was known only by his remarkable record in Indianapolis, but his sensational play here in winning seventeen out of eighteen matches started him on a winning streak which has left him undefeated since that time.

Other members of the American team are Billy Condy, 17 year old Chicago district champion for the last two years, who hails from New Trier High school; Max Rushakoff, Edward Dugan, and Paul Pearson and Edwin Lewis, who as a Hyde Park High school team, won national honors in 1933.

BROWNS AGAIN NAME VON WEISE CLUB PRESIDENT

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Louis B. Von Weise, executor of the estate of the late Phil Ball, today was reelected president of the St. Louis Browns of the American league.

Other officers of the club also were reëlected. They are L. C. McEvoy, fist vice president; Walter Fritsch, second vice president; William Cady, treasurer, and Miss Ella Jacoby, secretary.

Sol Swartz retired from the board of directors because of ill health and was succeeded by James Ball, son of the late owner.

Although he moved recently to New York for business reasons, Von Weise said he was remaining as head of the club because of his position as executor of the Ball estate.

Von Weise said home attendance of the Browns in 1934 was greater than in 1933 and that the increase in attendance on the road was "tremendous." He said, however, the club still was for sale at the "right price."

WILLIAMS AND ROXY MATCHED FOR MAT CONTEST

Walter Roxy, former University of Indiana light heavyweight wrestler, and Al Williams of Fox Lake, Ill., have been signed to clash in the windup bout of the wrestling show Wednesday at Marigold Gardens. It will be Roxy's first Chicago appearance since Aug. 1 when he wrestled a draw with Frank Hart. Prior to the Hart accomplishment Roxy threw Bill Brooks, Williams and Dale Haddock in combats here. Williams displayed good form when he tossed Mike London last week. The return encounter with Roxy is scheduled for one fall with a 90 minute time limit.

GENERAL PARTH WINS FEATURE AT TROPICAL PARK

Norris Racer Wins by a Head from Sabula.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The Peconic stable, owned by James D. Norris, Chicago, accounted for major honors at Tropical Park today as General Parth captured the featured Royal Palm handicap in the most exciting finish of the meeting. The winner held a head margin over Frederick M. Alger Jr.'s Sabula, winner of the opening day feature. A length farther back, in third place, was C. J. Bild's Jesting.

General Parth, a 3 year old colt making his first Florida start, showed an amazing burst of stretch speed to overtake three horses in the final furlong and win after a long, hard drive.

Crowd Cheers Strong Finish.

The crowd cheered the strong finish of the Norris colt, despite the fact he was somewhat of an outsider, paying $14 straight, although the race was an open betting affair.

The son of General Lee-Parthia was off slowly in the mile and a sixteenth test, which drew a field of five handicap racers of all ages. Garden Message, which finished fourth, and Noah's Pride, which trailed the field at the end, set a fast early pace.

After a half mile Garden Message was breezing along in front with a length's advantage over Jesting, which had moved into second place. As Garden Message, carrying the silks of Arthur Hullcoat, tired on the turn, Jesting forged ahead and took the lead on the turn out of the back stretch. Sabula also tried to move forward at this point, but still was in third place going around the turn.

Here Comes the General.

General Parth, meanwhile, made up some ground and caught the field at the turn out of the back stretch. He passed Noah's Pride with ease, but still was five lengths behind the third place Sabula.

At the head of the stretch, Jocky G. Watson placed General Parth under punishment and the game response of the Norris racer electrified the watchers. He passed the tiring Garden Message and came thundering down the stretch a few lengths behind Sabula and Jesting.

In the final furlong, General Parth still was racing in third place. Sabula was drawing away from Jesting, which tired from the battle for the lead. As Jesting dropped back, Watson sent General Parth along on the outside and the winner edged up slowly on Sabula. Only a few strides from the wire did he take the lead which brought victory.

Sabula Made 13-10 Choice.

Sabula had been favored in the wagering and went to the post at 13 to 10. Noah's Pride was next best regarded, while the extreme outsider, Garden Message, would have returned only 8 to 1. General Parth, carrying the light weight of 100 pounds, covered the distance in 1:44 4-5.

The secondary feature, the Pahokee Juvenile purse, was called off because of scratches and a claiming race substituted. The Jersey stable's Squeeze Out was the winner in a close finish to return the longest price of the day, $77.30. She scored by a head over Mrs. Kathleen Jesberger's Scotch Gold, an odds on favorite, with Philip Sanford's Candescent another head back in third place.

NEURITIS FORCES FIRPO TO GIVE UP COMEBACK PLANS

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Luis Angel Firpo, who has been promising a comeback for years, has given it all up again, this time because of an attack of neuritis.

The Wild Bull of the Pampas, whose highlight as a prize fighter came when he belted Jack Dempsey out of a Polo Grounds ring in the midst of taking a beating, is quite ill.

His hearing in the Buenos Aires courts on a charge of implication in an alleged fraudulent land sale has been postponed until late January on the advice of two court physicians.

After retiring from the ring, Firpo became fat and prosperous as an automobile dealer, then lost heavily in the financial crash of 1929. The fraudulent land charge against him swept away the remainder of his fortune.

Firpo eluded police until a short time ago, however, but in the meantime Buenos Aires papers announced a comeback campaign and printed numerous pictures showing the old wild bull in training. Some of the papers even talked of another Dempsey-Firpo bout, but there was no actual basis for discussions.

The neuritis attack now precludes his getting out of bed, let alone training.

ATHLETES NEED NOT FEAR THIN AIR AT DENVER

Denver, Colo., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Eastern and mid-western basketball players coming to Denver for the National A. A. U. Basketball tournament need not fear the altitude of this mile high city.

That's on the authority of William N. Greim, secretary-treasurer of the Rocky Mountain A. A. U., who said today:

"If an athlete is in good condition I don't think the rarified air out here hurts him any. In fact, many players have told me they got a sort of 'lift' when they came here."

Greim pointed out the atmosphere seemed to have little if any effect on athletes in the National A. A. U. track and field meet here in 1919.

The basketball tournament will be held in March, with the Tulso Oilers as defending champions.

Nazis to Build Large Automobile Race Track

BERLIN, Dec. 22.—[U. P.]—The Reich will soon begin construction of a large automobile race track, it was announced today by Storm Troop Commander Huehnlein. Plans will soon be submitted to Reichsfuehrer Hitler for final approval. Work will be done by voluntary labor groups.

Wonderbolts Meet Viking Eleven Today

BY OFFSIDE.

Only four of the eight survivors in the field for the Peter J. Peel soccer cup will see action today, it was announced yesterday when it was found impossible to clear heavy snow off the field at Kuppenheimer. Impossibility of preparing the field cancels the scheduled game between the Maccabees and Harvey United.

The two contests remaining on the Peel cup schedule will send the Wieboldt Wonderbolts, present holders of the trophy, against the Vikings at De Paul stadium, Sheffield and Webster avenues, while the Olympias will meet the Ravenswoods Hearts at Olympia stadium, 47th street and Kilpatrick avenue. The games will start at 2:15 o'clock. The teams will battle for places in the semi-finals.

Scotty Neilson, the Wonderbolts' center forward, who has set something of a record in scoring 41 goals thus far this season, will seek to add to his achievements. Neilson hopes to set a new all time soccer record of more than 70 goals this year.

The other quarter-final game between the Viennas and the Maccabee seconds will be played later. No definite date has been set.

The Sparta Leaders, now out of the Peel cup competition, will meet the Armours in an interleague game at Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. It will start at 2:30 o'clock. The Armours are undefeated in major league competition.

TIME SUPPLY TO GET TOP WEIGHT IN $5,000 STAKE

New York, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. F. A. Carreaud's Time Supply, winner of the recent $25,000 Bay Meadows handicap, today was given top weight of 126 pounds for the $5,000 Christmas stakes, feature event of the new Santa Anita track's opening day card next Tuesday.

The Belair stud's Faireno was ranked second in the handicapping list announced by Webb A. Everett, racing secretary. Faireno will carry 120 pounds. Mrs. S. B. Mason's Head Play was given 117 pounds.

The other weights: Riskulus, 110; Top Row, 109; High Glee, 108; Frank Ormont, Dark Winter and Teralice, 107; Thomasville and Bonny Grafton, 104; Wacoche and Semaphore, 103; Jabot, Chictoney and Trombone, 102; Navanod and Mad Frump, 101; Fleam, 100; Sun Archer and Percursor, 98; Mr. Bun, 96; Gillie, 95; Peradventure, 92.

BOXING OFFICIAL IS REINSTATED AFTER HIS DEATH

New York, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Danny Ridge, who died Thursday, today was posthumously reinstated to good standing as a referee by the New York state athletic commission.

Suspended as a result of the decision in the Peter Jackson-Sammy Fuller match several weeks ago, Ridge pled with the commissioner to reinstate him before he went to the veterans' hospital for an operation.

Yesterday, while he was being buried, the commission restored him to good standing "as of Tuesday, Dec. 18."

Ridge's operation was to relieve a condition brought on by wounds received in the world war.

HOLD 200 MILE DIRT TRACK RACE ON COAST TODAY

Inglewood, Cal., Dec. 22.—(AP)—America's leading automobile racers will have a long and nerve straining day here tomorrow.

They will be presented with the difficult and somewhat unusual assignment of qualifying for the 200 mile dirt track race at Mines field in the morning and then driving it in the afternoon.

Because of the poor condition of the track, yesterday's qualifying tests were postponed until Sunday morning.

Twenty-one drivers have entered.

Paul Pirrone Signs for Fight at San Francisco

Cleveland, O., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Paul Pirrone, Cleveland, winner of 16 consecutive fights in his drive toward the middleweight title, today was signed by Promoter Tony Palazola of San Francisco, Cal., to appear at the San Francisco baseball park Feb. 22. His opponent has not been decided upon.

Englewood, Roosevelt Win Swim Titles

Table of Points

Crane	5	Morgan Park	1

JUNIORS.

Roosevelt	22	Schurz	7
Parker	14	Tilden	6
Austin	8	Von Steuben	3
Lane	8	Amundsen	1
Crane	7

Englewood and Roosevelt retained their City High School league swimming titles in the finals yesterday at the University of Chicago pool. Englewood finished in first place in the Senior division with 24 points, while Roosevelt captured the junior meet with 23.

Adolph Kiefer of Roosevelt, who broke two records in the preliminaries last week, established new marks in the 220 yard free style and the 100 yard back stroke events. The old record in the 220 was made in 1922 by Dick Howell of Hyde Park. The old time was 2:26, while Kiefer covered the distance in 2:19. In the other event Kiefer finished in 1:02.5.

The summaries:

SENIORS.

240 YARD RELAY—Won by Englewood; Lane, second; Austin, third; Tilden, fourth. Time, 2:02.

100 YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Sutker, Crane; Zaslaw [Von Steuben], second; DeValk [Englewood], third; Haigh [Hirsch], fourth. Time, 1:11.6.

BOWLING EVENT AT PEORIA DRAWS ENTRIES OF 781

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—A total of 781 teams are entered in Peoria's twelfth annual Brothers bowling tourney which opens on Dec. 27 and runs through Jan. 6. The entry is the second largest ever gathered here and came within 41 teams of the 822 team record established three years ago.

The first tourney held in 1923 attracted 119 teams. The number grew steadily until 1931, when it reached the peak.

A FEW TIPS ON HOW TO AVOID DANGEROUS SKIDS

Be Cautious in Starting and Stopping.

BY HAL FOUST.

There is a lot of sliding on the snow and ice covered pavements that could be avoided if motorists would bear in mind that the application of either the power or the brakes is conducive of side slip where traction is uncertain. Both acceleration and deceleration must be gentle and cautious.

The most common cause of the swerve in braking is an unequal adjustment of the mechanicism. Almost as common is unequal traction under the wheels. If all four wheels are kept turning while braking, there is much less chance of side slide.

The swerve while accelerating is due mainly to spinning one or both the back wheels. If gas is fed to the engine gradually enough so that there is no free spin, the chances of a side skid are materially reduced.

The Tribune roadster, just returned from a month in the south, was prepared for this winter's snow driving by a week's experience on Mississippi roads. Most of the mileage in this southern state, with its 6 cent gasoline tax, is thinly graveled clay.

In wet weather this clay is about as slick as ice. The rules that apply for winter driving in the north apply equally well for mud cruising.

The main routes to the south, avoiding Mississippi, are paved and accommodate fast travel. In driving north from Florida this week-end, snow was not encountered on U. S. 41 until within slightly more than one hundred miles of Chicago.

Although motorists en route to southern resorts quickly free themselves from the snow problem, there are other aspects of Dixie driving that northerners should appreciate before starting the trip. Suggestions are pertinent because, from advance indications, this winter is to break all records of touring volumes.

The highways in the south, generally speaking, have better alignments. They were built later than northern roads laid before the days of 80 miles an hour automobiles. Land was cheaper, so it was not difficult to obtain favorable right of way.

The good roads and the light trafic invite speed. Hazards peculiar to the region are horse and mule drawn wagons and a distinctive driving habit of the southern farmer in a dilapidated flivver.

The wagons are in effect a barrier on the highway and must be reckoned as such in judging speed and distance upon overtaking them. Tourists must also be on the alert for the southern farmer to swing his car to the left of the pavement before making a right turn and to the right of the pavement in making a left turn.

Undefeated Setters Test St. Cyr Today

A battle for first place in the South Division and a severe test for St. Cyr, league champion, in the West, will be highlights of this afternoon's schedule in the Knights of Columbus Basketball league.

Loyola-Hyde Park and Englewood, the two remaining unbeaten teams in the South division, will meet in the headliner at White City. Loyola was divisional champion for three years up to last season, when it lost the title to Englewood. Aquinas vs. Quigley and Perez vs. Calumet are other important contests on the south side schedule.

Setters Test St. Cyr.

St. Cyr, for the last two seasons league champion, faces the unbeaten Setters club in the outstanding game at the K. C. clubhouse, 4711 West Madison street. The champions have lost two close games and another defeat practically will eliminate them from the running for honors. Against Setters the team will be reinforced by the return of Werner Frank.

Tonti vs. Hennepin-Shields and Barry vs. Carroll are other games for the west section.

Play Split Schedule.

The K. of C. league this season has adopted a split schedule plan, with the upper half of each division combining in a championship flight at the end of the first round. All games are hard fought, as any of them may mean the difference between playing in the upper and the lower divisions. The schedule:

WEST DIVISION.

Barry vs. Carroll.
Cardinal vs. Lafayette.
Setters vs. St. Cyr.
Tonti vs. Hennepin-Shields.

SOUTH DIVISION.

McHale vs. Santa Maria.
Perez vs. Calumet.
Aquinas vs. Quigley.
Loyola-Hyde Park vs. Englewood.

U. S. G. A. TO HOLD BIG TOURNEYS DURING 41ST YEAR

Forty years ago yesterday a group of gentlemen interested in golf were invited to a dinner by H. O. Tallmadge of New York. Next year the outgrowth of that same meeting, the present United States Golf association, will list such major events as the national open at Oakmont, the national amateur at Cleveland, and the national women's at Minneapolis.

Five clubs were represented at that first meeting in 1894. They included C. B. Macdonald and Arthur Ryerson of the Chicago Golf club, John Reid and H. O. Tallmadge of St. Andrews, T. A. Havemeyer and W. A. Rutherford of Newport, Gen. T. H. Barber and S. L. Parrish of Shinnecook Hills, and Laurence Curtis and P. S. Sears of Boston.

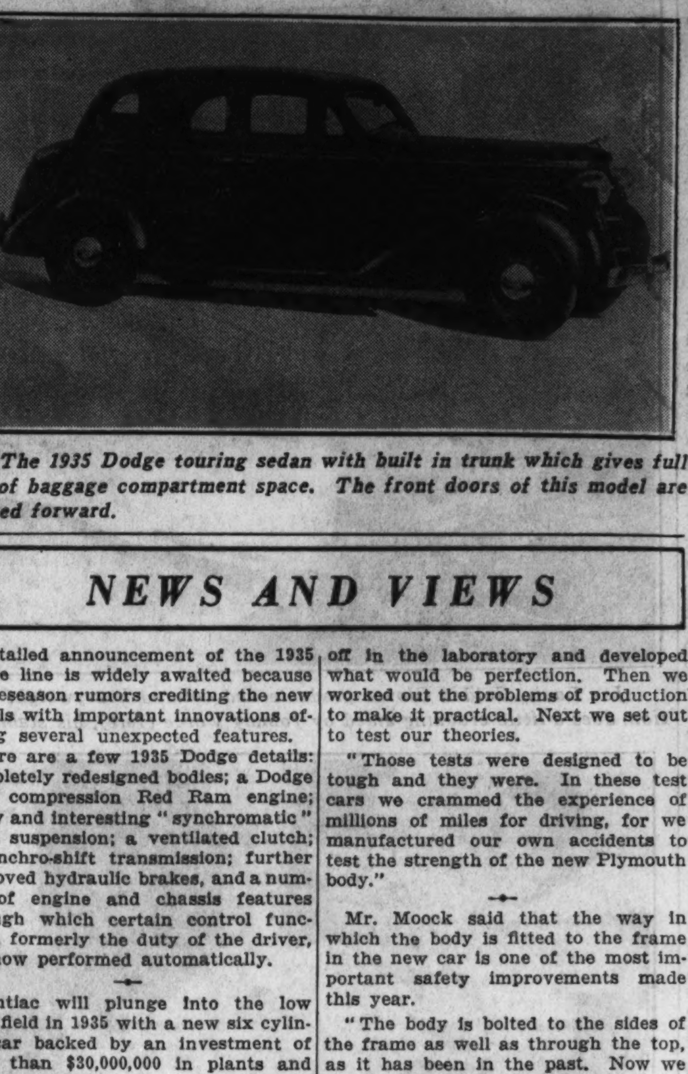
FOUR DOOR DODGE SEDAN



The 1935 Dodge touring sedan with built in trunk which gives full use of baggage compartment space. The front doors of this model are hinged forward.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Detailed announcement of the 1935 Dodge line is widely awaited because of preseason rumors crediting the new models with important innovations offering several unexpected features.

Here are a few 1935 Dodge details: Completely redesigned bodies; a Dodge high compression Red Ram engine; a new and interesting "synchromatic" front suspension; a ventilated clutch; a synchro-shift transmission; further improved hydraulic brakes, and a number of engine and chassis features through which certain control functions, formerly the duty of the driver, are now performed automatically.

Pontiac will plunge into the low price field in 1935 with a new six cylinder car backed by an investment of more than $30,000,000 in plants and machinery.

This information was revealed today to a group of newspaper men who saw and rode in the new six as well as the improved Pontiac straight eight which will be continued through next year. The features which made this year's Pontiac eight a dependable and economical car are incorporated in the new six. The largest investment that Pontiac has made in new tools and machinery since the introduction of Pontiac in 1926 will fortify the company's bid for business in 1935.

Oldsmobile in 1935 will feature the new solid steel "turret top" body by Fisher. The car will retain knee-action wheels and superhydraulic brakes will be bigger and roomier.

These were the high lights of the program of Oldsmobile next year, made public at a preview of the new cars to Lansing residents and automobile editors of the country.

With the factory already in production and the first cars shipped, Oldsmobile will announce the new automobiles to the public early in January, D. E. Ralston, vice president and general sales manager, said.

Appointment of A. E. Klemmedson, formerly of Los Angeles, Cal., as assistant manager of the Chicago branch of the Ford Motor company, is announced by W. K. Edmunds, in charge of Ford activities in the Chicago territory. Klemmedson succeeds W. C. Patterson, now manager of the recently reopened Ford branch at Charleston, N. C.

Laboratories, proving grounds and years of manufacturing experience combined to produce the new all steel body that will be a feature of the 1935 Plymouth, according to H. G. Moock, vice president in charge of sales.

"In planning this body we started off in the laboratory and developed what would be perfection. Then we worked out the problems of production to make it practical. Next we set out to test our theories.

"Those tests were designed to be tough and they were. In these test cars we crammed the experience of millions of miles for driving, for we manufactured our own accidents to test the strength of the new Plymouth body."

Mr. Moock said that the way in which the body is fitted to the frame in the new car is one of the most important safety improvements made this year.

"The body is bolted to the sides of the frame as well as through the top, as it has been in the past. Now we use forty-six bolts."

Conviction that the present upturn in business will continue during 1935 and with even greater acceleration as public confidence is steadily restored was expressed recently by J. C. Chick, who was in Chicago to address a special meeting of Cadillac and La Salle distributors and dealers from this territory.

"Practically every barometer of trade reflects the better conditions, an encouraging outlook that has been borne out on my present coast to coast trip," said Mr. Chick. "In every city where I have stopped business leaders have told me that their community has been inoculated with this new spirit of optimism and courage."

In line with its program of expansion the Bird-Sykes company, Graham car distributors, announces through B. G. Sykes, president, the opening of a used car salesroom at 2210-12 South Michigan avenue.

The two-story building that houses the used car showrooms is located directly across the street from the Bird-Sykes headquarters. During the period of 1912 to 1917 this structure served as the main building of the company.

W. A. Sullivan, formerly general manager of the Hudson and Terraplane branch in Milwaukee, has been appointed general sales manager of a new division of the Packard Motor Car company of Chicago, according to an announcement made last week by W. R. Bellows. In announcing Mr. Sullivan's appointment Mr. Bellows revealed plans for the enlargement of their sales organization for the purpose of distributing the new low priced car which Packard will display at the forthcoming automobile show.

POLICE SAFETY DETAIL.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—I am very much interested in a recent article appearing in THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE relative to nine squad cars added to the police safety detail, and which cars, I note, are to supplement those now in the accident prevention detail.

I would like very much to know why they call this department "accident prevention detail." I don't know that they have ever done anything to prevent an accident, but always appear on the scene after an accident occurs. It seems to me they should be rightfully called the accident cleanup detail, and then it wouldn't be a bad idea to carry a broom with them to sweep up the glass after the accident, which in most cases is left lying in the street to ruin perfectly good tires on cars of other motorists.

There is one enlightening feature of the article, however, and that is the "Keep Chicago Safe" committee, which, I understand, is trying to do something to cut down the number of accidents. The company by which I am employed, at 1701 Wellington avenue, is located at the corner of Wellington avenue and Paulina street, at which corner numerous accidents have occurred, which can be verified by referring to police records, and I suggest the "Keep Chicago Safe" committee immediately have installed at this corner warning lights which will at least give some of the motorists a break who may not know the danger existing at such a corner. CARL A. BLOOM.

ON RAINY DAYS.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Can't something be done about the new trafic signals, which, I grant, are excellent for the motorists. On a rainy day they are under cover, but what chance have pedestrians? Not only do they get drenched having to wait twice for signals in crossing but get splashed from head to toe while waiting in the middle of the street for the second signal and endangering life and limb by automobiles skidding on wet streets. What redress has one for a ruined garment? MRS. ROBERT MAYER.

FROM A NEW YORKER.

New York, Dec. 13.—The writer, a New York City motorist visiting Chicago, finds your Michigan avenue trafic regulations incomprehensible and highly dangerous. He finds the utmost difficulty in interpreting the winking green light, the orange glow, and the arrow. Above all, the cut-in on swiftly moving express trafic invites an accident.

New York has had its experiments. But no group of so-called trafic experts have so far gulled the city fathers where rank experiment is resorted to.

The metropolitan area has approximately three times the number of motor vehicles as are registered from Chicago. A study of trafic conditions in New York, and not in Philadelphia, should in consequence count for more. The writer is under the impression the Chicago system is copied from Baltimore. Why not study, say, Lima, O.? The comparison is no more ridiculous.

PLANS FOR 1935 AUTO SHOW IN CHICAGO O. K.'D

Approval of plans, including the decorative scheme, layout and lighting effects that will feature Chicago's 1935 annual automobile show, was given by the show committee at a meeting this week held in the Congress hotel, where headquarters have been established. The big exposition is set for the week of Jan. 26 to Feb. 2 at the Coliseum.

Some of the experts who produced the modernistic lighting effects at A Century of Progress have been consulted in drawing up the plans for Chicago's forthcoming motor classic. As a result, many steps for ard in the way of illumination have been adopted.

One of the greatest advancements will be the throwing of light on the exhibits instead of ceilingward, as formerly, and the cars will be so displayed as to eliminate shadows. Furthermore, the indirect lighting effects, so successful and popular at the World's Fair, will be applied throughout.

The decorative and lighting scheme will represent an investment of approximately $40,000. The job of designing and constructing the scenery for the show has kept a force of nearly a score of artists and artisans busy since Dec. 1. They will continue to be so engaged up to show time.

"Daring yet appropriate" has been the word issued to the scenic artists who are building the exposition. The show committee has instructed them to design something entirely different and at the same time more pleasing to visitors at the Coliseum.

H. T. Hollingshead, chairman of the show committee, announces the addition to that group of Harry Lewis, president of the Metropolitan Chicago Chevrolet Dealers' club. Other members are M. J. Lanahan, ex officio; V. C. P. Dreiske, J. J. Wright, and Franklin M. Miller.

FLORIDA DRIVERS' LICENSE BILL TO BE VOTED ON

BY HAL FOUST.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 19.—[By Mail.]—The Florida legislature, as in Illinois, will receive a drivers' license bill when it convenes next month. The press of the state, judging from editorials published during the week, is not friendly to the measure. Typical of these opinions was one in the Herald of Bradenton, Fla., reading as follows:

DRIVERS.

Basing opinion on Asher Frank's remarks made before this week's Tampa meeting of the state chamber of commerce, effort will be made by the governor's committee on public safety of which he is director to influence passage by the next legislature of a driver license law in the pretended interest of highway safety. Indeed, Mr. Frank professes to believe this is the key to the trafic problem, in spite of the fact that road accident records equal in violence to ours are being maintained in states that have passed every conceivable safety law and are maintaining highway patrols.

North Carolina, offered as an example of the effectiveness of the program proposed by our safety director, has one of the worst highway accident records in the south, suggesting that the driver license law and patrol operation have had no appreciable effect on conditions that were sought to be corrected. Pennsylvania, with its safety laws and far flung patrol, saw as many killed in accidents as lost their lives in this area in the series of wrecks occurring here recently, proving that the licensed driver is equally as thoughtless and reckless as unlicensed ones.

The Tampa Tribune, of the same mind, thinks the results to be expected from the proposed plan would not be justified, on the theory that carelessness is more responsible for the condition complained of.

As a revenue measure, the proposed license law would be successful since automobiles and trucks have become an absolute necessity in the transaction of every day business and must be kept in operation. But we have been told repeatedly by the governor that new taxes are not desired and—expect him to continue to support this position. It was only at the beginning of this year that motorists were given a measure of tax relief, by a slight reduction in the cost price of license tags. Is it fair to wipe out this now with a new tax, or can the public be expected to approve the plan when the records fail to justify it?

It isn't necessary to issue an individual a driving permit in order to take away from him when the law is violated. The courts can handle violations effectively under present laws, were they so inclined. The practice of permitting participants in road crashes to settle the matter between themselves may be the easiest way out, but any plan that ignores the public's interest in the matter is not satisfactory and will not tend to curb reckless driving. We have had major wrecks here in which lives were lost, but indictments were not returned by grand juries, others in which coroner's juries found no reason for holding any one responsible. A driver license law isn't going to correct this condition.

50 Cents a Year.

The tax proposed in the Illinois license bill has been drafted at 50 cents a year. This amount is not oppressive. Objections to the new excise are inspired mainly as a protest against the ever increasing tax burden borne by motorists, particularly against gasoline taxes that are used for other than highway purposes.

An argument for the passage of the Illinois bill that does not apply in Florida is that its enactment is essential to the enforcement of a financial responsibility act. This law would suspend the license of a driver found guilty of recklessness in a civil damage suit. The license would be reinstated when he paid the judgment and obtained liability insurance to protect the public against any future damage from his recklessness.

28 INDOOR AUTO DRIVERS MEET IN FOURTH RACE

Twenty-eight drivers meet tonight at the 124th Field Artillery armory for the fourth series of indoor automobile races.

Ten races and a match duel between the two fastest cars on the track will make up the program. The trials will start at 7:30 and the regular program at 8 o'clock.

Ted Hartley of Roanoke, Ind., who made his debut in last week's race, and won two events, and Wally Mitchell, winner of the main event of twenty laps, in which he lowered the track record, are favorites to win tonight's races.

Harold Shaw, Indianapolis star, and Jimmy Snyder, Chicago south side, who were winners in previous races at the armory will be seen with new machines.

British Amateur Golf Meet Opens May 20

The British amateur golf championship now held by W. Lawson Little Jr. of San Francisco will be contested over the Royal Lytham St. Anne links beginning May 20, 1935.

RFC GRIPS DEEP INTO NATION'S RAIL STRUCTURE

Holds Full or Part Rule of 5,000 Miles.

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The entrance of the Reconstruction Finance corporation into the management of the Denver and Salt Lake railway on Friday served, it was pointed out here, to accentuate the little known fact that the government agency holds in its strong box as collateral for loans stock giving full or part control of more than 5,000 miles of line.

Among the important lines the full or part control of which has been lodged with the RFC are the Alton, Denver and Rio Grande Western, Denver and Salt Lake, Lehigh Valley, Texas and Pacific, and Wheeling and Lake Erie. The Missouri Pacific, which pledged the Texas and Pacific stock, is in bankruptcy, and the Wabash, which pledged the Lehigh Valley stock, is in receivership.

Regarded as Special Case.

The action of the RFC in entering the management of the Denver and Salt Lake was described as what might be expected in special cases, but it was emphasized that the government agency planned no general move to supercede present railway managements.

The Rio Grande, which pledged the Denver and Salt Lake stock, has asked certain of its bondholders to defer the receipt of interest payments in order to preclude the necessity of the Rio Grande entering bankruptcy.

The conditions pertaining to each of these pledges varies. The Alton railroad pledge with the RFC comprises the 250,000 shares of its capital stock, all of which is held by the Baltimore and Oho. The B. & O. bought the Alton at foreclosure, so that the price it paid was fixed at a reasonable figure by court order.

Bought at High Prices.

The Denver and Salt Lake stock pledged with the RFC by the Rio Grande and the Wheeling stock pledged by the New York, Chicago, and St. Louis, represent securities bought at the maximum prices prevailing in the inflated stock markets of the predepression era.

One-half the control of the Rio Grande has been pledged with the RFC. The Western Pacific, which owns 150,000 Rio Grande shares, or one-half the controling interest, pledged these securities. The Missouri Pacific owns the other one-half control in the Rio Grande. Now in bankruptcy, the Missouri Pacific has pledged 114,750 common shares in the Texas and Pacific, or 29 per cent of the outstanding issue, with the RFC.

The New York, Chicago and St. Louis [Nickel Plate] acquired control of the Wheeling and Lake Erie at top market prices. It holds 115,193 prior lien, 14,800 preferred and 168,000 wheeling common shares, or 53 per cent control, all pledged with the RFC.

Other Holdings Pledged.

The Pittsburgh and West Virginia, which is controled by an affiliate of the Pennsylvania railroad, holds 28,400 Wheeling common shares and 4,200 preferred shares, or 13 per cent control, all pledged with the RFC.

The RFC acquired its stake in the Lehigh Valley by extending a loan to the Wabash for which the Wabash pledged all its 258,919 shares of Lehigh Valley common, or 24 per cent control.

The Southern Pacific company has pledged $12,000,000 par of stock, or one-half control in the Pacific Fruit Express company with the RFC. The Wabash has put up 1,217 capital shares, or 24 per cent control, in the American Refrigerator Transit company.

HARRIMAN BANK STOCKHOLDERS PAY $358,000 LEVY

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Shareholders of the Harriman National Bank and Trust company, the clearing house bank which failed to reopen after the bank holiday of March, 1933, have paid in $358,000 of the aggregate assessment of $2,000,000 levied against them by the controler of the currency.

The assessment called for 100 per cent payment of the $100 par value of the bank's capital shares. Shareholders were given the privilege of paying in equal instalments of 25 per cent on Dec. 20, Jan. 20, Feb. 20, and March 20.

Lake County HOLC Loans Reach $3,560,000 Total

Loans completed through the Home Owners' Loan corporation in Lake county total $3,560,000, the county recorder announced yesterday. The loans were made on 892 pieces of real estate, for an average of $4,000. These loans are more than half of all loans on real estate made in Lake county since the HOLC began operating. The recorder also announced that the Federal Subsistence Homestead corporation has acquired 800 acres in Lake county.

MARKETS ANNOUNCE HOLIDAY SCHEDULE

All-American commodity and security markets will be closed Tuesday, Christmas day. The Chicago Board of Trade and Chicago Mercantile exchange will adjourn at noon tomorrow until Wednesday morning. The New York Stock exchange and other security markets will observe the regular hours tomorrow. Foreign grain markets will close at noon tomorrow and will not resume business until Thursday morning.

Reserve Plan May Feed Out Bank Credit

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Housing administration loans and schemes to induce the federal reserve banks and the Reconstruction Finance corporation to make "working capital" loans have left the financial community cold because the concensus has been that such arrangements have limited possibilities at present and they are slow and cumbersome.

News from Washington yesterday that the treasury was drafting a bill to revise the requirements for business paper rediscountable at the federal reserve banks, however, aroused keen interest among bankers.

For months the administration has been trying to find a way to put billions of idle bank deposits to work quickly and profitably and thereby bring about a rapid expansion of credit.

* *

The housing administration program aims to get the banks back into the real estate business, but despite the fact that this scheme includes an insurance arrangement offering some measure of protection the results of the last bank spree in real estate investments are still too fresh in the memory of bankers who have survived the moratorium to cause them to be very enthusiastic about it.

The "working capital" loan idea was devised with the idea of getting the commercial banks, the federal reserve banks, and the RFC to make loans up to five years for "working capital" purposes to corporations whose credit was not good enough to enable them to get along on ordinary lines of credit. Here, too, the government offered some protection against loss in the form of insurance, but it was a "distress" proposition and not only the banks but the RFC has fought shy of it.

The treasury's new scheme, however, is different. The present law limits the paper that the federal reserve banks may rediscount to that with a maturity of not more than 90 days, except in the case of agricultural or live stock paper where maturities up to nine months are accepted.

* *

If the commercial banks should be permitted to make loans with a maturity of one to three years with the assurance that at any time they should be pressed for cash they could take this paper to the federal reserve banks and get the cash there would probably be a big increase in this type of longer term bank loans, especially in view of the fact that examiners are being coached by the treasury to be more generous in their appraisal of such loans.

There is a large potential demand for bank loans of one to three or more years by corporations anxious to replace obsolete machinery, remodel plants and fabricate goods which cannot be immediately sold for cash. Also, there are many corporations with bonds, notes or debentures maturing during the next year or so that would like to borrow money from banks, retire these securities, and pay off the bank loans over a period of several years.

* *

In many cases would-be borrowers can demonstrate their ability to repay bank loans of this "intermediate" term variety and the only thing that keeps the banker from lending the money is his disinclination to tie his funds up in "slow" paper. If he were assured that in the event of an emergency he would be able to ship these longer term loans to the federal reserve bank and borrow on it he would probably be glad to invest a sizeable proportion of his idle funds in such loans because of the comparatively high yield on this kind of paper.

Thus, the banks could keep liquid and at the same time not limit their loans and investments to the very low yield type of paper that they have had to be content with for the last two years.

Chief danger in the program lies in the fact that if it were successful in stimulating a moderate expansion of bank credit political pressure for opening wide the doors of the federal reserve banks to all sorts of loans and investments might be irresistible. Widening the eligibility list of the federal reserve banks too far would probably make currency inflation inevitable in the event of a serious emergency which would bring into the reserve banks a deluge of "cats and dogs."

Reports Large Increase in Trafic of Dixie Trains

During November and the first 19 days of December the Dixie trains of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway showed an increase of 50 per cent in trafic from Chicago and northern territory served by the line, E. H. Batchelder, general passenger agent, said yesterday. "Judging from present conditions," he said, "trafic over the route for the remaining months of the winter season ought to show the same proportionate increase."

RFC Sues Republic Bank Stockholders in New York

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Suit against stockholders of the Central Republic Trust company of Chicago who live within the jurisdiction of the federal court of the southern district of New York for the par value of their capital stock, approximately $500,000, was begun today by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Three Chicago Banks to Repay 5 to 10 Pct.

Depositors of three more closed Chicago banks—Chicago Bank of Commerce, Builders and Merchants' Bank and Trust company, and Immel State bank—will have part of their frozen funds returned before Christmas. State Auditor Edward J. Barrett yesterday announced that checks aggregating $677,000 will be available tomorrow.

The declaration of 10 per cent, or $501,000, for creditors of the Bank of Commerce was announced a week ago, but some doubt remained that checks could be put out by Christmas. This will be the first repayment since the bank closed June 25, 1932, owing depositors more than $4,500,000, and is possible now only because of an arrangement to pay depositors and preferred creditors alike, pending disposition of disputed claims for preference.

Acquired in Liquidation.

Funds were acquired in ordinary liquidation. A good loss record, about 13 per cent, has been maintained. The Sept. 30 report on the bank's condition showed liabilities about two-thirds as great as book value of remaining assets. Despite the admittedly bloated nature of all book values, a fairly good eventual payout is indicated. The bank previously had paid $673,152 in bills and $58,433 to preferred creditors.

A 5 per cent "dividend" of $145,000 will go to depositors of the Builders and Merchants' bank to bring total repayments up to 30 per cent since the institution closed April 13, 1931. Preferred creditors have received $464,722, and $493,204 has been disbursed for bills payable. Money for the payment was obtained through ordinary liquidation.

Conversion Loss 18 Per Cent.

Loss in conversion of assets to cash had been 18 per cent up to the Sept. 30 report of the state auditor. Assets had dwindled until even their book value of $2,173,580 was less than the balance of $2,189,957 due creditors. This would not justify any belief that the bank's eventual payout will approach the amount due depositors.

The Immel State payment also is 5 per cent, amounting to $30,868 and raising the total return to 15 per cent. A stockholders' liability suit provided 7-10 per cent, while ordinary liquidation yielded the remainder. Preferred creditors have been paid $16,002.

Losses in converting assets to cash have been small—less than 6 per cent—but on Sept. 30 the balance due creditors was almost four-fifths as great as the book value of remaining assets. Because of the fine loss record, however, future prospects are regarded as fairly good.

Fort Dodge, Ia., Bank Joins Federal Reserve System

The State Bank of Fort Dodge, Ia., has been admitted to the federal reserve system and licensed by the treasury as a member of the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago, it was announced here yesterday. The Fort Dodge institution up to now has been operating as an unrestricted nonmember bank.

STAR OF CHRISTMAS CASTS MELLOW GLOW ON NATION'S TRADE

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

Major business barometers for the country pointed "fair and warmer" during the last week. The best Christmas shopping season in years, probably since 1930, drew to a close, and weekly reports of steel production, movement of railway freight, and production of electric power, all showed exceptional gains for this season.

Steel production, which usually declines in the last few weeks of the year, has increased for the ninth successive week, and was estimated last week by the American Iron and Steel institute at 34.6 per cent of capacity, the best since June.

For the second successive week, the movement of freight was reported well above 1933, giving rise to hopes that after nearly six months of running behind the previous year the trend was again definitly upward.

Retail sales in the Chicago area of the seventh federal reserve district was reported last week by department stores to be the best since 1930 and nearing the largest volume ever experienced. Marshall Field & Co. recorded strong reorders in the wholesale division. Sears, Roebuck & Co. reported sales since Dec. 4 gained more than 7 per cent over last year. Montgomery Ward & Co. anticipated the best December since 1929.

Meat production was slightly less than last week. Steel production was the best in months. Commonwealth Edison reported power production continued to rise.

DEMANDS SPEEDY REORGANIZATION OF M. & ST. L. LINE

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Quick reorganization and ending of the receivership of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad was demanded today by Circuit Judge Wilbur F. Booth as he prepared to name a receiver to succeed the late W. H. Dremner.

The court took under advisement the selection of a receiver. Two names were presented by attorneys—L. C. Sprague, veteran railroad man, who was sponsored by the reorganization committee representing bondholders, and John Junell, Minneapolis attorney, who was backed by preferred creditors and holders of receiver's certificates.

"The sale of the road has been set for Feb. 11," Judge Booth said, "and I expect some decisive step to be taken on or before that time. One of the chief duties of the receiver will be to bring one plan or another for reorganization to a conclusion."

Du Pont Buys Interest in Krebs Pigment Corp.

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Arrangements have been completed for the purchase by E. I. du Pone de Nemours & Co. from the Commercial Solvents corporation of the latter's 30 per cent interest in the Krebs Pigment and Color corporation, it was announced today. The deal, it was said, will be completed on Dec. 31. The amount involved was reported to be $7,430,000.

RFC Makes $223,000 Profit Selling Chicago School Bonds

Federal munificence in pouring more than 22 million dollars in Chicago last August to pay the city's school teachers has been richly rewarded. The easy money has all been regained and the Reconstruction Finance corporation, one of the administration's cash registers, was enabled to ring up a profit of $223,000 on the deal.

Chicago banks last Monday purchased the $22,300,000 issue from the RFC at a one point premium, the RFC originally having taken the bonds at par. The banks re-offered them to the public last Friday, at 103, keeping $446,000 profit, less expenses. Most of the issue was sold immediately.

Jones Tells Sale Conditions.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, in discussing the deal in an address yesterday at Houston, Tex., said he was agreed Chicago should pay all past due bills and salaries and owe no past due accounts.

"We sold the bonds Thursday," he said, "for $22,523,000, and got the money today. We made a $223,000 profit."

Local bankers, while admitting that the Chicago board of education's credit was good last summer, assert the public was not aware of the fact. This, they say, prevented them from caring for Chicago's difficulties and forced the request for aid to the "great white father."

Public Eager for Bonds.

Yet in the brief space of a few months the public grew so cognizant of the improved credit standing that a large portion of the issue had been contracted for before public offering was made officially.

The bonds mature in 20 years, are callable in 10 years, and bear 4½ per cent interest. Nonschool properties of the board of education, together with rents and profits estimated at $850,000 annually, were pledged as security.

Jobs and Pay Show Decline for Illinois

A general decline in both jobs and wages throughout Illinois from October to November was disclosed by the state department of labor last night from figures of 4,627 industrial concerns. The drop in activity was greater than the seasonal average of 6-10 of 1 per cent in employment and 1.7 per cent in pay rolls.

For both the Chicago metropolitan area and the state as a whole, employment was down 2.7 per cent. In Chicago proper 2,939 firms showed declines of 2.7 in employment and 3.9 in pay rolls. Wages for 3,237 concerns in the metropolitan area slipped 4.1 per cent from October to November, while the decrease over the state was 3.6 per cent.

Manufactures Decline Most.

Manufacturers—2,063 firms—reported sharper dips than their nonmanufacturing brethren in the state with losses of 4.3 per cent in jobs and 4.8 per cent in pay rolls. The other industries had declines of only 2-10 of 1 per cent in employment and 2.1 per cent in wages.

Women workers fared worse than men. The 3,923 establishments reporting data separately by sexes showed 2.4 per cent less men and 4.4 per cent less women workers, while wages dropped 3.2 and 7.5 per cent, respectively.

Seven of the nine manufacturing classifications showed declines in both wages and jobs. The food, beverage, and tobacco group and the clothing and millinery industry suffered particularly. The two classes to gain were fur and lether goods, and printing and paper goods.

Non-Manufacturing Recedes.

The public utilities, builders and contractors, and the services contributed most to losses in the non-manufacturing industries. The second group reported losses of 11.2 and 14.4 per cent in employment and pay rolls, with road construction lagging most.

Increases in both workers and wages were shown by the wholesale and retail trade concerns and the coal mining industry in the non-manufacturing group. Mail order houses boosted employment 9.5 per cent and pay rolls 7.7 per cent to be largely responsible for the trade concerns' rises of 2.8 and 0.9 per cent, respectively.

Weekly earnings of both sexes in all industries averaged $21.60—$23.90 for men and $14.57 for women. The non-manufacturing industries were slightly above the over-all average.

NATL. INVESTORS PROPOSES UNIT CONSOLIDATION

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The consolidation of the National Investors corporation and its units into a new company to be known as National Investors corporation is proposed in a letter sent to stockholders by Fred Y. Presley, president of the companies. The letter states that "one of the fundamental objectives of the plan would be to improve the marketability of the shares and to reduce the disparity existing between asset value and market price for certain classes of stock."

Under the proposed plan the new company will own assets of the four existing companies and will assume their liabilities. The new company will have but one class of stock.

Sale of Fox West Coast Theater Chain Approved

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Federal District Judge George Cosgrave today approved the proposed sale of Fox West Coast theaters chain, with 125 show houses in several states, to the National Theaters corporation, a reorganization group. The transaction will involve payment of $15,000,000. Judge Cosgrave said he is satisfied reorganization would provide for payment of all creditors' claims.

Rosenbaum Grain Buys Turner-Hudnut Company

Purchase of the Turner-Hudnut Grain company at Pekin, Ill., by the Rosenbaum Grain corporation of Chicago was announced yesterday by E. S. Rosenbaum. The Pekin company will continue to operate under its present name. Included in the purchase were 11 feeder elevators along the Illinois river and other points of the state. The purchase price was not disclosed.

NRA SUSPENDS PRICE FIXING IN LUMBER CODES

Regarded as Step to Abandon Principle.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—All price fixing provisions of the lumber and timber products code were suspended today by the national industrial recovery board, a step in line with the declared policy of S. Clay Williams, chairman of the board, to end price fixing as a recovery policy as soon as possible. Production control features of the code were continued in full force, however.

A series of open hearings on the general question of price regulation by codes is scheduled by the board to begin on Jan. 9. NRA officials said today, however, that the lumber decision would have been made, regardless of the imminence of these hearings, on the basis of evidence from members of the industry presented on Dec. 11, 12, and 13.

Finds Price Fixing Harmful.

Despite the apparent conviction of the recovery board that price fixing provisions have been largely ineffectual and positively harmful in some cases, considerable sentiment still exists in business circles for its continuance. This was brought out at the lumber hearings, where more witnesses appeared favoring retention than advocated abolition.

Among lumber men, the retailers more than any other branch of the industry appeared to favor price control. The board, in deciding to do away with the price fixing regulations, decided that the witnesses who wanted them abolished represented a larger portion of the industry than did their opponents.

Principle Creeps Into Codes.

Price fixing crept into NRA codes, an official said today, against the better judgment of many members of the administration. It was first adopted in the petroleum code. Its advocates urged it as a means of conserving a natural resource. There were no precedents to go by and they had their way.

From there it spread to other natural resources industries and then to other codes. Minimum price schedules of the lumber code became effective Nov. 10, 1933. The government lost a number of test cases, specially in southern courts, based on the alleged unconstitutionality of the price fixing provisions.

DOLLAR EASES AGAINST POUND; FRANC IS STEADY.

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The dollar was steady to lower against leading foreign currencies in a quiet exchange market today. British pound sterling rose ½ cent to $4.94½ after closing in London at the same quotation.

French francs were unchanged at 6.60⅛ cents, with the value of the dollar at 59.35 cents, based on the old par of the franc, while calculated on the new par of the franc the dollar was worth $1.0049.

Belgas gained 2 points to close at 23.42 and guilders 1 point to 67.66 cents. Swiss francs were unchanged at 32.40 cents, while Italian lire were up ½ point at 8.55½ cents. Scandinavian currencies were up 1 to 2 points. German marks gained 1 point to 40.23 cents, while Canadian funds were 3⅛ points higher at $1.0093¾.

In London bullion brokers reduced the price of gold 2½ pence to 140 shillings 8½ pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.76, based on the opening of sterling at $4.94⅛. Bars valued at $554,280 were purchased.

The New York Reserve bank reported the receipt of $1,052,100 gold from England.

66 FAVORABLE DIVIDENDS ARE VOTED IN WEEK

Last week sixty-six favorable dividend changes were voted, Standard Statistics company announced yesterday. This compared with seventy-five in the preceding week and with the exception of that week was the best record for any week since the beginning of the depression. Unfavorable dividend actions were five, against twelve in the preceding week.

William R. Moore Dry Goods company declared a cash dividend of 10 per cent, amounting to $225,000, and a stock dividend of an equal amount. Employés of the company received a Christmas bonus amounting to $27,000.

Hint General Electric Co. May Retire Special Stock

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The recent decline of General Electric company special stock to levels nearer its callable price of $11 a share prompted reports in several Wall street circles today that the company was preparing to join the growing list of organizations that have utilized their big surpluses to retire high cost debt.

Favorable money conditions and the fact that General Electric, as of the last annual report, had $111,878,508 in cash, or the equivalent, are the considerations which have led to the reports.

Has Been Active.

The special stock, regarded as a high class investment, has been especially active in recent sessions, selling off slightly. In the past it had varied little in price despite weakness in other parts of the list.

A total of $42,929,640 is outstanding. The stock was issued in 1922 to be paid out to stockholders of the company as dividends. It pays 60 cents a share annually. The first dividend payment in this stock, amounting to $8,717,265, came shortly after the issue was authorized. This was followed by additional annual payments until the entire authorized amount had been distributed.

Cost Is 6 Per Cent.

Holding priority over the common shares only in the matter of dividends, the issue is costing the corporation a rate of 6 per cent annually. Thus, should the company decide to retire the issue, it would result in a substantial saving and would permit the utilization of the company's surplus cash balances at a time when these funds can no longer be put to the same profitable use of a few years ago.

The company has the privilege of retiring the issue, in whole or in part, on any interest date on ninety days' notice.

O'Connor May Stick to Guns, Fight Crowley

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—Controler of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor, whose official retirement was scheduled for the end of the year, now may stick to his guns and not resign, it was learned here today.

J. F. T. O'CONNOR.

Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, has been seeking to force O'Connor out of the controlership because of personal differences and because of a desire on Crowley's part to combine the powers of the FDIC and the controler's office. Crowley was planning to become both controler and head of the FDIC.

Offered Another Job.

To further his plan the federal reserve board was persuaded, after once turning the proposal down, to offer O'Connor the post of federal reserve agent at San Francisco, a position paying at least $24,000 a year. O'Connor let it be known indirectly that he would not make up his mind about the offer until the end of the year.

A week ago O'Connor went to the White House for a conference with President Roosevelt, which the President later denied had anything to do with O'Connor's future. Nevertheless, the Crowley forces were jubilant, feeling sure that O'Connor would get his marching orders.

No Plan to Retire.

What transpired at the White House still is not known, but it is known that O'Connor now has no plans for retiring at the end of the year. He apparently is disposed to retain the controlership and see what will happen.

Crowley's program calls, in the last analysis, for new legislation merging the controlership in the FDIC. If O'Connor sticks to his guns, observers believe he can beat Crowley in congress. Crowley, a conservative Wisconsin Democrat, is without strength in his home state since the La Follette victory there.

CITROEN REVEALS QUARTER LOSS OF 57,500,000 FRANCS

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Dec. 22.—The Societe Andre Citreon, which went into receivership yesterday, reported today that at the end of the fiscal year, June 30, the famous automobile firm had lost 83,000,000 francs, and in the first quarter of the new fiscal year it lost 57,500,000. [The franc is quoted at 6.6 cents]. Demand liabilities totaled 506,000,000, but reliable assets reached 933,000,000.

It was revealed today that until September, the government considered helping Citroen. Acting through the Bank of France, it is said to have offered new capital on condition that Citroen submit to rigid financial control and write down his capital stock. When he refused these terms, the government withdrew all offers.

The factories closed today for a ten day Christmas holiday during which inventory will be taken. Work will then be resumed while Tribunal of Commerce experts go into the company's affairs.

The common stock was quoted at 54 francs today, against 500 par value and a record high of 2,140, reached during 1929.

ELECTRIC GOODS BUSINESS UP 30%, SWOPE REPORTS

Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The volume of electrical manufacturing business this year has been more than 30 per cent larger than in 1933, Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric company, said today in forecasting continued improvement during 1935.

Largely due to the increased use of electrical appliances, consumption of electricity in the United States, was 7 per cent greater in 1934 than in the previous year and is almost up to its maximum of 1929 and 1930, he said.

"The electrical manufacturing industry, and industry in general, has felt most seriously the failure of the revival of orders for capital goods," he said. "But with the increased use of consumers' goods in general, capital goods must also increase."

National Standard Co. Re-elects Officers, Board

The National-Standard company announced yesterday that all directors and officers of the company have been reëlected for the coming year.

U. S. MAY WIELD TAX CLUBS TO CURTAIL CROPS

Recent Control Vote Paving Way.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Federal taxation to compel farmers to hold their production down to usable limits loomed as an even more imminent probability today in the farm administration.

Results of the Kerr-Smith tobacco act referendum, showing overwhelming support of producers of that crop, coming swift on the heels of the 9 to 1 endorsement of the Bankhead compulsory act on cotton, convinced AAA officials that the change from voluntary to compulsory control of production had advanced by a long stride.

Economists in the administration have become more skeptical in recent months of any material restoration of foreign markets during the coming five years as they watched the failure of the international wheat agreement, the slow progress in drawing reciprocal trade agreements, and new moves toward self-sufficiency among European nations.

Spell Self-Sufficiency.

These factors spell enforced self-sufficiency for the United States, many of them believe, and, almost inevitably, compulsory control of farm production to prevent accumulation of new surpluses by those farmers who would expand production.

Many officials have fought the trend toward compulsion on the grounds of principle, indicating a distinct distaste for such radical measures. They indicated today, however, that they would accept the will of farmers not only in controling the output of cotton and tobacco, but also for wheat, corn, hogs, and other crops "if the producers demand it and agree to accept the inevitable penalties of that drastic method."

Vote Heavily for Control.

An overwhelming majority in favor of continuing the Kerr-Smith tobacco control act for another year was recorded today in incomplete returns from a poll of the nation's tobacco growers by the Agricultural Adjustment administration.

In Kentucky, officials estimated 95 per cent of the burley acreage would be voted for further crop restriction. In 22 counties of the Kentucky burley belt, 26,561 growers voted for the act and 2,225 against.

Virginia reports showed approximately 99 per cent of the flue cured, 90 per cent of the fire cured and 93 per cent of the burley growers were favorable to the act.

Sue to Block Control.

Greensboro, N. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—A court fight against the Kerr-Smith tobacco act, was launched here today.

The Piedmont Tobacco Nontax association petitioned in federal court for an injunction restraining the collector of internal revenue from imposing the 25 per cent tax now in effect on nonsigners under the act.

The petition contends the act is unconstitutional in imposing a tax for purposes other than raising revenue. The association bringing the suit is composed largely of farmers in Forsyth and Davidson counties.

Tobacco Prices Firm.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Tobacco markets were closed today for a holiday ending Dec. 31. Closing prices were steady to strong as compared with the market early this week. Volume improved this week with better handling weather, but offerings continued largely medium and low quality.

TRADE MEASURED IN CHECKS SHOWS 21 PER CENT GAIN

Business activity in the Seventh federal reserve district, as indicated by the movement of checks in clearing house cities, rose sharply for the week ended Dec. 19, both as compared with the previous week and the corresponding week a year ago.

The Chicago reserve bank's reports from 154 banks in 40 cities showed debits to individual accounts aggregating $993,061,000, a rise of 21 per cent over $821,025,000 in the previous week. Figures for 39 cities available showed debits of $991,737,000, against $790,439,000, an increase of 25.5 per cent over the corresponding week a year ago.

Only three—Springfield, Ill., Saginaw, Mich., and Oshkosh, Wis.—of the 39 clearing house cities showed decreases from a year ago. Chicago showed a rise from $515,151,000 to $611,052,000. The Detroit figure was up from $92,015,000 to $154,490,000. Milwaukee's debits rose from $44,767,000 to $52,165,000. Indianapolis had a rise from $29,011,000 to $38,596,000. Peoria checks increased from $10,220,000 to $10,728,000.

FLURRY IN RADIO SHARES WEAKENS GENERAL LIST

"B" Stock Falls 5 Points; Common Gains.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 22.—Radio corporation shares occupied the spotlight in today's dealings on the stock exchange. The issues were turned over in heavy volume—they accounted for a good fifth of the day's total sales—and price movements were sharp in some instances. The B stock finished nearly five points lower, and the A gave up 1⅜, but the common moved up to 5½, a net gain of ⅝ of a point. Blocks of 4,000 to 9,000 shares of the stock came out at intervals.

The flurry in this corner of the market was due to the announcement of the corporation's directorate that it had rejected proposals to readjust the capital structure of the company at this time to clear up dividend arrears on the preferred B stock.

Common Had Declined.

Recently the common stock had been depressed by reports that the plan would dilute those shares through payment of arrearages on the preferred. B shares have been performing rather spectacularly for several weeks.

The action of radio issues had a dampening effect on operations elsewhere, and the main list drifted irregularly lower. U. S. Steel, American Can, Atchison, Case, American Tobacco, New York Central, Montgomery Ward, Standard Oil of New Jersey, and most of the other leaders finished fractionally lower, while losses in the preferred section ran to 4 and 5 points. American Can touched a new high for the year on a slight rise before turning down with the rest.

Rails continued under light pressure. Baltimore and Ohio bumped a new low for the year on light dealings.

Some Issues Rise.

Scattered issues bucked the trend. National Distillers continued to make capital out of the holiday boom in the business, rising nearly a point. American Telephone, which has been on the defensive for the last week or so, regained a point. Other utilities held steady. Brokers reported that the selling in this group brought on by threats of government competition and added taxes seemed to be drying up.

The day's turnover was 503,460 shares.

MEAT SHOP CODE GETS APPROVAL OF ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today approved a code for retail meat stores, calling for a maximum work week of 48 hours and a minimum wage of $10 to $15 a week, depending upon population.

The south was given a $1 a week wage differential, and a separate schedule approved for kosher stores. The code is to take effect Dec. 31 and to cover stores where meat sales account for more than 50 per cent of total sales.

The kosher wage minimum is to be $25 in cities over 1,000,000 population, and $20 elsewhere for employés engaged in cutting or preparing meats. Messenger boys and delivery boys in the south are not subject to the minimum wage provisions, but must receive at least 20 per cent more than they got last June 15.

Real Estate Trust Files Reorganization Petition

The Central Industrial Real Estate Trust, 38 South Dearborn street, yesterday filed a voluntary reorganization petition in the United States District court under the 77-B bankruptcy law. The trust, of which David E. Shanahan, Arthur G. Leonard, and Halsey E. Poronto are trustees, owns and operates warehouses and industrial plants in Chicago and several other cities throughout the country. The liabilities of the concern, according to the petition, are about $2,500,000 while the assets are listed at a book value of $3,769,373.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was firmer today on further covering and buying by houses with southern and cotton connections, promoted by the firmness of crude oil, which sold at 9c at all southern points. Final prices were 4 to 9 points net higher, with sales of 67 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal. December closed 10.20c per pound: January, 10.28c; March, 10.20c; May, 10.26c; July, 10.38c.

COTTON UNDERTONE FIRM; PRICES UP 3 TO 10 POINTS

Cotton markets showed a firm undertone yesterday, continued favorable reported regarding domestic demand for textiles and reports of a firm spot basis in the south having some effect. Scattered liquidation and profit taking was absorbed by trade buying. Liverpool cables were much better than due. Closing trades here were 4 to 10 points higher and other markets 3 to 10 points higher. Spot cotton closed 5 to 10 points higher, with New Orleans 12.85 cents and New York, Galveston, and Houston, 12.80 cents per pound. Prices follow:

EGG PRICES RISE SHARPLY; BUTTER GAINS ¼ TO ⅜ CENT

Egg futures advanced sharply on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, active buying on the forecast of a cold wave sending prices up ⅞ to 1 cent per dozen, or $120 per carlot. Butter closed ¼@⅜ cents per pound higher.

The buying in eggs started at the opening and held well throughout the session. Shorts were prominent in covering but new buyers also got the market on an active scale. Storage withdrawals continued moderate, running 14,000 cases behind last year.

Butter advanced on light buying, January coming in for most of the attention. The open interest in January is rather large, being more than double the year ago commitment. Storage figures were 70,000 lbs. better than last year.

Sales: butter, 49 cars; eggs, 121 cars. Deliveries: eggs, 3 cars. Prices follow:

LARD PRICES REACH NEW HIGH LEVEL FOR SEASON

A government report suggesting the spring and fall pig crop this year was about 28,000,000 head short of 1933, and possibly the smallest in thirty-five years, lifted lard futures to new high levels for the season yesterday. Offerings were not large and the close was around the top with net gains of 17½ to 20 points. Bellies were unchanged to 5 points higher. Cash lard was quoted at 11.70 cents; loose, 11.10 cents; leaf, 11.12 cents, and bellies at 14.77 cents per pound. Prices follow:

GRAINS FIRMER; TRADERS EVEN UP FOR HOLIDAY

Short Sellers Cover on Cold Wave Forecast.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

After sailing tranquilly through a week of quiet trading the grain market yesterday encountered mild disturbance in the form of short covering from professional traders. Prices were pointed up again with corn showing largest gain for the day. Covering of short accounts was inspired by reports of unfavorable harvesting weather in Argentina, a slight upturn in foreign markets and the prediction of a cold wave over the grain belt in this country.

Impending cold weather is likely to stimulate the demand for corn, according to the reasoning of the trade, and this was offered in explanation of the steadiness of prices in the cash grain market. Principal foreign grain markets will be closed both Tuesday and Wednesday this week and the Chicago market will close at noon tomorrow and will not reopen until Wednesday morning.

Even Up for Holidays.

Preparation for this suspension of business provided an additional incentive for evening up commitments. The advance in corn futures for the day ranged from ⅞ to 1½ cents a bushel. Wheat was up ⅜ to ¾ cent. Closing prices on the May futures were:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$ .99⅛	$ .99⅝	$1.00⅛
Corn	.87½	.86⅝	.88⅜
Oats	.52	.51¼	.53⅜
Rye	.76⅛	.75¾	.77½

Trading in all grains was light. In the cash markets, while prices were steadier, there developed no business of consequence. Commercial demand for corn has reached a low ebb and it is not expected to revive until after the holidays. The holiday slack in business applies not only in this country but also abroad. World shipments of grain are small and foreign markets were extremely dull all week.

Foresee Dull Foreign Demand.

The prospects for a real revival in the foreign demand for wheat after the holidays is not particularly bright, according to messages from abroad. The importing countries are fairly well stocked with wheat and the Argentine and Australian crops are now ready to move into the world market.

It is asserted that these conditions are likely to prevent any material advance in foreign prices for the present.

The Investors' Christmas.

Christmas trees will twinkle more brightly for investors this year than last. Securities generally, even real estate bonds, are up in price and more optimism is in the air.

Inquiries to Investors' Guide are again on the uptrend, indicating that the small investor once more has hopes that his odd lot shares have a future. Gratifyingly, an increasing number of inquirers are asking whether they should take their profits instead of, as formerly, whether they should sell before their paper becomes worthless.

At this season of the year, however, it is well to remind the uninformed investor once again that Santa Claus does not exist, even in the securities field. It appears that this is the logical place to point out some of the Christmas gifts that investors should avoid.

GOLD MINES—The offering of stock of gold mining companies that are still in the promotional stage continues apace. It is hard to conceive of an investment that is more packed with risk than such stock, even though the promotion should be legitimate. The commission on the sale of such stock, according to the prospectuses received by this department, ranges anywhere from 25 to 40 per cent.

ASSESSMENT LIFE INSURANCE—Inquiries indicate that these firms, some of which operate in states wherein they have not been licensed, and many of which operate under exorbitant expenses, have not let up in their sales efforts. Although a few operate reputably, the bulk of them are not proper vehicles of insurance for the person of small means, he who is most in need of insurance.

WHISKY WAREHOUSE CERTIFICATES—The adverse publicity given to the sale of receipts for barreled whisky for investment purposes in this column and elsewhere has helped check their sales. Investors' Guide does not regard them as desirable investments—first, because of the heavy writeup [ranging 100 per cent up] and, second, increasing evidence of overcapacity in the distilling industry, which is diverting a large percentage of current production into bonded warehouses to age. This condition, according to well informed people in the business, will hold the price of bonded whisky down in years to come.

CEMETERY LOTS—Several firms have been soliciting holders of sharply depreciated securities to trade in their bonds or stocks for cemetery lots. Some salesmen have glibly told them that the company "guarantees" that within two years the lotholder will receive for his lot the amount he paid for the security, according to inquirers' letters. A careful reading of the sales contract, however, discloses no such guarantee in writing. Investors' Guide has consistently warned against such trades.

10 govt. issues	107.94	107.81	106.92	107.40

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 22.—Prices in the listed bond market eased slightly today in dull trading. United States government issues were mixed with declines of 1-32d point to 10-32ds point, interspersed with rises of 1-32d to 4-32ds point. Numerically the declines about balanced the advances.

The weakest issue in the government list was that of the treasury 3⅜s of 1940-'43, which showed 10-32ds point loss. The decline occurred, however, on a turnover of one bond. Treasury 4s of 1944-'54 showed the largest advance.

Sales Near Six Millions.

Dealings in all bonds totaled $5,839,000, about the same as last Saturday. Transactions in government issues made up $1,067,200 of the total today, compared with $828,700 a week ago.

Despite the prevalence of small recessions in quotations the market gave the appearance of underlying firmness. There was no indication that the recession which had set in on Thursday was developing into a major movement.

In view of the prevailing surplus of bank funds and the conditions making for prolonged ease in money rates, there was little disposition in bond market circles to attach great significance to the current pause in the long rise of high grade bond prices.

Some Pressure on Utilities.

Utilities continued under some pressure, although Consolidated Gas issues showed resistance. The high grade rails were moderately firm, while the majority of industrial issues showed no important change.

Foreign bonds bid better than domestics showing improved quotations in nearly all divisions. Argentine, Brazilian, and Colombian issues were slightly higher, while Chilean and Peruvian bonds were inclined to be softer or unchanged. German bonds were higher with the government 7s up a point to 38½ and the 5½s up ¼ point to 28¼. French 7½s rose a point to 185 and United Kingdom 5½s dropped ⅝ point to 114.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Raw sugar was quiet today, and as no sales were reported prices were unchanged at 2.60c per pound for stock for January use. Refiners were said to be interested at this level for sugars in position to suit, but there was nothing firmly offered below 2.65c. After selling 1 to 2 points higher, there were partial reactions in futures, with the market closing net unchanged to 2 points higher. Sales, 8,550 tons.

FRANCE MAY END DOUBLE TAXING OF U. S. FIRMS

Deputies Ratify Treaty; Now Up to Senate.

PARIS, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The Tardieu-Edge treaty abolishing double taxation was ratified today by the chamber of deputies after a delay of two and a half hours. Ratification, which had been urged by Foreign Minister Pierre Laval, came without debate or a record vote. It now goes to the senate with the government hoping for final ratification before Christmas.

Action by the chamber quickly followed upon the recommendation of the chamber finance committee that the accord between the United States and France be carried out. Criticism that the treaty was less favorable to France than to the United States was overcome by the committee's decision to ask for supplementary provisions "safeguarding the French interests."

Trade Relations Fostered.

Franco-American trade relations receive a boost by the ratification, which brings to an end the controversial problem of many years' standing and represents a saving estimated at $120,000,000 for American firms.

The treaty contains ten articles establishing regulations for taxation of American and French businesses established in the two countries and defines the kinds of revenue for which double taxation is avoided.

Under the old French law French branches of American business houses were subject to taxation not only on the profits they made in France but on a part of the profit made by the parent company all over the world. The treaty specifically bases taxation only on the business actually done in France.

Wheat Measure Is Passed.

Premier Pierre-Etienne Flanding today urged his free wheat market legislation toward speedy adoption in the senate, demanding and getting a 188 to 40 vote of confidence.

He insisted that the senate scrap its substitute measure and consider only the government's bill, which provides that the government may purchase the 1933 and 1934 crop surplus, estimated at 80,000,000 bushels, at the six month average price on the proposed free market. The bill passed the chamber Dec. 13.

The senate today assured Flandin of continuation of dictatorial powers over tarifs given his predecessors, Gaston Doumergue, quickly adopting a bill previously voted by the chamber which enables the government to alter duties by decree.

COURT ALLOWS TRUSTEES' FEES TOTALING $31,725

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday authorized fees and compensation aggregating $31,725 to the receivers and attorneys in the Trustees System Discount company equity receivership. The company is now being reorganized in federal court under section 77-B of the amended bankruptcy law.

Frank O. Birney, who was appointed receiver of the company in November, 1932, was allowed $10,000. The law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, & Martin, attorney for the receiver, received $20,000. The court allowed $1,500 to the estate of the late Richard L. Stewart, who acted as co-receiver with Mr. Birney until his death. Thomas J. Peden, special master in chancery, was allowed $225.

HOGS ADVANCE 30 TO 75 CENTS IN LAST WEEK

A marked letup in the movement of hogs, particularly the lighter weights, and the department of agriculture report showing a 48 per cent decrease in the fall pig crop were outstanding developments of the live stock trade in the last week. Supplies were the second lightest since early November and 30 per cent smaller than during the preceding week.

The decrease was accompanied by a sharp rise in prices to the highest levels since early October, the week's average price at $8.20, processing tax included, standing highest since the week ended Oct. 6. Light new crop hogs gained 50 to 75 cents and heavy hogs rose 30 to 40 cents.

Only a meager run of hogs was offered on yesterday's session, hardly enough to put the price list to a test. Quotations were fully steady, considering quality of the supply.

Other live stock also advanced during the last week. Cattle prices rose on sharply reduced supplies. Advances for the week ranged from 10 to 50 cents, with some of the inferior classes 75 cents over the demoralized markets about two weeks ago. Steers averaged $7.60, the highest since the week ended Oct. 20.

The first $8 lambs since the middle of July appeared at Chicago during the week. This price shows a gain of $1.65 per hundred pounds, or 26 per cent, compared with the low time about the middle of last month.

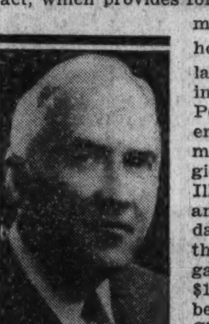
FHA Federal Insured Mortgage Loans Started in Chicago

PERCY WILSON SAYS 16 DEALS HAVE BEEN MADE

24 Lending Institutions Approved by U. S.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

"Title Two" of the national housing act, which provides for federal insured mortgages for home owners, at last is functioning in Illinois. Percy Wilson, federal housing administration regional director for Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa yesterday announced that sixteen mortgages totaling $100,000 have been approved by Chicago banks.



CARROLL H. SUDLER.

Mr. Wilson also reported that twenty-four banks, trust companies, and building and loan societies in Illinois have been approved by Washington as mortgagees under the national housing act. Of these, nine are Chicago institutions, eight are suburban national and state banks, three institutions are in the northern district of Illinois but outside of Chicago, and four are downstate banks and building and loan associations.

List of Qualified Mortgagees.

Following is the list of institutions which are now qualified to make governmental insured mortgages under the national housing act in Illinois:

Chicago: Stock Yards National bank, Pioneer Trust and Savings bank, First Federal Savings and Loan association, Howard Avenue Trust and Savings bank, District National bank, Mid-City National bank, Main State bank, South Chicago Savings bank, and Continental-Illinois National bank.

Suburban: First National, Lake Forest; Oak Park Trust and Savings, Oak Park; Prairie State bank, Oak Park; Union National, Elgin; First National, Evanston; Evanston Trust and Savings, First National, Cicero, and Gary-Wheaton bank, Wheaton.

Northern Illinois: City National bank, Centralia; Central Trust and Savings, Sterling, and Federal Savings and Loan association, Kankakee.

Southern Illinois: Citizens' National, Decatur; Billiken National, Decatur; National Bank of Mattoon; People's Building and Loan, Quincy.

Before the Christmas holidays have ended Mr. Wilson expects that at least half of the banks now co-program under "Title One"—the modernization and repair section—will be authorized by Washington to begin lending money on insured mortgages under "Title Two" regulations.

20 to 1 for Construction.

"It appears from a discussion with our offices in Iowa and Indiana that the ratio of demand for new construction loans will not be as large in proportion to demand for refunding mortgage insurance as in Illinois," said Mr. Wilson, "particularly in Chicago, where the demand is running almost 20 to 1 in favor of construction loans.

"However, I believe this is not entirely indicative of the balance between demands for refunding and construction loans here, because, so far, most of the applications are coming in from the public, while the demand for refunding mortgage insurance is more apt to be instigated by the interests of the mortgagee.

"It seems perfectly clear that there is a very large pent up demand for new construction. Although all newspaper references advise every one to go to the banks, as many as forty people in a single day have applied here and in the state director's office for information, people who for the most part are interested in building new homes.

"Carroll H. Sudler, state director for northern Illinois, has made a record of inquiries which showed 224 are interested in new construction totaling $1,116,000, and 13 are interested in refinancing, totaling $64,800."

Activity in Springfield.

In southern Illinois Director Charles E. Hamilton reported to Mr. Wilson that so far the only figures available are from Springfield. The banks there state that they have received seventy-five applications from persons desiring to build new homes and "a very large number interested in refinancing existing mortgages."

In Iowa, according to Mr. Wilson, twenty-nine banks have asked federal permission to lend money on mortgages insured by the FHA, and so far six have been approved. Thirty-seven Iowans have applied for mortgages under the national housing act. The total amount of their contemplated loans has not been made public.

In Indiana six banks have been approved by Washington. Twenty-four applications for insured mortgage loans, totaling $86,050, have been received by the Hoosier institutions, but to date no "Title Two" FHA loans have been made.

No money is being loaned by the Federal Housing administration. Borrowers must obtain their funds from banks and other institutions which have been approved by Washington.

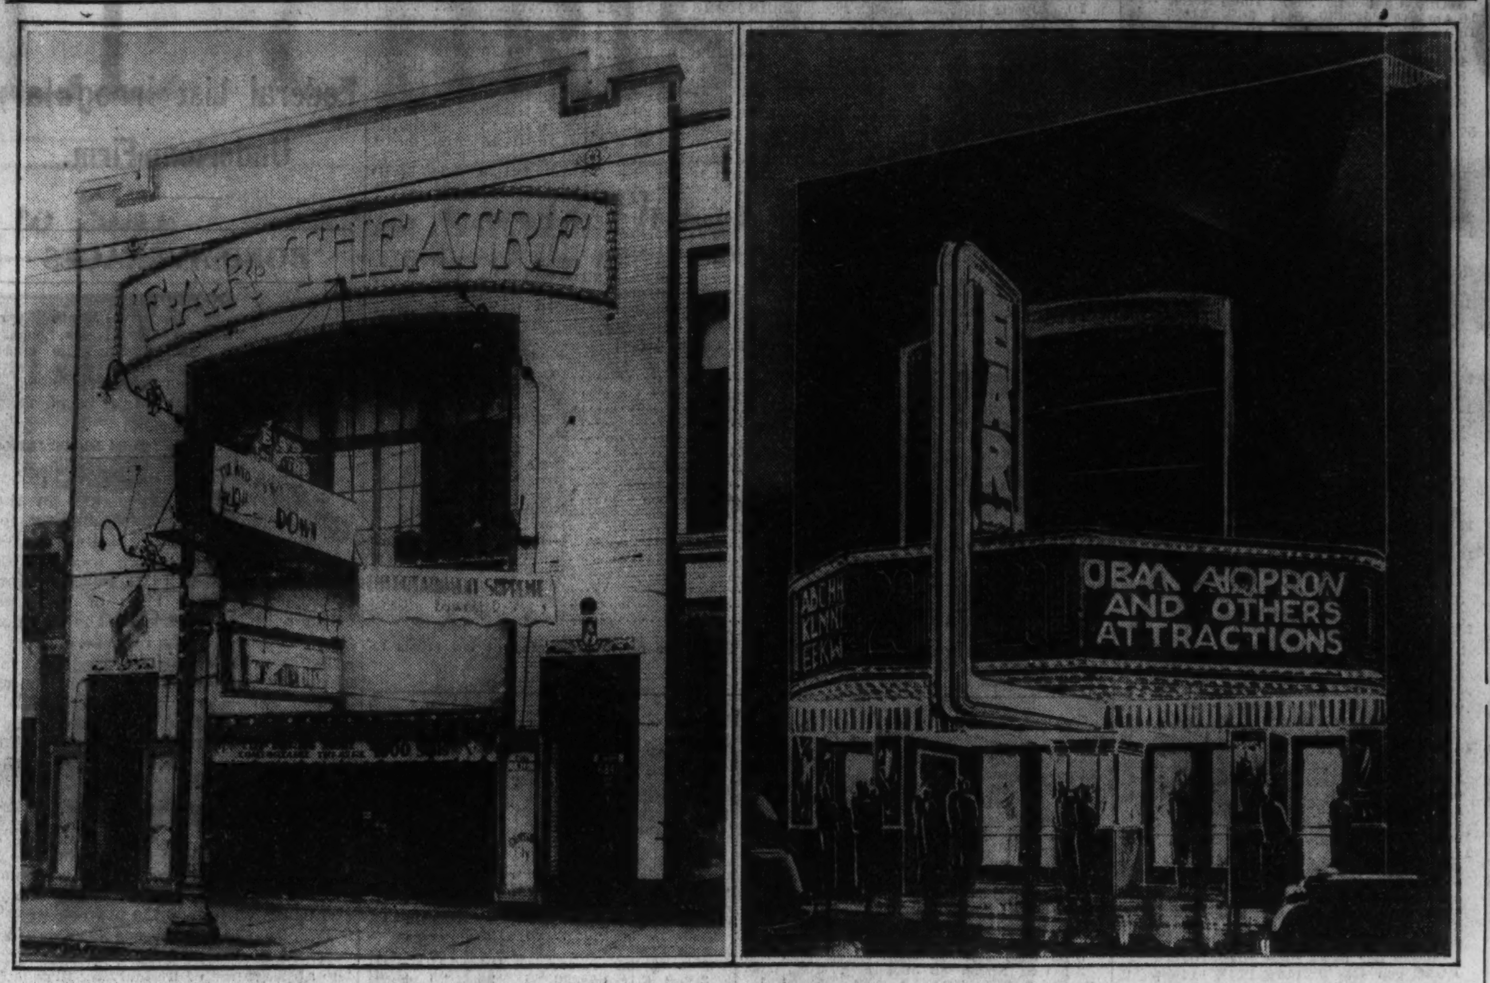
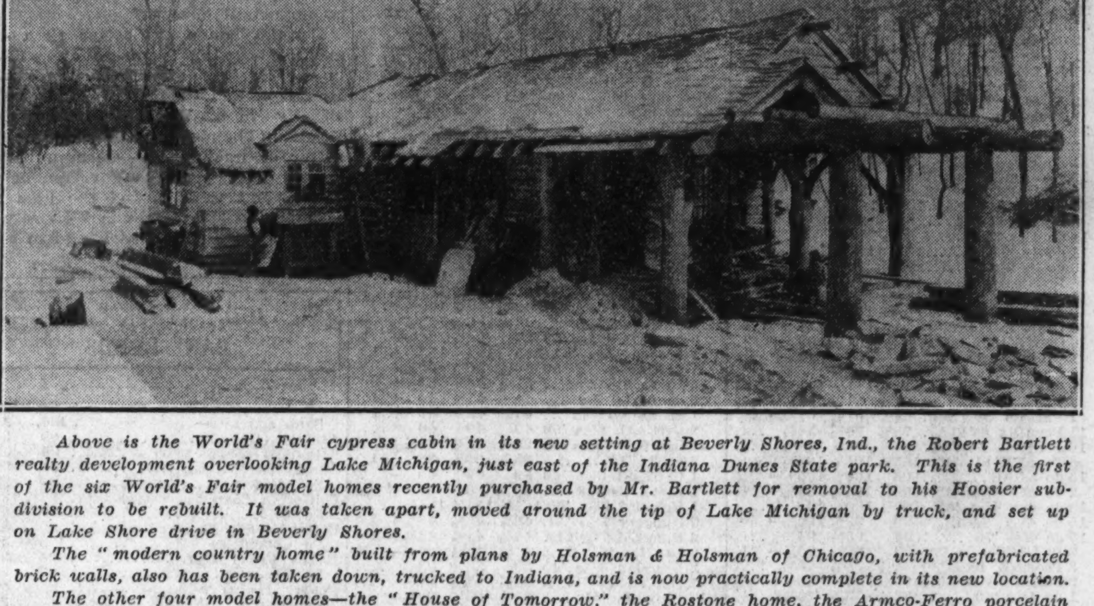
WHAT MODERNIZATION CAN DO FOR A MOVIE



Probably more money is being spent in Chicago and suburbs today in modernizing moving picture theaters than in any other angle of the local repair movement. The old time E. A. R. theater, at 6839 Wentworth avenue, built years ago by E. A. Rysdon, has undergone probably as thorough a rejuvenation as any cinema in Chicagoland. Look at the pictures of it before and then after it was remodeled from plans by Pereira, Sensenby & Pereira, and you will see what modernization can accomplish.

This $15,000 job was carried on without interfering with the regular daily programs. It was started two months ago and completed yesterday. Nine hundred new seats and a new screen have been installed. The interior has been redecorated in dark blue and French gray, with the new lobby done in light blue and tan. This is a unit in the chain of six Chicago playhouses and two out of town cinemas operated by Harry Balaban. W. G. Galligan is manager of the E. A. R.

AN ECHO FROM A CENTURY OF PROGRESS



Above is the World's Fair cypress cabin in its new setting at Beverly Shores, Ind., the Robert Bartlett realty development overlooking Lake Michigan, just east of the Indiana Dunes State park. This is the first of the six World's Fair model homes recently purchased by Mr. Bartlett for removal to his Hoosier subdivision to be rebuilt. It was taken apart, moved around the tip of Lake Michigan by truck, and set up on Lake Shore drive in Beverly Shores.

The "modern country home" built from plans by Holsman & Holsman of Chicago, with prefabricated brick walls, also has been taken down, trucked to Indiana, and is now practically complete in its new location.

The other four model homes—the "House of Tomorrow," the Rostone home, the Armco-Ferro porcelain enamel house, and the Florida tropical home—are to be moved intact by barge across the lake. A new pier has been erected at Beverly Shores for their reception. The movers are waiting for a calm sea for their unique lake voyage.

All six of the World's Fair homes are to be placed in specially landscaped locations and will be open to the public without charge early in the spring.

MODERNIZATION OF WESTMINSTER LOBBY FINISHED

Completion of an extensive modernization program in the lobby of the Westminster building is reported by Frankenstein & Co., who have been managers of that property during the last year. The old white marble floor has been replaced with a verdi green terrazzo floor, divided by polished brass strips ornamented with stars. Modern lighting fixtures have been installed. The marble work has been bleached and polished. Black Belgium marble nonslip terrazzo panels have been placed before the elevator shafts. The exterior of the building has been given its annual bath.

Nineteen leases are announced to have been negotiated since the firm took over the management. Among them are the following: National Credit association, Homer Laughlin China company, Warner Associates, the Federal Union Life Insurance company, the G. L. Brown Audit company, George Bilhorn & Co., Dockman & Kroloff, Murray Wolbach, and S. Charles Iversen.

People's Finance Company Lease Larger Quarters

The People's Finance company, formerly at 2919 West Madison street, has leased larger quarters at an undisclosed rental at 2919 West Madison street and will move there prior to Dec. 29.

ALBANY PARK MOVIE HOUSE IS REVAMPED BY BALABAN & KATZ

Twenty-five thousand dollars has been spent, according to Balaban & Katz, to bring to life the old Albany Park theater at 4816 North Kedzie avenue, just north of Lawrence avenue. Rechristened the Alba, the playhouse will resume its place in the movie world on Christmas day.

Seven or eight years ago the Albany Park theater was transformed into bowling alleys. The auditorium floor was leveled off with concrete and bowling enthusiasts replaced cinema fans.

Balaban & Katz took over the property in November. Workmen still are busy making it over into a theater again, from plans by Rissman & Hirschfeld. It will have 990 seats, will be air conditioned and is being acoustically treated. According to the lessees the exterior of the theater will be the most elaborate of anything so far seen in Chicago, surpassing even the newest loop cinemas in the use of neon tube lights and mazdas.

ART LAMP FIRM LEASES DISPLAY SPACE IN MART

The Art Lamp corporation, 469 East Ohio street, has leased display room space in the Merchandise Mart, according to T. J. Reed, general manager of that building. Officials of the corporation, which observed its twenty-first anniversary as a Chicago manufacturer this year, are W. O. Hixon, president, and B. H. Martin, vice president.

The new showrooms will be under the direction of Mr. Hixon and Miss Mary Holland. The lessees will occupy temporary quarters on the 14th floor of the Merchandise Mart from Jan. 1 to March 1, when its permanent quarters on the 15th floor will be ready.

The business of the Art Lamp corporation is operated under the management of George W. Borg & Associates, who took over this business last April.

Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. Plans Hyde Park Station

The Socony-Vacuum Oil company of New York has purchased 100x150 at 1330-36 East 53d street from Ernest C. Freeland for an indicated $30,000 and is contemplating the erection of a service station.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of Dec. 14-20, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 12, with a combined cost of $163,400. For the corresponding week last year there were 15 contracts totaling $70,000. From Jan. 1 to Dec. 20, 1934, the total was $21,258,075, or $3,993,531 ahead of the corresponding period last year, which was $17,264,544.

GARMENT FIRM DOUBLES ITS FLOOR SPACE

Steady growth of the Lawndale Garment company through 1934 has necessitated securing larger quarters, it was stated yesterday. The firm has just closed a lease for additional space at its present location at 231 South Green street, at an undisclosed rental.

Doubling its present floor area the firm will have its general offices, cutting and shipping rooms in the new unit, making it possible to install additional machines in the space formerly used for those activities.

OFFER $100 FOR BEST POSTER ON HOME EXPOSITION

Students in accredited art schools and in state universities in Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, and Indiana, are eligible to compete in a poster contest for the Modern Home exposition to be held at the Coliseum Feb. 16 to 24, inclusive, it was announced yesterday. According to Vandorf Gray, executive director of the exposition, a cash award of $100 will be paid for the original drawing, which will best portray the exposition and the home repair and modernization program of the Federal Housing administration.

All entries must be in not later than noon, Jan. 20, 1935. The jury of award will include five persons who will base their decision on the general merit of drawings from the standpoint of art and advertising value.

Daily programs designed to attract housewives to the modern home exposition will be in charge of a women's committee headed by Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, chairman, with Mrs. William S. Heffernan and Mrs. Mark P. Mears, vice chairmen.

Petroleum Concern Rents Bulk Oil Station Site

The Bright Star Petroleum corporation has leased approximately 17,000 square feet of switch track property at the northwest corner of South State and West 43d streets and will improve it with a bulk oil station. Kohout Brothers were brokers for both parties.

ASSETS SERVICE CORP. REPORTS UPTURN IN SALES AND INQUIRIES

A decided increase in both inquiries and sales since the Federal Housing administration started its activities is reported by Lewis T. Dodds, vice president of the Assets Service corporation, 100 North La Salle street.

Among a long list of sales closed during October and November, he gives the following: Owen Yerkes bought eighty acres northeast of Crystal lake from Frank J. Green of Woodstock, and others, for a country home. Charles S. Smith, president of the Fort Dearborn Lumber Millwork company, purchased eight lots on Tonty avenue, Wildwood, for a homesite.

F. E. Nelson of Arlington Heights has bought a 100 foot corner lot on Tonty avenue upon which he has started construction of a six room residence.

EITELS DESIGN NEW RESTAURANT FOR FIELD BLDG.

Viennese, Yankee Motifs Used in Designs.

Architectural details of the new Eitel restaurants in the Field building were made public yesterday by Robert Carpenter, manager of that property. The lease, which was reported some time ago, is for ten years.

ALFRED SHAW.
[Tribune photo.]

Robert and Max Eitel, proprietors of the Old Heidelberg café on Randolph street, restaurants in the North Western station, and operators of Old Heidelberg and the Black Forest restaurants at A Century of Progress, will use 20,000 square feet on the Clark street side of the Field building on the ground floor, basement, and subbasement.

Inspect Eastern Cafés.

The interior design of the new restaurants is being planned by the Eitels and Alfred Shaw of Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, architects of the Field building. They have just returned from a tour of eastern cities, where leading restaurants were inspected with the expectation of using any novel ideas they found, in the new Chicago establishment.

"The main restaurant on the ground floor will be in restrained Baroque style, similar to Viennese cafés," said Mr. Shaw. "It will be developed in such a manner that from the simple, gray walled main room, two vistas of red lacquered rooms will be seen. One will be the Baroque barroom and the other the marine cocktail room.

"The main dining room will have a glass trout tank from which guests may select the fish they want and have them prepared. Live lobsters, kept in tanks of sea water, also may be selected by the patrons and cooked at once. The room will have a long oyster bar. The whole serving pantry in this room will be exposed and will be treated entirely in gun metal and brass.

Yankee Lunchroom.

"The marine room will have lighting fixtures and mirrors decorated with aquatic animals, executed with brass, brilliantly silhouetted against the red lacquered walls.

"In the basement will be a modern lunchroom with both counter and table service. This will be decorated in red, white, and blue trimmed with brass. All ornaments will be inspired by national emblems and will be entirely in contrast with the somewhat continental atmosphere of the main floor unit.

"Adjacent to the basement lunchroom will be a large oyster bar and two private dining rooms—one seating fifty and the other about twenty-five. The entire restaurant units will be air conditioned by the system now operating in the Field building.

"This is intended to fill a long felt need for a large, high quality restaurant in the financial district," said Mr. Carpenter. "Construction will start shortly after the first of the year, with the expectation of opening early in the spring."

HOLC Aids Home Owners Pay Their Back Taxes

More than a million and a half dollars in delinquent taxes in Cook county were paid last month through the aid of the Home Owners' Loan corporation, according to Henry G. Zander Jr., Illinois state manager. November payments to the county treasurer, he stated, were $1,425,849. In addition, $228,750 was paid to other taxing bodies during the month for special assessments, making a total of $1,654,599, which the HOLC contributed to liquidation of back taxes.

CHURCHES TELL CHRISTMAS STORY

MRS. A. J. ALCORN REVEALS HOW CLUB WAS BORN

Is Charter Member of Two Groups.

BY BERNICE CRANSTON.

"Like Cornelia, my children are my jewels. As a club woman, I'm just one in the ranks." Such is Mrs. A. J. Alcorn's estimate of her place in the club woman's world. In a matter of fact tone she admitted that she is a charter member of two clubs, Hermosa and Physicians' Fellowship auxiliary, and that she has served as president of each of them and as district philanthropic chairman before accepting her present post, that of corresponding secretary for the district.

MRS. A. J. ALCORN.
[Gibson Photo.]

When pressed for detail, she remembered that the founding of the Hermosa club probably grew out of a casual conversation she had with a newcomer from Ohio, at a church picnic back in 1913. As Mrs. Alcorn tells the story, she was searching for a subject interesting to a woman unacquainted with Chicago, and happened to mention an idea that had been turning over in her mind for some time, a woman's club for the neighborhood.

Enthusiasm Is Spark.

The newcomer's enthusiasm was the spark necessary to set the project alight. On Nov. 7, 1913, an organization meeting was held in Mrs. Alcorn's home, 2022 North Tripp avenue, and the Hermosa Woman's club came into being. At first its programs were purely cultural, with special emphasis on literature, and it is this phase of club work that retains Mrs. Alcorn's chief interest.

Strangely enough, she has never held a post in the literature department of either of her clubs. Of all the jobs the federation offers, Mrs. Alcorn thinks that of corresponding secretary the least interesting, yet it has fallen to her lot not only in the district but in the Home Missionary Society of the Rogers Park Methodist church.

So ruthlessly does she pursue her favorite hobby—reading—that she is certain it would more fittingly be called a fault. In her reading Mrs. Alcorn has a varied taste but she is not completely enthusiastic about the modern novel. She frankly confesses that she finds it difficult to understand modern poetry and that she has to labor to appreciate modern art.

Women Excel as Speakers.

To her club work Mrs. Alcorn feels she owes the desire to keep up, and that it has kept her from getting old and stale in her manner of thinking. She admires particularly the capable woman, and is emphatic in her statement that women are much better speakers than men.

Mrs. Alcorn came to Chicago with her husband in the 1890s from a small downstate town, Pleasant Hill, in Pike county. Soon afterward Mr. Alcorn decided to desert the teaching profession and become a doctor.

Upon finishing his study he began his practice on the northwest side, in the days when a horse and buggy was a doctor's mode of travel and many of his poorer patients sewed their children into their clothing for the winter, making it particularly difficult for a doctor to diagnose an illness or vaccinate against a raging epidemic.

Choose State University.

The Alcorn family moved to Rogers Park, to 1437 Howard street to be exact, when the children were ready for college, thinking they would be convenient to Northwestern university. However, the two sons decided to follow in their father's footsteps and went to the University of Illinois in Urbana and then to the medical college on the west side. So glowing were their accounts of the state university that their sister decided to go there also.

The oldest son is now connected with the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., and the second is in partnership with his father in Rogers Park. Among her hobbies Mrs. Alcorn lists making quilts, particularly pink and blue ones for a rosy cheeked granddaughter.

Fullerton Business Men Will Discuss Car Line

The Fullerton Business Men's club of Hanson park will hold its annual meeting at 2 o'clock this afternoon at 5811 Fullerton avenue. Extension of the Fullerton avenue car line will be discussed and a report on the last year's work will be made. Officers are John K. Jurczak, president; Stanley Zabawski, vice president; John Michon, recording secretary; Anton Sutkero, financial secretary, and Frank Jendraszek, treasurer.

Celebrities in Baseball to Be Men's Club Guests

The men's club of Temple Mizpah will hold its annual Fathers, Sons, and Daughters night Wednesday evening at the community house, 1615 Morse avenue. Bob Elson, W-G-N radio announcer, will be master of ceremonies, and special guests will include Gabby Hartnett, Fred Lindstrom, Guy Bush, and other sports celebrities. There will be a gift for each child attending.

Girl Scouts, in Ancient Garb, to Sing Christmas Carols This Afternoon

'Tis Yuletide and throughout the whole of Merrie England happy subjects of the good Queen Bess sing out their greetings. So bespeak the hoods and capes and the jolly little lantern, but in real life these carolers are Girl Scouts from Citizenship Troop No. 6, who will sing this afternoon at the Danish and Norwegian Old People's homes in Norwood Park, and the picture was taken beside St. John's Episcopal church, Byron street and Keeler avenue. The girls, left to right, are Miss Anne Broshnahan, Miss Alice Woester, Miss Lucille Duckman, Miss Florence Erickson, and Miss Karlene Dietrich. Miss Mary Ellen Peckham is their captain. Maker of Buggy Whips Looks Back on the "Good Old Days"

A thorough craftsman in the old tradition, though all manner of modern inventions have risen to plague him and make his calling almost superfluous, can yet look on life clear eyed and confident, his genial philosophy still intact—such is E. F. Schaede, harness maker, who last week completed 50 years of work in his Barrington shop.

He wears his hat as he works slowly and patiently on the few harnesses that he is called on now to repair.

No Sale for Whips.

He has a way of pushing his horn-rimmed glasses up on his forehead when, for a visitor, he hesitantly recollects incidents of his life.

Pointing to the rack of shiny whips in the corner, he said, "I remember when I used to sell three or four hundred of those whips a year; now I'm lucky to sell a dozen. Only a few farmers use them any more. Horse blankets and collars have gone the same way."

There is no bitterness in him, no resentment toward a mechanical progress that has not been kind to his trade. He learned long ago to accept life as it is. "You can't expect folks to use horses, especially on hard roads, not when autos are so handy and so cheap," he said.

When he came to Barrington in 1884 it was a village of wooden sidewalks, streets so muddy it was next to impossible to cross them, and just a postoffice, a general store, a wagon maker's shop, a smithy, a few saloons and houses.

Mr. Schaede still holds a clear title to his shop at 230 East Main street. "I couldn't have stayed on here the last few years if I'd had to pay rent," he explained. The building, constructed in 1858, is one of the oldest in Barrington.

In the early '90s it had a narrow escape from fire, he said. The fire, out of control, was burning the entire row of buildings to the west. There was no water; the wells were all dry. Finally with axes and picks the men set to work to tear down the building next door. At last with every one pushing, it collapsed against the burning store next to it and the harness maker's shop was saved.

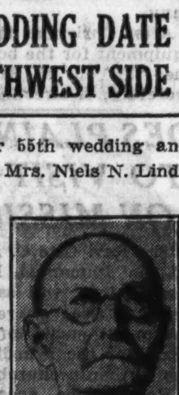
A Native of Pomerania.

Mr. Schaede was born 77 years ago in the German province of Pomerania. He became a harness maker's apprentice when he was 14. Beginning in 1877 he served his two years in the army; then returned to his trade, this time in Berlin.

Soon he decided to come to America. First he stopped in Des Plaines and then went to Barrington, because the German settlers there made it seem more like home. It was difficult at first to become acclimated, but he soon learned the English language. For many years he had a prosperous business and often hired two or three assistants. Now he remains only a symbol of an age when the handicraftsman was the nucleus of American industry.

DANISH COUPLE MARKS 55TH WEDDING DATE ON NORTHWEST SIDE

Celebrating their 55th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Niels N. Lindberg, 5930 East Circle avenue, were at home to their friends last Tuesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Lindberg came to Chicago from Denmark in 1873 and were married here in 1879.



NIELS N. LINDBERG

MRS. LINDBERG.

For 33 years Mr. Lindberg operated a hardware store on the corner of Milwaukee and Armitage avenues. He was in business in Chicago for 57 years.

Their three sons and three daughters all live in Chicago. They are Emil, Thomas, and Fred Lindberg, Mrs. E. M. Christensen, Mrs. Fred Peterson, and Mrs. T. E. Brown. There are 15 grandchildren.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

TODAY is Barbara Elizabeth Gartin's birthday. Barbara, who is now 11 years old and lives at 5204 Berteau avenue, will entertain 20 of her playmates at a party this afternoon at 3 o'clock. A puppet show to be directed by Jack Gartin, her brother, 12, will be the highlight of the afternoon next to the eats. Robert, Marie, and Virginia Gartin will help Jack.

Joseph Duncan, 6238 Magnolia avenue, and Ruth Kellog, 533 Diversey parkway, are two more students home for the holidays. They have been attending Carleton college in Northfield, Minn.

SPEAKING of business men whose hobbies take them into the realm of the arts, it has been brought to our notice that Seymour G. Nelson of Glenview has been organist of his church, the Immanuel Church of the New Jerusalem, for the last 62 years without a break. So far as is known, his record is not equaled in Cook county. On week days Mr. Nelson is president of the Swain Nelson & Sons company, landscape gardeners. He started playing the organ for the church when it was situated in Chicago, and moved his business to Glenview 40 years ago when the church was transferred there.

CADET ARTHUR W. OBERBECK of the West Point Military academy returns this Christmas to his home at 3435 North Harding avenue after an absence of one and one-half years. Cadet Oberbeck has achieved an impressive scholastic record, leading his class of 318 in physics and mathematics. He is on the A squad fencing team and has been made a corporal. A graduate of Lane Technical High school, he attended Armour institute before receiving his appointment. Cadet Oberbeck is the nephew of George Trinkaus, vice president of the Northwest Federation of Improvement Clubs.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Wohl, 2435 North Albany avenue, recently announced the marriage of their daughter, Pearl, to George A. Morris. Mr. and Mrs. Morris are making their home now at 3335 Diversey parkway.

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Neumann of Des Plaines, who have made a name for themselves breeding high grade rabbits, gained fresh laurels recently when their rabbits won two firsts, a second, and a third at the annual convention of the American Rabbit Breeders' association in Louisville, Ky. The Neumann slogan is "Our Rabbits Win Wherever Shown."

At the annual staf dinner and election of officers of the Illinois Masonic hospital, two of our towners were honored with offices for the ensuing year. Dr. Clifton Kersey Timmons was chosen president and Dr. M. Owen Wilkins secretary.

Father Pernin to Tell Origin of Word Xmas

The Rev. Claude J. Pernin, former head of the English department of Loyola university, will speak on "Christmas Customs and Legends in Many Ages—in Many Lands" Friday evening at the St. Ignatius auditorium, Loyola and Lakewood avenues. The address will be a part of the Loyola Community theater program.

Father Pernin is a member of the Medieval club of Chicago, and is an authority on medieval literature. His lecture, therefore, is expected to be especially enlightening on the medieval aspects of Christmas.

One of these aspects is the invention of the word "Xmas," generally thought to be a modern innovation. The word was really invented by monks in middle European monasteries, and has a religious signification, the "X" representing alphabetically the cross on which Christ was crucified. The shortened word also was of considerable aid in transcribing the illuminated scrolls of litanies, which were done laboriously by hand.

With the general use of printing, the word Xmas dropped into disuse, although it was found here and there in religious writings from time to time. It was revived early in the present century by Christmas card makers who sought to imitate the illuminated scrolls, and has been greatly criticized by many religious leaders who were not aware of its earlier significance.

Since his departure from Chicago, Father Pernin has been connected with St. Xavier's college in Cincinnati. While at Loyola university he taught at the downtown college and at many of the centers connected with the university. His popularity as a teacher was so great that it was often necessary to assign his classes to the largest class rooms available.

In 1929 and 1930, Father Pernin gave a series of lectures on the forum courses presented by the Loyola Community theater, and these were moved from the smaller lecture hall to the auditorium in order to accommodate the overflow crowds.

BETHEL CHURCH PASTOR IS GIVEN ELDER'S ORDERS

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Methodist Episcopal church officiated at the service which ordained the Rev. George Ronald Wells as an elder. The ordination was held last Wednesday evening at the Bethel Methodist church, Ridgeway and Cullom avenues.

THE REV. GEORGE R. WELLS.

The Rev. Mr. Wells is now serving his fourth year as pastor of the Bethel church. He came to Chicago from Minnesota in 1931 to take graduate work at the Garrett Biblical institute in Evanston and will receive his degree in June.

The Minnesota conference elected the Rev. Mr. Wells to deacon's orders before he left the conference and to elder's orders when it met last September at Marshall, Minn.

INSTALL TENNIS CLUB OFFICERS FOR COMING YEAR

Officers were installed and committee chairmen for the year announced at the recent annual meeting of the California Park Tennis club.

Peter J. Lindermann succeeds John A. Blume Jr. as president. Other officers are: Miss Elizabeth Weismann, vice president; William A. Lotz, treasurer; Miss Mildred Duderstadt, corresponding secretary, and Miss Josephine Norek, recording secretary.

Committee chairman are as follows: Gerald Aoussaint, auditing committee; Victor Bondi, by-laws committee; Bernard Gurmann, membership committee; Chester Lieski, tournament committee; Michael Norek, challenge committee; Fred Boedecker, match committee, and John A. Blume Jr., publicity committee.

ISABELLA LADIES WILL ENTERTAIN NEEDY CHILDREN

Members of the Father O'Connor and Notre Dame councils, Ladies of Isabella, will give their annual Christmas party for the children at the House of the Good Shepherd, 1126 Grace street, next Sunday afternoon. Numbers by Shirley and Billy McCartney, dance team, will be featured, and gifts will be distributed. Mrs. Alma E. Orr is grand lady of the Notre Dame council and Mrs. Catherine Fisher is philanthropic chairman. Mrs. Nora Haines is grand lady of the Father O'Connor council and Mrs. Theresa Murphy is philanthropic chairman.

B'rith Abraham Members Will Mark Anniversary

The King David of Chicago City Lodge No. 14, Independent Order B'rith Abraham, will hold its first anniversary banquet and dance this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Logan Square Masonic temple. Mrs. Esther Williger is chairman of arrangements and Sol Rosenthal is president of the lodge.

Story Hour Today.

The Rev. John S. Higgins of the Church of the Advent will conduct a songfest and story hour this evening in the lobby of the Division Street Y. M. C. A., 1621 West Division street. The choir from the Church of the Advent will sing carols at the "Y" on Christmas eve.

YULE PROGRAMS FOR NORTHWEST SIDE ANNOUNCED

Song and Drama to Feature Rites.

In words, in music and in pageantry, Bethlehem's story will be repeated a hundredfold as northwest side churches celebrate this week the anniversary of the Christ child's birth. Afternoon cantatas, candlelight services at midnight, and matins before daybreak are a few of the manifestations the observation will take.

One of the earliest celebrations will be held at the Irving Park Methodist church at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon when the church choir joins with that from the Berry Memorial church to sing "The Christmas Story," by Matthew. Combined, the choirs will total eighty voices. Harry S. Walsh is director of the Irving Park group.

More Choirs Unite.

The two choirs of the Bethel Methodist Episcopal church will join to present "The Promised Light," by Clarence Kahlman, this evening. Linneus Jewett will direct the production. At the 11 o'clock service, the choir will sing two special numbers, "Christmas Mass," by Gardner, and "The Mystery of Bethlehem," by Mayer.

The church school of the Irving Park Lutheran church will hold its holiday festival at 5 o'clock this afternoon. All departments will take part and gifts will be distributed to children.

A candlelight processional will open the Christmas concert at the Ebenezer Danish Evangelical Lutheran church at 8 o'clock this evening. The senior choir will sing numbers from Handel's "Messiah," two Christmas anthems and an English and a French carol. The junior choir also will sing.

Pageant on Birth.

Ray Hatland, tenor, and Henry Krogh, pianist, will be guest artists. The choir is directed by Edward Nelson Jr. The Rev. C. M. Videbeck is pastor of the church.

"When the Chimes Rang," a Christmas pageant, will be given this evening at the First Methodist church of Park Ridge. Leading parts will be played by Edward Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Vivian Kay, David Kester and Mrs. Dorothy Kester. Mrs. Claud Merrill will direct the presentation and Fred Barton Hunt, organist, will provide the musical background.

St. Mary's church in Park Ridge will hold a candlelight carol service at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, a midnight choral Eucharist on Christmas eve beginning at 11:30 o'clock, and holy communion at 10 o'clock Christmas morning. The church will give a Christmas party on Thursday evening and will sponsor a dance on Friday evening.

Children to Perform.

The intermediate department of the Park Ridge Community Sunday school will present a costumed pageant, "Bringers of Gifts," at 8 o'clock this evening in the community house, with Mrs. F. S. Hayles as director. Presenting the prologue are Emily Richmond, Patricia Hickman, and Betty May Baker.

Players in the pageant are Robert Hoopes, Lillian Cloke, Theodore Clark, Robert Stewart, Charles Allen, Henry Dormeyer, Richard Hamm, Harold Fund, Marjorie Lang, Margaret Cross, Nancy Perkins, Jill Bolton, John Dewar, Kenneth Jones, Albert Ottesen, Lois Cole, Ruth Bus, Ruth Weise, and Barbara Hack. Robert Jorgenson will play a cornet solo.

The church choir will give a Nativity service at 11 o'clock on Christmas eve. Solo parts will be sung by Miss Myrtle R. Dinse, Miss Doris Irene Berry, and Miss Bernice Mottz. The young people of the church will sing carols from door to door early in the evening.

Service in German.

At 7 o'clock on Christmas eve the Immanuel Lutheran church of Des Plaines will hold a special children's service. There will be a matin service at 6 o'clock on Christmas morning, a service in German at 9:30 o'clock, and an English service at 11 o'clock. Theodore Appold will direct the choir.

A midnight Eucharist beginning at 11 o'clock on Christmas eve will be the principal holiday celebration at St. Stephen's Episcopal church. Another service will be held at 10 o'clock on Christmas morning.

The choir of the United Lutheran church of Oak Park will hold a candlelight choral service, featuring Howard Harratt, tenor soloist, at 7:45 o'clock this evening. The choir, directed by Arnold Schultz, numbers 75.

Hold Early Matin.

A special children's service will be held at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Mount Olive Evangelical Lutheran church. On Christmas morning there will be two services, an early matin at 6:30 o'clock and another at 11 o'clock. The Walther league will sing carols in the neighborhood Christmas morning.

The Church of the Advent will hold a holy communion service, with music by the full choir, at 11 o'clock Christmas eve. There will be an early service at 7:30 o'clock Christmas morning, another at 9:45 o'clock, and a third at 11 o'clock.

In the Scandinavian churches Julotta services, holiday festivals surviving from the celebration of lighting the Yule log, will be held early Christmas morning. At Trinity church the Swedish service will begin at 3 o'clock. A second will be held at 5 o'clock, which will be broadcast. At the Irving Park Lutheran these matins will be held in Swedish at 4 and 5 o'clock.

There will be a midnight service on Christmas eve at both Trinity and Irving Park. The Irving Park church will hold a high mass at 10:30 o'clock Christmas morning.

The Rev. Robert van Meigs, pastor of Logan Square Baptist church, will dedicate the lives of six infants to the church at the Sunday school service on Christmas morning preceding a dramatic representation of the story of the Nativity with scripture and song accompaniment.

"The Christ Child," a cantata by Hawley, will be sung at 8 o'clock that evening under the direction of Howard A. Berg, with Mrs. Berg at the organ.

First Gethsemane Evangelical Lutheran church, Oakdale and Lamon avenues, will give a Christmas evensong service at 8 o'clock tonight.

Candlelight Processional.

The choir will be directed by Martha Lundberg, organist, and the assisting soloist is Mrs. Ruth Gangorski, harpist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

On Christmas day there will be carols at 5:45 a. m. and the candlelight processional preceding matins begins fifteen minutes later. The Rev. V. R. Pearson, pastor, will preach on "The Miracle of the Incarnation," and on New Year's day at the 10:30 o'clock service his subject will be "The Rings That Remain."

Irving Park Baptist church, Kostner avenue and Irving Park boulevard, will hold its Christmas service at 11 o'clock this morning, at which the pastor, the Rev. H. R. de Mott, will officiate.

Sunday School Play.

Directed by Miss Esther Bowker, the choir will sing "The Glory of the Lord" and the "Hallelujah" chorus from "The Messiah." The offertorium is Excell's "While Shepherds Watched," with Miss Harriett Culver as soloist.

In the afternoon the Sunday school will present "Toinette and the Elves," under the direction of Miss Violet Hetherington, and after the play gifts for the Baptist orphanage and Old People's home at Maywood will be donated by all the classes.

"Christmas Preparations and Expectations" is the sermon subject of the Rev. Jesse E. Thorson this morning at the festival of Our Saviour's Lutheran church, Laramie and Berteau avenues.

Fireside Hour.

This afternoon there will be a fireside hour and at 7:30 p. m. the choir will sing Nevin's cantata, "The Adoration." The services on Christmas day are at 6 and 11 o'clock in the morning.

North Austin English Evangelical Lutheran church, Mason avenue and Lemoyne street, will have candlelight services on Christmas eve at 5, 6:30, and 7 o'clock.

Christmas day the services are 6, 8:30, 9:45, and 11 o'clock. All services will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. F. W. Otterbein, and the four choirs of the parish will combine in the Christmas music.

NEW NORTHWEST SIDE THEATER TO OPEN TUESDAY

The new Alba theater, Lawrence and Kedzie avenues, will be opened next Tuesday as Balaban and Katz' Christmas gift to Albany Park. The site, which formerly was a bowling alley, has been completely remodeled in the last few weeks and a $10,000 front constructed on the order of the Apollo theater in the loop. The theater is modern in design, with the latest sound equipment, and acoustically perfect, it is said.

ON WEDDING TRIP

The marriage of Miss Petrina R. Attardo to Walter S. Szymanski yesterday in the Holy Name cathedral is announced by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Giuseppe Attardo, 918 Newport avenue. A reception followed at the Medinah Michigan Av. club. After their wedding trip the couple will be at home at 918 Newport avenue.

HUMBOLDT PARK SHADOWS WILL TELL YULE STORY

Two Girls Chosen for Role of Madonna.

The Christmas story in song and pantomime, an outdoor community Christmas celebration sponsored by the Chicago park district, will be presented on the plaza in front of the Humboldt park fieldhouse Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

The outdoor setting for the cantata known as "Shadows of the Manger" is an old fashioned church with stained glass windows. The story of the Nativity will be portrayed in color shadow. Ten scenes in pantomime will be accompanied by readings of scriptural verses and singing of Christmas carols.

Silhouette Scenes.

The production of the cantata in Humboldt park is one of a series of sectional celebrations to be held by church choirs and choral societies throughout the city.

"Shadows of the Manger" has been conceived and staged by Alfred Stury, director of drama for the community centers, Chicago board of education, and known for his presentations throughout the country. It will consist of a series of life-posed silhouette scenes centering about the birth of Christ, in stained glass window settings, an effect attained by a unique system of illumination.

Select Three "Marys."

As a result of a search for the city's most perfect Madonna types, three young women whose profiles most nearly resemble Raphael's Madonna have been selected to play the part in the local presentations including the one in Humboldt park.

Mrs. Eleanor Holtsberg, 2065 Nebraska avenue, will take the part of the Madonna in the Humboldt park production, alternating with Miss Bertha Rincker, 3303 Hirsch street. The angel will be played by Miss Verley Peterson, 5608 North Mango avenue.

The winner to be selected from the three local "Madonnas" will appear in the final performance of the cantata in Grant park, on the Congress plaza, Congress street and Michigan boulevard, next Sunday Three performances will be given at 5 o'clock, 6:30 o'clock, and 8 o'clock p. m.

DIRECTS CHRISTMAS PLAY

Miss Roberta Racine, 2217 North Keeler avenue, will direct "Mimi Lights the Candle," a play to be given by the Scouts of Troop No. 133 at their annual Christmas party on Thursday afternoon at St. Paul's Congregational church, Keeler and Belden avenues. Miss Isabelle Taylor is musical director of the production.

NORTHWEST SIDE CENTER HAS FULL PARTY PROGRAM

Association House Will Sponsor Plays.

So numerous are the Christmas parties at Association house, 2150 West North avenue, that, although they began last Tuesday, they will continue until next Saturday evening when the adult council will give its annual membership dance.

The traditional Nativity tableaux will be given at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon by the senior girls' Sunday school class. The Mothers' Glee club, the Senior and Junior Girls' Glee Clubs and the Sunday school choir will sing the accompaniment.

Will Give Plays.

Other highlight programs are the plays on Wednesday evening and Friday afternoon. Wednesday's production, to be given by the Senior Girls' club, is entitled "Lost Children" and tells "a modern Christmas fairy tale of children that grew up."

The players are Miss Elizabeth Taugner, Miss Olga Osmankiewicz, Miss Florence Skiera, Miss Edwina Scott, Miss Winifred Skibbe, Miss Lucy Lewandowski, Miss Charlotte Para, Miss Frances Wyzgala and Miss Eugenia Casper.

Christmas Fantasy.

The younger girls will give a Christmas fantasy, "The Toymaker's Shop," on Friday afternoon. The cast includes Dorothy Manseau, Vivian Vaughn, Helen Kopestinski, Lorraine Raclowski, Leanore Alaks, Thelma Unoff, and Patricia Eels.

Instead of giving large parties the staf at Association house is entertaining the children in small groups of 50 or 60 each, according to age and natural play groups.

St. Paul Dramatic Group to Give Play at Church

The St. Paul Players, dramatic group affiliated with St. Paul's Congregational church, will give a one act play, "Where Lies the Child," this evening in the church auditorium, Belden and Keeler avenues. The cast includes Miss Roberta Racine, Miss Lillian Juergensen, Mrs. Arthur Leary, William Bouwman, and Charles Sandburg.

POLISH CHURCH CHOIRS WILL PROMOTE DANCE AND MINSTREL SHOW

STANISLAUS SKIBINSKI.

The united choirs of the St. Stanislaus Kosta Polish Roman Catholic church will give a minstrel show and dance at 8 o'clock next Sunday evening in the parish auditorium, Noble and Bradley streets.

Stanislaus Skibinski, church organist and a former president of the Polish Roman Catholic Organists' association, will direct the production, assisted by his son, Irvin Skibinski.

Veteran singers participating in the show are John Nering, Vincent Jozwin, Frank Borkowicz, John Haduk, Miss Irene Puciaty, Mrs. Stanislaus Skibinski, Miss Agnes Skibinski, Miss Olymphia Klajda, Eugene Skibinski, Joseph Kozak, Henry Gorynski, Raymond Biernat, Emil Schmidt, and John Fafinski.

MAINE TOWNSHIP ALUMNI TO HOLD DANCE THURSDAY

The annual dance of the Maine Township High School Alumni association will be held Thursday evening at the Des Plaines Masonic temple. A silver football trophy will be presented at the dance to the most valuable man on the football team who is picked annually by the alumni.

Tickets may be procured from any one on the committee, which includes Fred Setzler, chairman; George Wolfram, Fred Rogers, Thaddeus Naperalski, Henry Pente, Wilbur Eckerbrecht, James Murphy and Lommen Eley.

The senior class will give a Christmas dance in the high school gymnasium Friday night. Decorations, program and stage show are being planned by the dance committee. The presidents of Maine graduating classes since 1913 will be special guests.

N. U. SETTLEMENT TO GIVE NATIVITY DRAMA TONIGHT

Tradition Continued by Former Members.

Tradition of their own making adds glamour to age old custom in the children's celebration of Christmas at Northwestern University settlement. Festivities this year will conclude with the presentation this evening of the annual Nativity pageant.

A group of men and women who fifteen years ago were members of Mask and Wig, senior dramatic club at the settlement, return every year to give the pageant for the children who now attend the classes and clubs.

Every year a new player or two must be recruited, but the leading characters remain the same. Mrs. Marion Ponczeyk plays the part of Mary. George Prena is Joseph, Marion Ponczeyk, Herod, and Bruno Lentz is the prophet.

Seven Episodes in Pageant.

The pageant is given in seven episodes of tableaux and pantomime, with members of the settlement staf singing appropriate songs. This evening's performance will be the third this year. The first was given yesterday afternoon, and another will be given this afternoon.

No less important is the tradition of the play the children of the settlement give for the others of the neighborhood. "The Story of the Forest of Children and the Christmas Angel" was written about five years ago by Mrs. Ruth Hope, dramatic teacher at the settlement, and has since been produced annually.

The story concerns a mother and her three children who spend Christmas day with the children of the forest—a rabbit, a fox, a squirrel, and an owl—in their home. Miss Eleanor Majewski takes the part of the mother. Her children, David, Nancy, and Alice, are Chester and Sylvia Zakrzewski and Verna Mraska.

Play Has Cast of 52.

The forest children are Helen Sopolla, Anna Krochtavil, Cecelia, and Marie Wajkiewicz. Marie Trude and Helen Zurad, in turn, play the part of the Christmas angel. Dancing choruses introduce many other children, the cast numbering fifty-two in all. The players gave fourteen performances during the last week for as many different groups of children whose names were furnished the settlement by social agencies.

Another important holiday project at the settlement house is the toy shop where the fathers and older boys of the community are making toys for the children. Utilizing the wood in orange crates, using empty tin cans, spools, and broomsticks, they have made doll beds, cradles, trains, hobby horses, and wagons.

Literally hundreds of these toys, brightly painted and, in the case of the beds and cradles, gayly furnished with quilts and pillows have been turned out in the shop. The more ambitious cabinet makers have transformed useless phonograph cabinets into bookcases and tables for their own homes.

New Year's Dance Planned.

The settlement house will be comparatively quiet during Christmas week with one big party, a New Year's dance, scheduled for Thursday night. The staf and a group of friends will listen to the Christmas eve broadcast from London in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the first settlement, Toynbee hall.

The Goose Island Neighborhood club, the community center which Northwestern University settlement is maintaining on the island, is sponsoring the neighborhood's first community Christmas tree. Children from the island also participated in the festivities at Northwestern settlement.

BOY CARPENTERS OF Y. M. C. A. MAKE CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Youthful carpenters, the 150 boys between the ages of 8 and 16 who belong to the Headlinas group at the Division Street Y. M. C. A., have made small tables, benches, chairs, shelves, and tie racks as Christmas presents for their parents.

They met in two groups, one working in the "Y" shops on Mondays and Thursdays and the other on Tuesdays and Saturdays. The material used was garnered from packing cases supplied by the neighborhood industrial firms, and the paint and varnish were donated by the James Davis company.

After Christmas the boys will make equipment for the boys' department of the "Y." J. N. Semple, boys' work secretary, is directing the project.

DES PLAINES MAN TO VISIT AFRICA ON MISSION TOUR

The Rev. Otto C. A. Boecler, pastor of the Immanuel Lutheran church, Des Plaines, will sail Jan. 5 for Nigeria, Africa, where he will make a five month survey of a missionary program for the synodical conference of the Lutheran church.

He will be accompanied by Dr. Henry Nau, president of the Greensborough [N. C.] Institute for Colored Boys and Girls, who will remain in Nigeria until a definite missionary program has been formulated.

The Rev. Mr. Boecler expects to return to Des Plaines early in June, and on his way back he will visit missions in Germany and in London and Belfast. He will make his report at the Cleveland convention of the Missouri synod of the Lutheran church in June.

Select Staf of Year Book at North Park College

The staf for the Cupola, North Park college year book, was announced recently by Lloyd Strandine, editor. Students appointed are Miss Elsie Koch, Miss Eleanor Gustafson, Richard Ismond and Brue Brooks, associate editors; Roy Adams, photographic editor; Edward Augustiny, art editor, and Miss Syvilla Parker, snapshot editor. Arthur Olsen, Donald Nelson and Albert Wilbur will serve on the business staf. Dean A. S. Wallgren, E. Gustave Johnson and J. Fredrick Burgh are faculty advisers.

PARK RIDGE BRIDE

Darlington, reside at 6656 West Raven street. The newlyweds are at home at 304 Touhy avenue, Park Ridge. [Edward Fox Photo.]

HIBBARD PUPILS ENACT PAGEANT OF BIRDS' CAROL

Portray Wiggin Story in Dance and Song.

"The Birds' Christmas Carol," a pageant adopted from the story by Kate Douglas Wiggin, was given Wednesday afternoon by the pupils of the Hibbard school, 3244 Ainslie street.

Mildred Williams played the part of Carol Bird, the leading character around whose life the story centers. Marilyn Weiss was the fairy responsible for Carol's finding a home with the Bird family.

Chorus of Birds.

The Ruggles family, neighbors to the Birds, were played by Jane Masel, Dorothy Rae Waltman, Joseph Armbruster, Pauline Groner, Mariam Malina, Morton Glisker, Beatrice Polokoff, Marcella Lipski, Robert Nash and Ervin Lang.

The bird chorus symbolic of happiness, love, joy, and purity, included Janet Aronson, Walter Krause, Elaine Shore, Charlotte Jacobson, Lorraine Moore, Ervin Long, Adele Sapoznik, Irene Potichi, Esther Kalla and Geraldine Plotkin.

The chorus of dancing Christmas trees was made up of Corinne Cooper, Evelyn Bender, Beverly Hartman, Ina Ruth Palman, Lorraine Nemetz, Pauline Groner, Charlotte Kalk, Zane Masel, Molly Weiser, Henrietta Baron, Jane Scher and Lenore Shure.

Teachers Assist.

The ten girls who danced in the minuet chorus are Janet Aronson, Lorraine Moore, Adele Sapoznik, Elaino Shore, Irene Poticka, Corinne Cooper, Evelyn Bender, Beverly Hartman, Ina Ruth Palmer and Lorraine Nemtz.

Robert Hoffman read the prologue. The pageant was arranged by Mrs. Adda M. Trobaugh, a teacher in the Hibbard school. Other teachers who coöperated were Mrs. Tilly Goldsberg, Miss Irene Bergbom, Miss Mary Whitmore, Mrs. Ethyle B. Kramer, Miss Fridelle New, and Mrs. Anne K. Leslie. John L. O'Brien is principal.

St. Bartholomew Guild to Give Christmas Party

BRIDE THIS WEEK

MISS CORINNE MICHELSEN.

Miss Corinne Petra Michelsen will become Mrs. Lester C. Reeg on Saturday. The wedding will take place at 7 o'clock in the evening at the Church of the Brotherhood, 2317 North Cicero avenue. Following the ceremony a reception will be held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anders R. Michelsen, 2325 North Kildare avenue.

NORTHWEST SIDE TRAFIC SAFETY DRIVE LAUNCHED

Pledge Cards and Talks May Save Lives

ROY I. LEVINSON.

Organization of northwest side communities into a unit to attack the motor vehicle accident problem and to help "keep Chicago safe" is now under way. The first meeting of community chairmen with the general northwest chairman, Roy I. Levinson, took place last Tuesday evening at the Eugene Field park field house.

Following an outline of the objects and methods of the city-wide campaign by Edgar L. Schnadig, chairman of the community participation committee of Mayor Kelly's "Keep Chicago Safe" drive, local chairmen were instructed in organization procedure for their communities.

Start in Schools.

The move to make Chicago safety conscious will reach into every home on the northwest side if plans of the executive committee are consummated. The campaign will start in the schools with children being asked to sign the safety pledge and to obtain the signatures of their parents.

All motorists will be asked to take the pledge to make Chicago's streets safer for children, older pedestrians and other motorists, and to observe trafic rules and regulations. Each pledged motorist will receive a sticker for his windshield.

"This is a movement that cannot help but appeal to every right thinking man and woman in Chicago," Mr. Levinson said. "There is no political motive attached to it, as some seem to think. It is a work of education to cut down the appalling accident record of Chicago.

Point Out Advantages.

"The education will be by means of eye and ear, with posters, pamphlets, circulars, movies on safety, and talks. We want to point out the economic gains in saving lives by safer driving as well as the gains in eliminating human sorrow. It is not a matter of a day or week. Safety education should continue indefinitly."

Legislative action which will be sought as remedial measures to cope with careless driving includes a driver's license law for Illinois, a financial responsibility act, and a compulsory inspection ordinance.

Subcommittees in the communities will be appointed in the next week or two, Mr. Levinson said. They will include representatives from the following groups: business men's organizations, American Legion posts, Kiwanis clubs, Lions clubs, improvement associations, churches, and Boy and Girl Scouts.

Chairmen Listed.

Following are the community chairmen working under Mr. Levinson on the northwest side: Jacob W. Molay, Jefferson Park; Charles Stollings, Sauganash, Forest Glen, and Edgebrook; Richard Wuerst, Irving Park; Frank J. Tomczak, Logan Square; A. A. Behnke, Avondale; Dr. Harry Leon, Albany Park; Thaddeus Diadul, Portage Park; John Kerr, Edison Park; Joseph Meersman, Norwood Park; Harry Jacobson, Belmont-Cragin; Irving Felkhoff, North Park; the Rev. John Hurmann, Mayfair, and Daniel K. Penny, representing the Chicago Park district.

Nonpartisans Will Hold Dance in Elmwood Park

The Nonpartisan organization of Elmwood Park will hold a New Year's eve party at 6905 West Grand avenue. A floor show will be given at 10:30 o'clock, the committee planning the party announced.

ALTRUI CONCERT TO BE HIGHLIGHT OF CLUBS' WEEK

Parties and Business Vie for Attention.

Holidays? Not this week for clubwomen of the Seventh district when Christmas cantatas, dances, and parties vie for the limelight with plans for the new year.

MISS IRENE McKEOWN.

Nevertheless the holiday concert of the Altrui chorus on Thursday evening at the Jefferson Park fieldhouse will be an event of district wide interest and all club members have been invited. The program, directed by Miss Irene McKeown, will include "Six Traditional Carols" by Charles F. Manney and "The Wondrous Story," a Christmas cantata by Richard Kountz.

Members participating are Mrs. Harry Beals, Mrs. Conrad Bischoff, Mrs. Harry Croker, Mrs. Harry Greene, Mrs. Albert Counter, Mrs. William Hallaran, Mrs. Edwin Hames, Mrs. Edwin Huyck, Mrs. George Jaques, Mrs. Edward Marke, Mrs. James Moreland, Mrs. Leith Peckham, Mrs. Michael Pednik, Mrs. Cady Wright, Mrs. Christ Ruden, Miss Luella Moisley, Miss Mildred Henderson, Miss Nell Smith, Mrs. Ole Jensen, and Mrs. Charles Boehm.

Des Plaines Story Hour.

The children in Des Plaines from 6 to 9 years old will be guests of the Junior league at a Christmas party and story hour between 2 and 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the clubrooms at Perry and Lee streets. There will be a Christmas tree with a gift of candy for each child. Miss Jane Johnson will officiate as story teller.

The party is sponsored by the philanthropic department of the Junior league, with Miss Evelyn Dean as chairman. Her assistants are Miss Marie Bichele and Miss Grace Burgess.

The Junior league is coöperating with Boy Scouts of Des Plaines to collect old clothing, discarded household furnishings, toys, and books, which will be cleaned, repaired, and distributed among the needy.

Woman's Columbian Social.

Mrs. Rose Wade is chairman of the Christmas social which the Woman's Columbian club will hold Thursday afternoon at the Wilson park fieldhouse. The program, presented by Mrs. Hattie Klein, will include musical numbers by Shirley Fox, Dories, and Jane Klein, and Martha Fulton.

Altrui Dance.

The young woman's auxiliary of the Altrui club will give its third annual dinner dance on Wednesday evening in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Miss Beatrice Peterson has charge.

Arlington Heights Dance.

The Junior league of Arlington Heights will give a dance Saturday evening at the Mohawk Country club. Miss Modanna Annen, president, is general chairman of the party. Her committee chairmen are Miss Bernice Perrin, publicity; Miss Margaret Rubner, tickets, and Miss Eleanor Smith, music.

Belmont P. E. G. Club.

The P. E. G. club, an organization of the small daughters of Belmont Woman's club members, is making "Sunbonnet Sue" rag dolls for the philanthropic department of the woman's club to include in its distributions to needy families. Directed by their sponsor, Mrs. Arthur Robitschek, the girls also are making Christmas gifts for their mothers.

District Junior Dance.

The junior auxiliaries of the Seventh district will give a dance on Jan. 5 in the Cameo room of the Marrison hotel. Miss Florence Mueller of the Portage Park group is general chairman. Other committeemen are Miss Christobel Ferren of Edison Park, Miss Mildred Wear of Portage Park, Miss Hilda Smutny of the Irving Park Catholic auxiliary, and Miss Merle Morgan of Hermosa. Mrs. E. J. Heckel is junior sponsor.

Drama Club Cast.

Successful candidates for parts in the play, "Ten Days Before the Wedding," to be given early in February by the Drama club of the district, are Miss Shirley Underwood, Miss Christobel Ferren, Miss Betty Hutchison, Miss Roberta Dyer, Miss Barbara Wollerman, Miss Beatrice Peterson, Miss Mary Jane Cramer, Miss Jean Rasmussen, and Miss Marie Curran. The play will go into rehersal, directed by Mrs. James Eshelman, soon after the holidays.

Kelvyn Park Civic Club.

The women of the Kelvyn Park neighborhood have organized the Kelvyn Park Woman's Civic club and will meet hereafter on the third Wednesday of every month. The officers are Mrs. Otto Strehlow, president; Mrs. Fred Fox, first vice president; Mrs. Benjamin Neubecker, second vice president; Mrs. Charles L. Patterson, recording secretary; Mrs. Ralph York, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Andrew Gartner, treasurer, and Mrs. Robert Franson, parliamentarian.

The board of directors includes Mrs. Roy Hansen, Mrs. P. G. Knorr, Mrs. Fox, Mrs. Charles Johns, Mrs. Elmer Keller, Mrs. Fred Hamre, Mrs. Harry Jenson, Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Franson, Mrs. M. C. Morgan, and Mrs. Walter Schnick.

Plans Party for Children

Miss Evelyn Dean, as philanthropic chairman of the Des Plaines Junior league, is directing plans for the children's Christmas party and story hour the Junior league will give next Saturday afternoon.

BOYS WILL HAVE HOLIDAY OUTING AT Y. M. C. A. CAMP

Irving Park to Sponsor 5 Days of Sport.

Winter sports—skating, sleighing, skiing, and tobogganing—will be enjoyed by thirty northwest side boys who will go to Camp Hastings, near Antioch, on Thursday for a five day holiday.

The holiday is sponsired by the Irving Park Y. M. C. A. Boys who already have signed for the trip are Robert Wilhelm, Walter Dony, Michael Green, Leonard Mike, Andrew Murray, Harry Hammerschmidt, John and Judd Newell, William and Fred Walter, Frank Dukes, Stanley Wollman, Roger Quindell, William Austermuehle, Irvin Scheiner, Edward Schneider, Judd Przygocki, Raymond Casati, William Kaiser, John Staren, and Robert Lickerman.

Sports at Home.

For the boys who stay at home the "Y" will hold a sports carnival. Approximately 1,000 boys from twenty-five grammar schools are expected to participate.

The program will include basketball, pre-swimming lessons, ping-pong, checkers and other indoor games. There will be parties for the boys according to age groups and in basketball there will be two divisions, the light and heavyweights.

A cup will be awarded to the winning basketball team and each member of the team will be given a ribbon. The player displaying the best sportsmanship also will receive an award.

Plan Swimming Party.

The schools that already have registered teams are Lincoln of Park Ridge, Irving Park, Mayfair, Murphy, Palmer, Portage Park, Avondale, Barry, Bateman, Beaubien, Belding, Haugan, Reilly, Linne and Ebinger.

The first of a series of community splash parties sponsored by the "Y" will be held Wednesday afternoon. Members are invited to bring their friends, and there will be bridge and dancing in the boys' department afterward.

The "Y" also will give a Christmas dance for members and their friends on Friday evening. The committee includes Roy Geier, chairman; Mrs. Roy Geier, Robert Roeissler, William Hanley, Miss Dorothy Glass and Gordon F. Ramer.

In the 1,000 point contest now in progress in the senior division of the "Y," Frank A. Sally and Robert C. Peterson are leading. Two of the twenty events already have been held.

Special Rate for Boys.

Boys living in Norwood Park, Park Ridge, Edison Park, and other outlying northwest side districts will be given the opportunity to make use of facilities in the boys' department of the Irving Park Y. M. C. A., 4251 Irving Park boulevard, under a new plan outlined by Arthur F. Jensen, president of the board of trustees.

Privileges of the boys' department, including the gymnasium and swimming pool, will be available to boys from these neighborhoods from 9 to 12 o'clock every Saturday for a fee of $1 and a 10 cent charge for each additional visit.

Plan Individual Aid.

The classes will be divided into four groups—swimming, athletics on the gym floor, handicrafts, and educational trips. Each class will be divided further until the group is small enough for each member to receive individual attention. A competent instructor will be in charge at all times.

The girls' season will open on the same evening. Miss Anne Murphy is captain of the squad. Other members are Miss Anne Roschman, Miss Virginia Hynes, Miss Marjorie Bennet, Miss Florence Verberg, Miss Irene Hurley, Miss Esther Blomberg, Miss Dorothy Stranberg, Miss Helen Lang, Miss Margaret Von Schaerler, Miss Ruth Becker, and Miss Elizabeth Ryan.

Junior League Dance Chairman

Miss Madonna Annen is president of the Arlington Heights Junior league and is serving as general chairman of the dance the league will give on Saturday evening at the Mohawk Country club. Members of her committee are Miss Bernice Perrin, Miss Margaret Rubner, and Miss Elinor Smith.

TWO NORTHWEST DISTRICTS WILL HOLD YULE FETES

Children to Be Guests This Week.

Children residing in Forest Glen and Jefferson Park will be entertained today and Wednesday at Christmas parties arranged for them by the Forest Glen Community club and the Jefferson Gardens Improvement and Social club respectively.

The party for Forest Glen children will take place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at 6109 North Austin avenue. The program will be presented by the children themselves and will include readings, vocal and instrumental selections, and a performance by a youthful magician. Santa Claus will be there to distribute candy and gifts.

Forest Glen to Have Tree.

The Forest Glen club also has sponsored the erection of a community Christmas tree at the intersection of Austin and Peterson avenues.

The Jefferson Park annual children's party, which the improvement club is planning in collaboration with the Jefferson Gardens Ladies' Community club, will be held in the Jefferson Park fieldhouse, Long avenue and Higgins road, at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. A Punch and Judy show will be the highlight of the program there which also will include readings and music by the children, an appearance by Santa Claus, and refreshments.

New Officers Announced.

Officers of the Jefferson Gardens Social and Improvement club, all of whom were reëlected at the annual meeting Dec. 12, are as follows:

A. R. Nelson, president; C. F. Wirth, vice president; F. X. Nolan, recording secretary; Edward Juberg, financial secretary; A. C. Miller, treasurer, and Vincent Mayer, sergeant at arms. Installation will take place Saturday, Jan. 12.

The newly elected officers of the Forest Glen Community club are: John C. Lewandowski, president; W. O. Busch, vice president; Charles Carlson, treasurer, and Walter J. Szypura, secretary. Trustees are Edmund S. Volker, Fred Bohlman, and Charles Eckhardt.

Edison Park Drama Guild to Give Christmas Play

"A Sign Unto You," a modern Christmas tale by Jean Lee Latham, will be presented this evening by the Edison Park Drama guild at the Edison Park Methodist church, Oliphant and Pratt avenues. The cast includes Robert Hagerup, Mrs. K. O. English, John Rein, Miss Jane Leffler, Miss Alyce McCabe, and Richard Hagerup. The production is directed by Edward Gavin. There will be no admittance charge.

21 YOUTHS GIVEN HIGHEST AWARD FOR SCOUT WORK

Eagle Rank Is Bestowed by Commodore.

The greatest prize of scouthood, the rank of Eagle Scout, was awarded to 21 Scouts of the northwest district last week by Samuel G. Gorseline, Scout commissioner of Chicago. The presentation speech was made by Dr. William C. Menninger, Sea Scout commodore of Chicago.

Among the boys who received the honor are Donald Kersting and Norman Ek of troop 22, which meets at the Montclare Congregational church; Simon Segal of troop 39 of Eckhart park; Roy Dunlap of troop 40 which meets at St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church; Raymond McMullen of troop 50, meeting at the Church of Our Savior, and William Rohter and William Bostrand of troop 51, sponsored by the John F. Conley post of the American Legion.

CLUB WILL ASK FEDERAL FUNDS TO OPEN STREET

Federal funds will be asked for the opening of Roscoe street from Kedzie avenue to Kimball avenue, in a campaign for the improvement recently started by the Kedzie Modernizing club.

C. A. KEPNER.

The plan will be carried to the city council under the sponsorship of Ald. Z. H. Kadow [33d] and Ald. James C. Ross [40th]. It also is backed by Clayton Smith, president of the county board. The property, which is owned by the North Western railroad, would be purchased by assessments on property owners affected by the improvement.

Newly elected officers of the Kedzie Modernizing club are: Charles A. Kepner, president; Frank A. Paepke, Walter Chapski, G. C. Rapp and Paul Boettge, vice presidents; Edward D. Flynn, secretary, and Carl Juberg, sergeant at arms.

Scouts Entertain Parents at Christmas Festival

Boy Scout troops No. 26 and 27 coöperated in entertaining parents of their members at a Christmas party Friday night at St. Ann's Episcopal church, 2018 North Kimball avenue. Joseph E. Nakonieczy is scoutmaster of troop No. 27 and Robert Allen leads No. 26.

Des Plaines Church Club Elects Officers for Year

The young married people of the Methodist church, Des Plaines, have elected the following officers: T. R. Foulkes, president; Mrs. John Landeck Jr., vice president; Mrs. Lester Thorne, secretary, and Bernard Simonsen, treasurer. The group will meet next on Jan. 8.

CHICAGO TALENT HEADLINES 3 HR. GALA YULE SHOW

8 of 10 Acts on Program to Originate Here.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

BEATRICE LILLIE.

All but two acts of that gala ten star three hour program on CBS Christmas afternoon will originate in Chicago studios. Lionel Barrymore will make his contribution from Hollywood and the Don Cossacks chorus will be in New York. Alexander Woollcott, the master of ceremonies, is already in town and will do his regular Sunday evening commercial broadcast here tonight. Beatrice Lillie, Victor Young and his orchestra, and Col. Roscoe Turner are coming here for the show. The others are Chicago entertainers already on hand — Mme. Schumann-Heink, George Olsen and Ethel Shutta, Kathryn Witwer and the Apollo chorus. A half dozen studios will be used to handle this mass of talent.

Radio Folk Appeal to Santa.

Radio stars, like little boys and girls, write letters to Santa Claus, too. When the jolly old gentleman starts off tomorrow night he will have the following requests, among many others, to consider from air favorites:

Nino Martini, the handsome tenor, wants "a wonderful wife." No, girls, it's no joke. He really means it. Line forms at the right. George Givot also is looking for a spouse.

Amos 'n' Andy want a typewriter that goes to work as soon as they have an idea. Countess Olga Albani craves a peach colored typewriter that will operate in Spanish, Italian and French as well as English.

Isobel Carothers [Lu of Clara, Lu 'n' Em] modestly asks for a cream pitcher with a lid on it so she won't have to pour the cream back into the bottle when returning it to the refrigerator.

Dorothy Page and Vera Van are praying for dogs. Dorothy wants a terrier whom she would name Tempo; Vera a Scottie to go with her sporting togs.

Bob Becker's Modest Wish.

Bob Becker is hoping for an electric light to attach to the harness of his coal black Labrador retriever—so he can find him in the dark.

Wendell Hall, who collects musical antiques, wants a few more compositions to add to his collection of more than 5,000.

Joe Bentonelli hopes that a couple of oil wells on his Oklahoma acres will prove gushers. And Bill Adams of March of Time wants a ticket to Alaska—plans to pan for gold.

Ben Bernie and Goodman Ace desire some more of those big black cigars.

Connie Boswell is sighing for another French doll. Col. Stoopnagle is looking for a sock to match the one he hung up last year. Jackie Heller hopes his mother will send him a cocoanut covered cake, and Howard Barlow will be happy if he gets an orange shortcake.

Schumann-Heink Asks Health.

Mme. Schumann-Heink looks only for continued health. Eddie Guest wishes good health to every one and asks personally for underwear with buttons on and a couple of dress shirts with smooth neckbands.

Irene Beasley has a flock of new books in mind; Mary Steele would be happy over a gallon of perfume; Morgan L. Eastman would go for a new power cruiser, and Elinor Harriott is looking for a system that will make finesses work all of the time.

A Few More Requests.

June Meredith wants a new radio—and a New Year's resolution that isn't too hard to keep. Tony Wons hasn't a wish for Christmas—but the next day is his birthday. Marjorie Hannan will be satisfied with a mink coat, wrist watch, and a new automobile. Roy Shield desires a real airplane, while Gale Page would be contented with a toy electric train that will stay on the tracks. Irma Glen would be happy over a bobsled—say about a block long. Cheri McKay is looking for a diet that will take off about ten pounds without any exertion or bother.

Other desired items: Don McNeil, new gags for Breakfast club; Noble Cain, more good bassos for his choir; Hal Totten and Bob Brown, vacations; Ray McDermott, new fly rod; Francis Bastow, sailboat; Evelyn Morin, an alarm clock that knows its business; Don Ameche, Art Van Harvey, new cars; Donald Novis, a ticket to Miami, and Edwin C. Hill, glasses that won't break.

HENNING WILL DISCUSS YULE IN CAPITAL TONIGHT

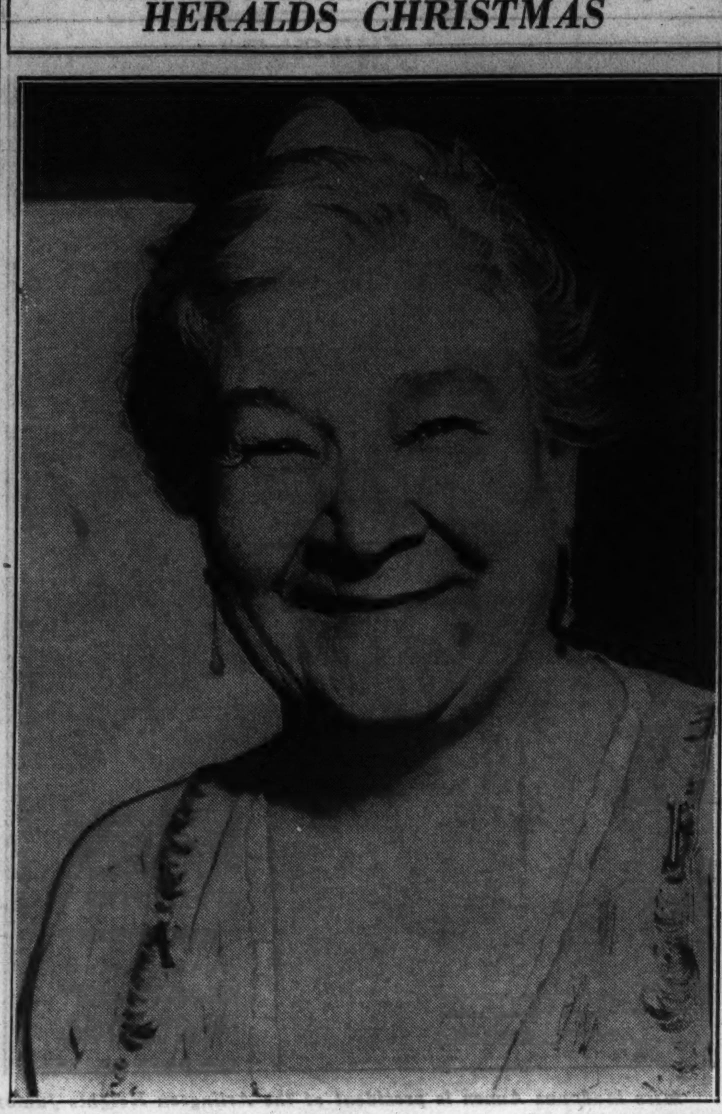
The Christmas season in Washington's official family, always the subject of much comment and interest, will furnish the material for Arthur Sears Henning's "Capital Comment" program over W-G-N at 9:30 tonight. Mr. Henning's interesting talks on the happenings in Washington and governmental problems and affairs are heard exclusively over W-G-N each Sunday evening, when the chief of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's news bureau presents his authoritative news broadcasts direct from his own office in Washington.

U. OF C. CHAPEL SERVICE OFF AIR FOR TWO WEEKS

The Sunday chapel service of the University of Chicago, usually heard from 11 to 12 o'clock on Sunday mornings, will be off the air during the holiday season. The services will be resumed on Sunday, Jan. 6.

During the two Sundays the chapel service is off the air, W-G-N will present special half hour Sunday morning concerts at 11 o'clock, featuring Mark Love, basso, the W-G-N quartet, and Leonard Salvo, organist.

HERALDS CHRISTMAS



Mme. Schumann-Heink, who is to sing "Silent Night, Holy Night" on the Sentinels' Serenade over WMAQ and NBC at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The world famous singer will also appear Christmas afternoon on that three hour all star program on CBS.

LUM AND ABNER MOVE TO EARLIER HOUR ON CHAIN

"Lum and Abner," those quaint sages of Pine Ridge, Ark., whose lives are traced daily except Saturday and Sunday in their radio sketch over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system are moving. They will be heard over both the MBS network and W-G-N at 6:15 p. m. starting tomorrow evening. Lum and Abner formerly were heard at 8:30 p. m. over W-G-N, but are being moved to the earlier time to bring about coördination between the broadcasts for THE TRIBUNE station and the remainder of the MBS network which includes, WLW, Cincinnati; WOR of Greater New York, and WXYZ in Detroit.

The change in program time was made because of the fact that many listeners both in Chicago and the eastern states have complained of inconvenience of the old schedule. It is felt that the new time will be handier for families who are planning to be away for an evening and also that it will be more convenient for children.

LILY PONS TO BE GUEST TONIGHT WITH SYMPHONY

Lily Pons, French coloratura soprano and star of the Metropolitan Opera company, will be guest soloist with the Symphony orchestra under the baton of Louis Hassellmans at 7 tonight over WLS and NBC. For her first solo, Mlle. Pons will sing the colorful "Bell Song" from Delibes' "Lakmé" and later will be heard in the mad scene from Donizetti's "Lucia de Lammermoor," in which she made her Metropolitan Opera début, and with the chorus in Adam's "Christmas Song." Orchestral numbers will include the overture to Mozart's "The Magic Flute," Ravel's "Mother Goose Suite" and "Catalonia" by Albeniz.

'WHAT CHRISTMAS MEANS TO ME' TO BE W-G-N TOPIC

"The Christmas Message Hour," a 45 minute religious program which replaces the midday service, at a later hour on Christmas day and a feature of W-G-N for several years, will be heard between 4:30 and 5:15 Tuesday afternoon.

Three prominent speakers, each representing one of the three great communions, have been invited to participate in the program. The subject of a short sermon by all three will be "What Christmas Means to Me." The speakers will be the Rev. Father Harold J. Kenny, assistant director of Propagation of the Faith, Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago; the Rev. Dudley Scott Stark, rector of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church of Chicago; and Rabbi Maurice A. Hirshberg of Temple Beth-El, Hammond.

Assisting Dr. John L. Dickson, who will conduct the "Message Hour," will be several W-G-N vocalists and Leonard Salvo, organist.

PAULIST CHOIR TO GIVE W-G-N YULE PROGRAM

The celebrated Paulist Choristers of the Old St. Mary's Catholic church in Chicago, who have been heard during other seasons on W-G-N, will broadcast a special Christmas program over THE TRIBUNE station at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night under the direction of the Rev. Father Eugene F. O'Malley.

The 30 minute program of the choir will be filled with music suitable to the season. Some of the sacred music heard during the broadcast will be the famous carol "Silent Night" and a special arrangement of "Adeste Fidelis," "Three Kings," the well known and popular "Good King Wenceslas," "The Angels and the Shepherds," "The Virgin's Cradle Song," "The Holly and the Ivy."

HOLIDAY SPIRIT TO DOMINATE STOKES' SHOWS

Vernon Craig Soloist at 3:30 o'Clock Today.

Novelty arrangements, introductions of new tunes and of a new type of program, 30 minutes of uninterrupted music, all popular tunes played without intermediate announcements of any kind, will feature the three major programs of Harold Stokes and his W-G-N orchestra during the coming week.

Director Stokes has built the three programs with the holiday spirit in mind and all of them are made up of fast moving, brilliant tunes.

The orchestra will present a half hour program at 3:30 this afternoon. A new tune, "Life Begins with Love," will be introduced. Roy Graham will be featured as the instrumental soloist in "Polly." Vernon Craig will be the vocal soloist, singing "If I Had a Million Dollars," and doing the vocal chorus of "Life Begins with Love." The orchestra numbers are to be "Sylvia," "Neopolitan Nights," "Missouri Waltz," "Rio," "Down by the Old Mill Stream," and "Flirtation Walk."

For Christmas evening, Director Stokes has prepared a novelty program to be presented at 7 o'clock. "Toytown Express," a toy town novelette, "Charity," a new composition by Director Stokes; "I've Got a Pain in My Sawdust," the story of a little sick doll; "Jack in the Box," "Choo Choo," and "Santa Claus Has Come to Town," a parody on the popular tune, "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town," will be included on this program.

On Wednesday evening the orchestra will present the running half hour program. Only an opening and a closing night announcement will be made. Vernon Craig will be the soloist for the program, singing "Love in Bloom," "This Little Piggie Went to Market," and "Love Thy Neighbor." Eighteen of the greatest popular tunes of the year are woven into this program which Mr. Stokes has compiled under the general title of "Melodic Memories of 1934."

AMATEUR NIGHT SHOW MOVES TO TRIBUNE TOWER

Quin Ryan's "66" Amateur Night program will be presented from the W-G-N studios in Tribune Tower tomorrow evening at 6:45 p. m. The move from the Drake hotel studios to Tribune Tower was made because of the great number of special Christmas programs which are being produced in the main studios at the hotel. Amateurs continue to pour in their applications for auditions. One little girl came to W-G-N all the way from Fulton, Ky., a journey of 400 miles to enter the auditions. She wasn't able to get an application blank in her town but came to Chicago on the chance that she could make a personal appication and be used on one of the programs. All she wanted to do was to sing "St. Louis Blues."

W-G-N to Report Hocky Match at Stadium Tonight

When Chicago's Blackhawks of the National Professional Hocky league battle the Montreal Canadiens tonight at Chicago Stadium rink W-G-N will present an exclusive broadcast of the final period of the match from the rinkside. Bob Elson will broadcast the battle starting at 9:45 p. m.

GEORGE PARRISH YULE FANTASY ON THEATER HOUR

Creative efforts of George Parrish, musical arranger for the Chicago theater and also arranger for many of Charles Previn's radio orchestrations, will be heard next Tuesday on the Christmas night Chicago theater-WGN broadcast from 9:30 to 10 from the stage of the theater.

An original composition by Parrish, entitled "Christmas Fantasy," will be presented by Josef Cherniavsky and the Chicago Theater orchestra. The featured soloist will be the 13 year old boy soprano, Wilbert Liebling, whose lyric voice has won him first honors in many competitions in Chicago this year.

The program will also present a special Chicago theater quartet, Joaquin Garray, the Spanish tenor, who returns after scoring a triumph on last Tuesday's broadcast, and artists from other Balaban & Katz theaters.

BRITISH RADIO FAN GETS W-G-N ON 4 TUBE SET

Reception of W-G-N programs in foreign countries has been increasing during the last year, according to letters received from radio fans abroad. The increase in power from 25,000 to 50,000 watts last March and an increasing better atmospheric condition during the last year has combined to bring W-G-N many foreign listeners.

Last week a letter was received from R. A. Stanfield of Ripley, Woking, England, commenting on the reception he has been getting nightly on W-G-N programs. Mr. Stanfield mentioned several W-G-N programs and commented that "your station is the only Chicago radio station heard here," in England. His receiver is a four tube battery set.

"FLYERS" SHOW TO BE BROADCAST SUNDAY NIGHTS

The "Midnight Flyers," broadcast direct from the dance floor of the Blackhawk restaurant will be presented tonight starting at midnight. Because of the fact that the two holidays, Christmas eve and New Year's eve, occur on Monday evenings, the program has been switched to Sunday evening for two weeks.

Kay Kyser and his orchestra and Pierre Andre will be hosts to a great party of stars of the stage and radio world tonight. Among the guests invited are the principals of the stage production "Ah Wilderness," headed by George M. Cohan. Max Baer, and King Levinsky also have been invited.

CHICAGO'S YULE IN 1839 TO BE PROGRAM TOPIC

Christmas day for "The Friendly Neighbor," whose programs are heard on W-G-N at 10:15 a. m., will be marked by a special broadcast in which the authentic picture of Christmas night in Chicago in 1839 will be presented. Calling her program "A Christmas Journey," the "Friendly Neighbor" will take her listeners back to quaint Chicago of that early time, picturing the city as it was then and describing the citizens who were to become Chicago's city fathers.

Norwegian Christmas Hour to Be Relayed to Europe

The Norwegian Christmas radio program at 8:30 o'clock this morning will feature Miss Magnhild Fjeldheim, New York soprano. Miss Fjeldheim will sing her own solos and act as soloist for a 60 voice male chorus. Olaf Bernts, Norwegian consul in Chicago, will deliver a short Christmas greeting. The half hour program will be broadcast over WMAQ and NBC and sent to Europe by short wave.

Dr. Albert Palmer to Be Sunday Evening Speaker

Dr. Albert W. Palmer of the Chicago Theological seminary will be the speaker on the Chicago Sunday Evening club program which W-G-N will broadcast from 8:30 to 9 tonight.

Boynton on Books.

Prof. Percy H. Boynton of the University of Chicago will discuss Alberta Hammun's "The Hills Step Lightly" on his "Book Talk" program over W-G-N tonight at 6:45.

Marjorie Hannan Has Pet Christmas Superstition

To Marjorie Hannan, young dramatic star now headlining the Sunday afternoon "Sally of the Talkies" show, a special ritual of the Christmas season each year is her solemn reading of Dickens' beloved "Christmas Carol" before a microphone in an empty studio. While acting in a radio sketch of the "Christmas Carol" in Cincinnati in 1930, her voice and ability attracted the attention of a production manager who arranged the commercial audition that started her on the road up. From that day to this her pre-Christmas reading of the "Christmas Carol" has been her pet tribute to superstition.

'The Goose Hangs High' on NBC Radio Theater Today

Walter Connolly, veteran of the legitimate stage and radio and screen actor, and Pauline Frederick will play the leading rôles in the Radio theater presentation of Lewis Beach's play, "The Goose Hangs High," at 1:30 p. m. today over WENR and NBC. Connolly, also known to radio audiences for his portrayal of the famous Chinese sleuth, Charlie Chan, will be heard in the rôle of Bernard Ingles, the self-sacrificing father of a modern family. Heading the supporting cast will be Eric Linden, brilliant young stage and screen actor, in the rôle of the son, Bradley.

MISS LA MANCE, BAGGIORE TO SING WITH ORCHESTRA

Opera Star to Appear on Christmas Eve.

Eleanor LaMance, star of the Chicago Grand Opera company, and Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N's operatic tenor, will share honors as soloists with the W-G-N Concert orchestra directed by Henry Weber for two brilliant Christmas programs tonight and tomorrow night. Mr. Baggoire will be presented on the special program from 7:30 to 8:30 tonight and Miss LaMance will be the soloist on tomorrow evening's concert from 5 to 6 p. m.

Both of these special programs are part of the series of Christmas musicals which W-G-N is presenting during the holiday season both on the air and through the special loud speaker public address system which has been installed on Tribune Tower. The speakers on Tribune Tower flood the streets of the near north side and the north end of the great loop district with cheery holiday songs and instrumental music.

Baggiore to Sing Two Songs.

Mr. Baggiore will offer two songs, "Panis Angelicus" and Schubert's "Ave Maria."

The St. Paul's Episcopal choir, directed by Charles H. Demorest, and Leonard Salvo, W-G-N's organist, also will appear on the program with Mr. Baggiore and the orchestra. The choir will present four groups of carols. For two groups of Christmas songs, Frank Turner, boy soprano; Marshall Batchelder, baritone, and Roy Archer, baritone, will appear as soloists.

The program for tonight follows:

"Jingle Bells" .... Orchestra
"Adeste Fedeles"—O, Come, All Ye Faithful"; "Venite Adoremus"—The Snow Lay on the Ground"; "Silent Night, Holy Night" ..... St. Paul's choir
"It Came Upon the Midnight Clear"; "Joy to the World, the Lord Is Come" .... Leonard Salvo
"The Angel and the Shepherds"; "Slumber Song of the Infant Jesus"; "Good King Wenceslaus" St. Paul's choir, with Frank Turner and Marshall Batchelder, soloists.
"Hark the Herald Angels Sing"; "Little Town of Bethlehem" ..... Mr. Salvo
"Four French Canadian Carols" .... Orchestra
"Panis Angelicus" .... Mr. Baggiore and orchestra
"Angels from the Psalms of Glory"; "Morning Star" ... Mr. Salvo, organist
"Westminster Carol"; "Jesu Bambino" St. Paul's choir and Roy Archer, baritone, soloist.
"The Heavens Are Telling" [from the Creation] [Haydn] .... Orchestra
"Ave Maria" [Schubert] .... Mr. Baggiore and orchestra
"March of the Tin Soldiers" [Pierne] .... Orchestra
"Christmas Day" [A fantasy of old carols] [Handel] ...... St. Paul's choir
"Hallelujah Chorus" [from the Messiah] .... Orchestra

Tomorrow evening, Miss LaMance will present two songs, "The First Noel" and "From Every Spire on Christmas Eve."

La Grange Choir to Sing.

The Emanuel Church choir of La Grange, directed by Myron Boehm, will provide the choral music while the W-G-N orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, will present the orchestra music and Leonard Salvo, organist, also will offer his share of the Christmas music.

The program for tomorrow evening follows:

"Jingle Bells" .... Orchestra
"Little Town of Bethlehem"; "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks at Night"; "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear" .... Emanuel Church choir
"The Angel and the Shepherds"; "Angels We Have Heard on High"; "The Children at the Manger" .... Mr. Salvo
"Lo, How a Rose Ever Blooming"; "Silent Night, Holy Night"; "Westminster Carol" .... Choir
"Come with Us, Sweet Flowers"; "Once Came an Angel"; "Let Our Gladness Know No End" .... Mr. Salvo
"The First Noel" .... Miss LaMance and orchestra
"Around the Christmas Tree" .... Orchestra
"Hark the Herald Angels Sing"; "We Three Kings of Orient Are" ...... Choir
"Christmas Fantasy on Carols" ... Orchestra
"When Christ Was Born on Earth"; "O Thou Joyful Day" ...... Mr. Salvo
"Joy to the World, the Lord is Come"; "Away in a Manger"; "Adeste Fedeles"—O, Come, All Ye Faithful .... Choir
"Spanish and Russian Carols" ..... Orchestra
"From Every Spire on Christmas Eve" .... Miss LaMance
"Silent Night, Holy Night" ...... Orchestra

This is the second appearance this season for Miss LeMance on W-G-N's programs. Last month she made her Chicago air debut on a special Sunday evening concert with Mr. Weber and his great studio orchestra.

HAROLD TURNER WILL PRESENT CHILD PROGRAM

Harold Turner, W-G-N's staf pianist, will be featured in a fifteen minute program at 4:15 o'clock tomorrow. Mr. Turner has arranged fifteen minutes of melody for children and will play the "Curious Story," "By the Fireside," and "The Knight of the Hobby Horse" from Robert Schumann's "Scenes from Childhood," "The Hurdy-Gurdy Man," and "The Old Music Box," by Eugene Goosens, and "The Little Shepherd" and "Golliwog's Cake Walk," by Debussy.

N. U. Program of Air.

The Northwestern university "Reviewing Stand," heard Sunday mornings at 10 o'clock for several weeks, will be off the air, beginning this morning, until Sunday, Jan. 13, when it will be resumed.

KATHRYN WITWER TO BE SOLOIST ON STOCK PROGRAM

On Symphony Program Next Saturday.

Kathryn Witwer, lyric soprano of Chicago grand opera and of radio fame, will appear as one of the rare soloists on the popular concert program of the Chicago Symphony orchestra next Saturday evening which W-G-N will broadcast exclusively starting at 8:15 p. m. Dr. Frederick Stock, famous director of the orchestra, will conduct the concert.

Besides her successful appearances in opera Miss Witwer has been a regular soloist on radio programs, one of her most recent appearances being as guest soloist with the W-G-N Concert orchestra. She will sing Glazounow's "Primavera d'Or" and "Elsa's Dream" from the opera "Lohengrin."

The orchestra will offer the Handel Harty Water music, Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 4, "Italian," Brahm's Hungarian Dances, numbers 17 and 21; the preludes to acts I. and III. of "Lohengrin," and the Bacchanale and finale from the opera "Tannhauser."

The popular concerts of the Chicago Symphony orchestra have gained an international audience for W-G-N. Hundreds of letters of comment on the great orchestra's programs are received each season and many come from foreign lands. Recently a letter was received from a listener in Guatemala City in Central America asking for a complete schedule of the orchestra's broadcasts and telling of hearing all of the concerts directly from W-G-N.

ATTILIO BAGGIORE PLANS CLASSICAL CONCERT FRIDAY

Attilio Baggiore will present his weekly program with the W-G-N concert orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, from 9:30 to 10 o'clock Friday evening, presenting music of the classics. The W-G-N operatic tenor will sing "Questa o quella" from "Rigoletto," "The Crying Water," "Rose of Tralee" by Glover, and Massenet's brilliant "Elegie."

The orchestra will offer Dvorak's "Slavonic Dance in C Major," Kreisler's "Rondino," "Jote Aragonaise," Spanish style, by Albeniz, and the "Merrymakers' Dance" by German from the three Nell Gwyn dances.

'HANSEL-GRETEL' WILL BE HEARD ON OPERA GUILD

A thumbnail version in English of Humperdinck's fairy tale opera, "Hansel and Gretel," will be presented with Queena Mario and Editha Fleischer in the leading rôles during the Opera Guild broadcast at 7 o'clock tonight over WMAQ and an NBC network. Deems Taylor, narrator and director of the Opera Guild, has prepared the English version of the German folk tune, and a full orchestra and chorus under the baton of Wilfred Pelletier will assist. Mme. Mario will be in the rôle of Gretel and Miss Fleischer as Hansel.

Ralph Ginsburgh to Start Saturday Request Programs

Ralph Ginsburgh and his ensemble are to inaugurate a new series of Saturday afternoon programs from the Victorian room of the Palmer house over W-G-N. There the diners may enjoy a "luncheon musical" from 12:30 to 2:30 which will feature selections requested by the patrons of the room.

MOTHERSINGERS OF ENTIRE CITY TO GIVE PAGEANT

P.-T. A. Fosters Move to Form Chorus.

Invitations to participate in a pageant of the nations to be given this spring by the mothersingers of Chicago's parent-teacher associations were sent last week to every association in the city.

MRS. C. F. COOK.

The event is being sponsored by the music chairmen of the four Chicago districts of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers in order to promote the organization of choruses by parent-teacher associations. Approximately 10,000 are expected to take part.

Each association is asked to designate the nation it wishes to represent in the pageant, and whether costumes will be available. Any group which has no chorus is urged to form one in time to take part in the event. The United Mothersingers' chorus of Chicago will take the lead in the performance and individual choruses will have subsidiary rôles.

Responses of the various associations to the proposal will be heard at a meeting of presidents and music chairmen of the city Jan. 18 at the Stevens hotel.

"A focus is needed for the rapidly expanding mothersingers' movement, and that is the reason for the pageant," said Mrs. Clarence F. Cook, district assistant, who has charge of music for district 25. She is one of the four chairmen sponsoring the pageant.

"In district 25 alone we have from 35 to 38 choruses," she said. "Three have been founded in the last month—at the Fort Dearborn branch, the Shields and the Bennett schools. The pageant will give these thousands of women a goal and will call attention to the mothersingers. Our objective is a chorus in every school."

The executive board of the Darwin P.-T. A. will meet at 1:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the home of the association's president, Mrs. F. E. Robert, 2942 Edgewood avenue. Members will exchange gifts, grab bag fashion.

The homemaking group of the Hibbard Parent-Teacher association will meet at 1:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of its chairman, Mrs. Joseph Schwartz, 5000 North Spaulding avenue.

Members of the Midwest Council chorus were guests at a Christmas party Friday afternoon at the Saron Lutheran church, Shakespeare and Richmond avenues. Mrs. F. E. Robert, leisure time chairman of the council, had charge.

Children from the Mary Gage Peterson school helped the P.-T. A. distribute gifts of candy, fruit, and toys to patients at the Chicago Tuberculosis sanitarium last Wednesday morning.

The Linne Parent-Teacher association will give its second annual Christmas party at 6:30 o'clock this evening at Brands Park Community center, Elston and Francisco avenues. The event is sponsored by the ways and means committee, of which Mrs. Fannie Mesher is chairman. Gifts of candy and toys will be distributed to needy children of the community.

Rest Haven Will Benefit from New Year's Party

Isador Chern chapter of Rest Haven will celebrate at a New Year's eve party in the Grand ballroom of the Auditorium hotel. Mrs. Fannie Chern, 4861 North Talman avenue, organizer, is chairman, and the proceeds will be contributed toward maintenance of the Rest Raven Convalescent home, 1919 Prairie avenue.

Dance to Aid Needy

Miss Rosemary Murphy, 7929 Vernon avenue, president of the secretarial class of De Paul university, is in charge of arrangements for the winter formal, which this year will be known as a charity ball, to be held Wednesday evening at the Congress hotel. Proceeds will be used to buy Christmas baskets and clothing for the needy.

NORTHWEST AREA SCOUTS PROVIDE TOYS FOR NEEDY

Year's Work Will End with Distribution.

Wagons, sleds, skis, and all manner of smaller toys will be distributed tomorrow to poor children in northwest suburbs as a result of the year long activities of Boy Scouts of the Northwest Suburban council in collecting and renovating old toys.

Park Ridge, Des Plaines, and Barrington are the centers of collection and distribution. Hundreds of toys have been sent in within the last few days and Scouts are busy sorting and making last minute repairs on them, according to C. O. Nimtz, chief Scout executive.

Collect Clothing Also.

Determined that no child shall be disappointed on Christmas, the boys have made a house to house canvass for the toys and also for children's clothing, which is being turned over to the proper authorities for distribution.

Much of the repair work is done at the Maine Township High school under the supervision of P. R. Harschberger, manual training instructor, as part of the regular shop activities. This work, however, in contrast to most toy renovation projects, is carried on throughout the year.

In Park Ridge, toy headquarters are at 20½ Main street, under the direction of William Cleveland. Des Plaines headquarters are at 622 Lee street. L. R. Ditwiler directs the Des Plaines program and Roy Wilmering the Barrington activities. All three men are members of the civic service committee of the Northwest Suburban council.

Avoid Duplication.

The toys will not be distributed directly by the Boy Scouts, but will be turned over to organizations which have arranged to give out Christmas baskets and which have lists of deserving families. It is felt that this system will be fairer and will avoid duplication.

Observance of the 25th anniversary of Scouting will be started at the annual meeting of the Northwest Suburban council in January. B. L. Franzen of Des Plaines is chairman of the program committee for the celebration. He is assisted by John L. Bell of Barrington and A. R. Crawford of Niles.

Y. W. C. A. TO HOLD FRIDAY CLASSES FOR HOUSEWIVES

Friday morning classes designed for north side wives and mothers opened last week at the Harriet Hammond McCormick Y. W. C. A., 1001 North Dearborn street. The program in education is being promoted by a committee of north side women headed by Mrs. John McDonald of 1120 Lake Shore drive.

Dr. James Yard of Evanston will have a class in current events. Mrs. Davis Edwards will instruct in correct speech and personality development through speech. American culture will be taught by Miss Irene Warren, and French by Mme. Louise Champion. Juliet Barker will give a course on current books. There will be classes also in corrective gymnastics and swimming.

Miss Ethel Troy is director of the education studio of the Y. W. C. A., under whose auspices the program will be introduced.

EPISCOPAL GIRLS WILL HOLD DANCE AND FLOOR SHOW

The second annual mid-season promenade under the auspices of the Girls' Friendly society of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago, will be held Thursday evening at St. Chrysostom's parish house, 1424 North Dearborn parkway. Young women from all parts of the city will present a floor show, and there will be dancing. Miss Helen King, Miss Vita Maguire, Miss Marian Lafbury, and Miss Margaret Gilliland constitute the committee on arrangements.

Winnetka Country Club to Hold New Year Party

There will be dancing and a midnight supper to give 1935 a gay welcome on New Year's eve at the Sunset Ridge Country club, Winnetka. A tea dance for high school and college students will be held next Friday afternoon. Mrs. William Kelly has charge of the junior party.

CHAIRMAN

Miss Lauretta Marie Fischer of 2047 Grace street heads the committee planning the annual dinner dance the Alvernia Alumnae association will give on Thursday evening in the Gold Coast room of the Drake. Her committee includes Miss Virginia Lewand, Miss Dorothy Miller, Miss Lolieta Hinske, and Miss Marie Constantine.

200 LAKE COUNTY SINGERS TO GIVE THE "MESSIAH"

Handel's "Messiah" will be presented by the Lake County Festival chorus on Thursday evening at the Waukegan High school gymnasium under the direction of John D. Thomas, former director of music at Zion. The chorus includes 200 singers from the county. Mrs. Robert S. John is president and accompanist of the chorus.

Soloists will include Miss Helen Bickerton, who is soloist at the First Congregational church of Evanston; Miss Maurine Parybok, contralto soloist at the Fourth Presbyterian church of Chicago; John Eliot, radio tenor, and John Macdonald, bass soloist of the St. James Episcopal church of Chicago.

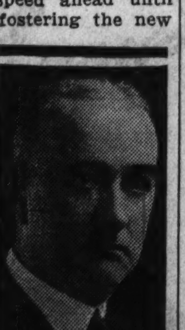
A dress rehearsal and "guest night" will be held on Wednesday evening. Four thousand tickets to this preview are being distributed by the Salvation Army, the Barwell Settlement, other charitable organizations, and pastors.

Ed-So-At Club Branches to Dance in Loop Tonight

An informal dance will be given by the main and north side branches of Ed-So-At club at 8:30 o'clock this evening in the Hangar of the La Salle hotel. Sam Goodman is in charge of the arrangements. Jack B. Slutsky is president of the main branch and Bobby Brown president of the north side branch.

10,000 PETITION STATE TO PROVIDE ARMORY ON NORTHWEST SIDE

It will be full speed ahead until January for those fostering the new northwest side armory movement, with indications that petitions to be presented to the legislature will bear more than the 10,000 names set as a goal, reports last week revealed.



ALBERT J. FLYNN.

Albert J. Flynn, president of the Wicker Park Chamber of Commerce, which proposed construction of the armory, said that everything was ready for introduction of the armory bill in the January session of the legislature by Representative Benjamin Adamowski [25th], minority leader of the house.

The site proposed for the armory is in the vicinity of Milwaukee, North, and Damen avenues. Its erection has been indorsed by business and political leaders of the northwest side, as well as bp ranking officers of the Illinois National Guard.

USE DES PLAINES TRADE VOUCHERS TO SPEED BUYING

Assignment of Deposits Helps Business.

Evidence that the deposit assignment plan of the Des Plaines State bank is working successfully was given last week with the announcement by Edward Sloan, assistant deputy receiver, that more than $7,000 had been placed in circulation in anticipation of the third 10 per cent dividend of the bank.

Approximately 500 depositors have taken advantage of the assignment system, Mr. Sloan said, and more are indicating their desire to use it. In fact the unexpected increase in the number of those assigning their deposits is taxing the bookkeeping facilities of the receiver's office, he said.

Increase Business.

The liquidation of funds that would otherwise be frozen, perhaps indefinitly, has aided materially to increase Christmas sales in Des Plaines, it was said. It also has been an important factor in keeping Christmas buying within the community, since purchases on the assignment plan can be made only from Des Plaines merchants.

More than forty Des Plaines merchants have signed agreements to take assignments on account in return for purchases made at their respective stores. This number is considerably better than 50 per cent of the total number.

The clearing house plan for closed banks which also has been adopted by the First State Bank of Barrington, originated with the Des Plaines bank and has achieved nation-wide publicity.

Transfer Assignments.

The procedure is usually as follows: Depositors voluntarily assign a maximum of 10 per cent of their deposits at the time of the closing of the bank to merchants in return for merchandise.

When a merchant accepts assignments of deposits, he is given a receipt showing that the correct amount has been credited to his account in the clearing house association. He may retain the receipt and redeem it in cash at the time of the dividend payment or use it in payment of bills owed other merchants through the clearing house.

HOLD EVANSTON CAROL FESTIVAL AT CHURCH TODAY

The annual Community Christmas carol sing for Evanston and north shore residents will be held at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the First Baptist church of Evanston.

This music program is unusual in that the audience contributes the greater part of the program by singing carols. John W. Beattie, acting dean of the Northwestern university school of music, will direct, assisted by Dr. William H. Barnes at the organ and a quartet of brass instruments from the university symphony orchestra.

Besides the singing by the audience there will be two groups of songs by the Haven school glee club, directed by Mary H. Kiess.

LEGION NOTES

A temporary charter has been issued to the Chicago Park District post, No. 775, of the American Legion, and an election of officers will be held soon. An installation party is planned after the holidays at the Lake Shore Athletic club. The meeting place of the new post will be the Administration building on the World's Fair grounds.

Organization of the post has been carried out by a committee of which T. A. Smith, Lincoln park policeman, is chairman. The post has been indorsed by the Chicago park commissioners, and all ex-service men employed by the park district are eligible to join.

The Elmwood Park American Legion post, No. 686, in coöperation with the Boy and Girl Scouts, held a Christmas party for children of the village yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Legion clubhouse, 74th street and Diversey avenue.

The children gave a program of readings, dancing and singing. Candy, nuts and toys were distributed by Santa Claus. Elmwood Park Legionnaires also are engaged in distributing clothing, shoes and toys to needy children.

PALATINE PAYS VILLAGE BOND HOLDERS $40,000

Distribution Timed to Aid Christmas Buying.

The holiday season will be brighter in Palatine for holders of village special assessment bonds, due to recent action of the Palatine village board in authorizing payment of nearly $40,000 in accrued interest and principal payments.

The immediate payment on the bonds has been made possible by the decision of the board's financial committee to segregate all tax collections for last year to pay off instalments on the bonds on a pro rata basis rather than allow the money to lie idle in the bank until enough has accumulated to permit payment in full.

Revise Accounting Plan.

The finance committee, headed by Arthur H. Mess and by Miss Margaret Godknecht, village treasurer, has just completed a study of the assessment records. As a result a new series of accounts has been set up, in which interest and principal for the various bonds is kept separate.

The bonds, according to Miss Godknecht, were issued several years ago for necessary improvements in the village of Palatine and included street paving, parking, and other construction work. Many are past due, but, owing to meager tax collections in the last few years, the village has been unable to meet all its obligations in full. It is hoped that the debts will be speedily cleared up under the new system of payment.

$39,896 Balance on Hand.

A statement submitted to the board shows a balance of $39,896 in the special assessments accounts as of Oct. 31. The payments will be made on all bonds where 2 per cent or more has been collected.

Holders of Palatine bonds may inquire regarding payment and receive such cash as may be due them by applying to the village treasurer.

ASK RAIL SAFETY GATES

Installation of safety gates at six grade crossings of the Chicago and North Western railroad in Palatine now depends on a favorable decision of the Illinois commerce commission. A resolution adopted by the village board and requesting the action has been presented to the commission by Louis Freise, chairman of the board's judiciary committee.

The resolution was supported by a petition signed by 873 Palatine residents, who have felt the need for some safety device more effective than the present system of warning bells. A hearing by the commission will probably be held in the near future.

Railroad Promises Help.

At a recent hearing of the board on the need for new safety facilities, P. G. Campbell, Wisconsin division superintendent of the Chicago and North Western, promised the coöperation of the railroad in the attempt to eliminate the present hazard.

The Lions club of Palatine has taken the lead in agitation for the improvement. L. J. Steinbrinck is chairman of the citizens' committee appointed to start proceedings.

Several violations of the railroad's own rules were brought to the attention of the board, among them the fact that trains are reported running past the station while another train is stopping to discharge or receive passengers.

Neglects Regular Duties.

The tower man, whose duty is to regulate the signals for the passage of trains, is on duty only part of the time, it was said. Since the discharge of the station clerk he has taken over much of the latter's work, including the handling of mail bags, to the neglect of his own duties.

Mr. Freise was directed to bring the matter of rule violation to the attention of the railroad and to request immediate adjustment.

Their Golden Year

Mr. and Mrs. Sophus Hartmann.

A letter of congratulation and best wishes from President Roosevelt was among those received by Mr. and Mrs. Sophus Hartmann on their golden wedding anniversary last Monday. They celebrated at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Rudolph K. Haase, 6551 Cornelia avenue.

The Ladies' Friendship club, of which Mrs. Hartmann has been secretary for more than twenty-five years, attended the party in a group. Other guests included their daughter, Miss Else Hartmann, Mrs. Emil Feihmann, Mrs. Lucille Feihmann, Miss Elizabeth Martin, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Christof.

Mr. and Mrs. Hartmann were born in Germany, Mrs. Hartmann in Meldorf, Holstein, and Mr. Hartmann in Hamburg. They were married on the island of Helgoland and came to Chicago in 1906. Mr. Hartmann is still active in the manufacture of household novelties and toys and manages his own shop near his home, 6551 Cornelia avenue.

AVONDALE C. OF C. PROMOTES TRADE BY SHOW TICKETS

Plans Theater Party for Community.

A community theater party to which admittance may be obtained simply by buying some article of merchandise from a neighborhood merchant, will be held by the Avondale Chamber of Commerce in the Rose theater, 2860 Milwaukee avenue on Saturday, Jan. 12.

Vaudeville acts by both professional and local talent have been arranged, according to Alfred A. Behnke, secretary of the Avondale Chamber of Commerce. A special feature will be shown and merchandise will be distributed as prizes.

The Avondale Chamber of Commerce is composed of business men in the Milwaukee avenue district between Kimball and Crawford avenues. This community is growing rapidly, especially since Kimball avenue was opened to trafic, Mr. Behnke said.

The organization also is supporting the proposed elevated feeder extensions, hearings on which are pending before the Illinois Commerce Commission. The feeder buses would bring many shoppers into the Logan Square and adjacent areas, it is felt.

All present officers were returned for another term at the annual election of the chamber. Municipal Judge Steve Adamowski was made honorary president and Ald. Walter Orlikoski [35th] was elected an honorary member.

The active officers are John Klaus, president; Vincent Najbowski, vice president; John Marenkiewicz, vice president; Alfred Behnke, secretary, and Roman Strezlecki, treasurer.

Following is the board of directors: S. J. Freedman, chairman; Louis Weschler, Stanley Ragen, M. H. Grossman, Alex Horwaight, Walter Uhwat, A. E. Moskovitz, Edward Ludkowski, Ben Elkins, Jerome E. Baum and Max Berg.

St. Peter's Choir to Sing at Hotel Christmas Eve

The annual Christmas eve party of the Edgewater Beach hotel will feature the St. Peter's choir directed by Mason Slade. The singers, 50 boys and men dressed in the traditional church robes and carrying lighted candles, will be accompanied by James Kozak's concert orchestra.

NEW NORTHWEST SIDE FEEDER BUS PETITION FILED

Asks Service on Central Park Avenue.

Surface Line feeder buses for Central Park avenue between Milwaukee and Lawrence avenues are asked in a petition filed with the Illinois commerce commission last week by Joseph Eichenbaum in behalf of the Park View Chamber of Commerce.

The petition points out the urgent need of the extension in view of the fact that there is no north and south transportation between the Pulaski road and Kedzie avenue Surface Line routes. The proposed bus route would be approximately two and one-half miles long.

Second Request.

"Many persons are inconvenienced by the distance between these two street car lines," Mr. Eichenbaum said. "Feeder buses with transfer privileges to the Surface Lines would meet a serious need."

This is the second proposal now before the commerce commission for service on Central Park avenue. The complaints recently filed, which ask for a network of elevated line feeder buses on the north and northwest sides, specified buses on Central Park avenue from Foster avenue to Humboldt park to serve the Garfield Park elevated station.

The hearings on the elevated line feeder bus case have been consolidated and will begin Monday, Jan. 7.

Mayor Favors Projects.

Hopes for a favorable decision on the Northwest highway and Higgins road case, now being studied by the commission, were raised last week with the publication of Mayor Kelly's traction platform, embodied in a formal letter to Chairman B. F. Lindheimer and members of the commission.

The mayor listed the following as improvements that he considers the commission can order at once:

Extension of service on Northwest highway and Higgins road, North Ashland avenue, North Central Park avenue, North Laramie avenue, Foster avenue, and Peterson avenue.

Candlelight Song.

The Catherine Bennett Songbirds, choral winners of The Tribune Music festival last summer, will give a candlelight program at 8:30 o'clock this evening at the Croyden hotel.

L. H. HUNT IS CHOSEN TO LEAD EPISCOPAL YOUNG PEOPLE GROUP

Leigh H. Hunt, young Chicago attorney, will lead Episcopal young people of the city during the coming year through the activities of Gamma Kappa Delta, according to an announcement. Mr. Hunt has been reëlected president of the organization.

LEIGH H. HUNT.

Other officers will be: First vice president, Goodwin Roberts of St. Mary's church, Park Ridge; second vice president, Robert Hoff, Church of the Advent, Logan square; treasurer, Francis Miller, Church of the Mediator, Morgan Park; recording secretary, Margaret Bund, St. Mathew's church, Evanston; corresponding secretary, Elsie Deller, St. Martin's church, Austin, and sergeant, Charles Eitel, Church of the Holy Nativity, Beverly Hills.

Directors will include Ernest N. Robinson, St. Peter's church, Belmont avenue; Harry Johnson, St. Paul's church, Kenwood; Ralph Himes, St. Barnabas church; William Clark, St. Luke's procathedral, Evanston; Mabel Gibson, Church of the Atonement, and William Thybony, All Saints, Ravenswood.

Mr. Hunt, the president, is a member of the Church of the Advent, Logan Square.

TEAMS OPEN PLAY FOR BASKETBALL LEAGUE TROPHY

Games in the tournament of the basketball league of the old Portage Park district, which began last week, will be played each Wednesday and Saturday evening from 7 to 10 o'clock in the Portage Park gymnasium, 4100 North Long avenue, according to announcement of M. J. Marinello, superintendent.

Following are the teams entered in the lightweight division: Bulldogs, Falcons, Portage Arrows, Brandt Florals, Central Merchants, Cernys, Danards, and Cardinals. Heavyweight teams are: Irving Inn, Portage Arrows, Lockwood Grocers, Central Merchants, Fried Jewelers, and Wolves.

The following emerged victors in the first week's games: Bulldogs, Brandt Florals, Portage Arrows, Cernys, Lockwood Grocers, and Fried Jewelers. Spectators are admitted free.

WISHING YOU A MERRY XMAS!
WELL, I'LL BE A SON-OV-A GUN!
WHAT IS IT, KAYO? GIMME A LOOK.
HEY! MAMIE, COME HERE!
OH! MY HEAVENLY DAYS YER UNCLE WILLIAM HAS WENT AS BATTY AS A BED BUG, BOYS!
HUH? HOW LONG HAS HE BEEN MAKING THOSE TERRIBLE FACES, MRS. MULLINS?
WELL I WATCHED HIM DOIN' IT FOR A HOUR.
THEN I COME ALONG AND WATCHED HIM FOR TEN MINUTES.
AND IT'S BEEN TWENTY MINUTES SINCE I GOT HERE, SO YOU CAN GET A PAPER AND PENCIL AND FIGURE HOW LONG HE'S BEEN AT IT, OFFICER.
THE COP'S RIGHT, MAMIE- YOU'D JUST GET UNCLE WILLIE ALL EXCITED. IT'S BETTER FOR THE OFFICER TO GO IN AND QUIET HIM DOWN.
WELL, GIVE ME THAT SPY-GLASS. I WANT TO WATCH HOW HE DOES IT.
NOW THAT IS A FUNNY THING!----I HAPPENED TO KNOW THAT LORD PLUSHBOTTOM AND MAMIE, MOON, KAYO, AND THE ALDERMAN FROM OUR WARD WAS EACH AND EVERY ONE GOING TO MAKE ME A PRESENT OF A BOX OF CIGARS FOR CHRISTMAS- AND I WAS PRACTICING REGISTERING SURPRISE IN FRONT OF A MIRROR- WHEN SUDDENLY I LOST CONSCIOUSNESS AND WOKE UP IN HERE WITH A KNOT ON MY KNOB AS BIG AS A EGG.

DICK TRACY
CHESTER GOULD
BUT MISS TESS, IT'S ONLY ONE MORE DAY TILL CHRISTMAS EVE - AND TRACY ISN'T ANYWHERE AROUND. WE HAVEN'T EVEN HEARD FROM HIM FOR DAYS.
LISTEN, JUNIOR - NOW BUCK UP! I'M SURE WHEREVER DICK IS - HE'S ALL RIGHT - BUT I DO AGREE WITH YOU ON ONE POINT - WE'VE GOT TO GET HIM OUT OF THE DETECTIVE BUSINESS. IT'S TOO RISKY. HE'S IN CONSTANT DANGER.
HE HASN'T EVEN PHONED US!
MAYBE SOMETHING'S HAPPENED TO HIM ALREADY.
NOW COME - LET'S FINISH DECORATING OUR CHRISTMAS TREE - I KNOW TRACY WILL TURN UP OKAY.
MEANWHILE - AT THE HEADQUARTERS OF BORIS ARSON, TURMOIL AND WILD FRENZY PREVAIL.....
THE VERY WORST HAS HAPPENED! OUR PLANE WITH THE NITRO-GLYCERINE ABOARD WAS BROUGHT DOWN AND IS IN OFFICIAL HANDS.
THAT'S THE WORK OF THAT DETECTIVE, PATTON, WHO SMUGGLED HIMSELF ABOARD IN PLACE OF OUR MAN, OLAF!
OUR ENTIRE PLANS ARE RUINED - COMPLETELY SMASHED! AND WE ARE IN THE GREATEST POSSIBLE DANGER!
IT'S ALL THE FAULT OF THAT DETECTIVE, TRACY. HE MUST BE REMOVED, MASTER.
REMOVED, INDEED! BRING HIM IN HERE, B-2 - HE'S CHAINED IN THE NEXT ROOM!

WELL-MAW-GUESS I'M ALL SET TO GIVE THOSE THREE JONES YOUNGSTERS THE SURPRISE OF THEIR LIVES-YOU KNOW THEY'VE NEVER HAD MUCH OF A CHRISTMAS BEFORE-THEIR FOLKS ARE TOO POOR TO BUY PRESENTS-
BUT THIS YEAR IT'S ALL GOING TO BE DIFFERENT-SANTA CLAUS MAY FORGET THEM BUT WE WON'T-IT'S ALL ARRANGED THAT THEY'RE COMING OVER HERE CHRISTMAS EVE-AND I'M GOING TO SLIDE DOWN THE CHIMNEY AND PLAY SANTA FOR THEM MYSELF-
OH-PAW-IT ALL SOUNDS WONDERFUL-
I WAS JUST WONDERING THOUGH-IF YOU'LL BE ABLE TO CLIMB DOWN THAT FIREPLACE-IT LOOKS LIKE A PRETTY TIGHT FIT FOR YOU-
BY JINGOES-MAW-I'M AFRAID YOU'RE RIGHT-SHUCKS-RECKON I'LL HAVE TO GIVE UP THE IDEA AFTER ALL-
JUST A MINUTE, MR. BROWN-WE CAN'T DISAPPOINT THOSE POOR LITTLE KIDS-I'LL FIND SOMEBODY TO PLAY SANTA CLAUS FOR YOU-JUST LEAVE IT TO ME-
'TWAS THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS-AND IN FARMER BROWN'S HOUSE-THE JONES KIDS WERE LISTENING, EACH AS STILL AS A MOUSE-WHILE MR BROWN TOLD THEM HOW GOOD OLD SAINT NICK-WOULD LIGHT ON THE ROOF WITH A CLICKETY-CLICK-AND COME DOWN THE CHIMNEY WITH PRESENTS AND TOYS-FOR GOOD LITTLE GIRLS AND GOOD LITTLE BOYS-
SO YOU YOUNG 'UNS HAVE NEVER SEEN SANTA-EH? WELL-YOU'VE SURE GOT A TREAT IN STORE FOR YOU TONIGHT-
HE'S A JOLLY OLD FELLOW-JUST AS BIG AND FAT AS CAN BE-ROUND ROSY CHEEKS-LONG WHITE WHISKERS-WEARS A BIG RED COAT AND HIGH BLACK BOOTS-AND HE CARRIES A GREAT BIG PACK OF TOYS ON HIS SHOULDERS-
DON'T WORRY-HE'LL BE HERE AT TWELVE SHARP-ONLY FIVE MORE MINUTES TO WAIT-JUST KEEP YOUR EYES ON THAT FIREPLACE-HERE HE COMES NOW-LOOK-THERE'S HIS PACK-
GEE-
BAM
MERRY CHRISTMAS, FOLKS!

"They have Skin years younger than their Age"

———— Dermatologist's report

"No blemish of any kind," said the dermatologist of the skin of Miss Katrina McCormick. "It has unusual delicacy of texture." Speaking of Pond's Cold Cream, Miss McCormick said, "This cream keeps my skin clear, fine-pored and ready for powder."

"The skin of her teens" "Mrs. Henry D. Phelps has an exceptionally clear skin—fine—smooth—free from lines," reported the dermatologist of the skin of Muriel Vanderbilt Phelps, granddaughter of the late W. K. Vanderbilt. "Pond's Cold Cream wipes away lines and discolorations," Mrs. Phelps says.

"The skin of her 20's" "Mrs. Tiffany's skin is free from lines usual at her age. It has the fresh coloring and fine texture found in the twenties." —Dermatologist's Report.—Mrs. Tiffany says, "Pond's Cold Cream smooths out tired lines—even crepiness."

KATRINA McCORMICK

MURIEL VANDERBILT PHELPS

MRS. PERRY TIFFANY

Your Skin can be 10 Years Younger than your Age

COMPARE your skin with that of other women your age. With the skin of women you know to be older—or younger—than you are.

Then you will discover for yourself—in actual life—this important scientific fact: Skin age need not be governed by years.

Dermatologists say that the age of your skin depends on certain conditions in your skin itself. They determine its apparent youth or age.

You must have an active circulation. Your skin must be as elastic as new rubber. And, most important, your glands must create a rich supply of invigorating oils. Then, no matter what your age may be, your skin will look young.

At 20 Skin Begins to Fade

But even as early as the 20's your skin begins to age—unless you give it the extra help it needs.

You don't need expensive creams and lotions. No, nor long, tedious facials. There is one single cream that answers all the vital needs of your skin. A cream that beautiful women, in every country, depend on daily—Pond's Cold Cream.

In this one cream are rich specially processed oils that seem to wipe age signs away. Your most stubborn skin faults—blemishes—coarse pores—drooping contours, all are helped by this wonder-working cream. And it brings to your skin an alluring freshness—that glorious bloom of youth itself.

One Cream Alone Keeps Age Away

The lovely porcelain complexions of Katrina McCormick—of Muriel Vanderbilt Phelps—of Mrs. Perry Tiffany—whose portraits are above—are positive proof of the excellence and effectiveness of this world-famous cream.

Use Pond's Cold Cream as they do.

Every Night smooth it on your skin generously. Its luxurious, whipped-cream texture swiftly melts into the pores—dissolves dust, make-up, grime, even dislodges blackheads, corrects blemishes that cloud the skin.

Then, wipe it off thoroughly. While your skin is exquisitely fresh and clean, pat in a second application—let it linger a few moments. Know the full rich benefits its youth-bringing oils can give. And when you arise in the morning, again treat your skin to this fragrant cream, then smooth on powder and make-up. It will cling smooth, fresh, vivid through the day.

See for yourself how skin that is daily cared for with Pond's Cold Cream holds its radiant loveliness. How skin faults—age signs—are literally erased.

Try This Famous Cream—Today

Send right now for the generous 3 days' supply we have for you. Use this luxurious cream every night—during the day. Even this brief test will convince you that Pond's Cold Cream cleanses deepest—quickly corrects skin faults. In these three days you will actually see this one cream make your skin clearer—finer—smoother. Soon—very soon—your mirror will reflect a skin glowing with the vibrant freshness of youth.

Mrs. Phelps is an enthusiastic horsewoman and is known from coast to coast. She exhibits at important shows in California, Newport, New York.

INSTRUCTION.

Give Your Daughter a

BEAUTY CULTURE

Course for Christmas

Insure your daughter a permanent source of income for life by giving her a course of instruction in beauty culture at DeLEE. A well trained beauty expert is always able to find a good paying position. And in no other field can a girl qualify herself for a good paying position in such a short period of time.

Every DeLEE Graduate Is Employed

Think what that means! Every woman or man who has been graduated from DeLEE has a good paying position. That means that high class beauty shops KNOW that DeLEE graduates, trained by Madame Louise, are GENUINE BEAUTY EXPERTS, capable of pleasing even the most fastidious clientele.

Each day good beauty shops are offering DeLEE graduates positions. We have had almost TWICE AS MANY CALLS FOR OPERATORS as we have graduates to fill the positions. There is no "unemployment problem" for DeLEE graduates.

Class Now Forming

A new class is now forming, and will soon start receiving instruction. Bring your daughter in tomorrow morning and see this marvelous, beautiful school for yourself. Talk with the DeLEE Dean. She will explain how convenient payment terms can be arranged. If you can't come, write for interesting FREE book, "Your Career in Beauty Culture."

Both Day and Evening Classes. Mail coupon for interesting FREE book. T-1223

Leading Shop Owners DEMAND Burnham Graduates

Wonderful Opportunity for those who ACT NOW

You can take advantage of many money saving offers RIGHT NOW that we probably will not be able to offer after the first of the year.

Unbelievably easy terms—or you can pay for MOST of your tuition after you graduate. Other special advantages for those who enroll now. Our advice to every one who wants to take up beauty culture is to visit Burnham's this week.

See for yourself why more girls enroll at Burnham's than at any other school.

63 YEARS KNOWING HOW TO TEACH GIVES YOU A FLYING START.

Established 63 years ago, in 1871. E. Burnham, Inc., operates the world's oldest, largest beauty school. For years women have considered Burnham to be the most celebrated and exclusive of beauty culture schools. These women know that the finer positions they now hold are due to Burnham training. Many have gained independence for they operate their own exclusive shops. All of this is waiting for you now. Do not hesitate to follow this sure road to success.

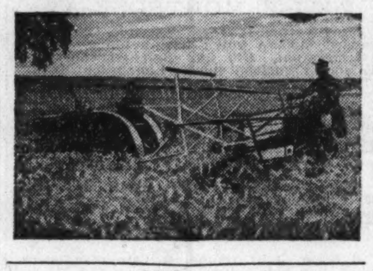
REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.



Alabama.

FARMERS IN BALDWIN COUNTY, ALAbama, are fortunately located; desirable climate, productive soils, good home conditions, abundant rainfall. Several thousand carloads of early produce are shipped to northern markets annually, growers receiving cash at shipping points. The early crops are followed by second crops on the same land. Baldwin County is a proved good prosperous, general farming, live stock, poultry and trucking region. About eighty per cent of the farmers in lower Baldwin are from the North. Good land still available at reasonable prices. For illustrated literature write E. J. Hoddy, General Development Agent, Dept. B-92, Louisville & Nashville R. R. Co., Louisville, Ky.

California.

IN CALIFORNIA SMALL FARM HOMES beat the depression. Such homes are the solution for many of our economic and social problems. Less working hours per week make it possible to derive a good part of the living for the average family from a small tract. California offers this opportunity, where many varieties of fruits and vegetables are grown. The Small Farm Home is a proven success in many localities. The Santa Fe Railway has no land to sell but offers a free information service on location. Low fares. Write for illustrated Southern California folder and our farm paper "The Earth" free for six months. C. L. Seagraves, General Colonization Agent, Santa Fe Railway, 900A Railway Exchange, Chicago.

Aids to Beauty First Aid for Late Shoppers

Gadgets, Easily Bought, Rescue the Tardy from Charges of Neglect.

BY ELEANOR NANGLE.

LIFE preservers for those lost at this late moment in a sea of indecision—or procrastination:

Evening bags fitted with fine cosmetics. Three stand out in the Christmas parade. One, of velvet, brocade, satin, faille, or gold or silver kid, has a chased gold frame and clasp. Though it is smartly flat it is chock-full of glamorous beauty aids — a jeweled compact and matching lipstick, a flacon of exquisite perfume, a good sized mirror, and a prystal comb, with room to spare for cigarets, money, and a handkerchief. The others are somewhat similar, filled with cosmetics of the highest grade, the kind women love as much for their chic as for their virtues.

Compacts Are Jewels.

Then there are compacts. Necessities, of course, and always welcome. When they're dramatically smart little affairs such as some of the cosmetic houses have launched this season they become more than that. They can be as beautiful a costume accessory as a bit of jewelry.

Such a one is the small, slender vanity in silver trimmed ivory enamel centered with a baguette jewel ornament. No more than two inches long, and less than that in width, it conceals a foursome of beauty aids in four combinations of special makeup for the blonde, the brunette, the titian, and the fortunate woman with white hair.

Frantic gift seekers who must make the best of the remaining nine shopping hours would do well to learn, by fair means or foul, the favorite beauty aids of the recipient, then to surprise her day after tomorrow with a kit of those same products.

Choose Perfumes with Care.

Almost every line has special gift boxes or packages that are guaranteed to be sure fire successes as Santa-to-a-lady gestures. One, completely fitted with all the creams and lotions her little heart could desire, plus mirror and cleansing tissues, is a flat packet with zippers at each side that fits under the arm like a purse. Exceedingly tosh for traveling. Surprisingly low priced it is, too.

Other kits are priced from a few dollars to the sky-is-the-limit point, at costs consistent with their elegance.

Perfumes are the real last minute pals. A general idea of the personality of the woman who is to wear the scent is essential, though. For the sugar and spice girls there are the utterly charming and utterly safe choices like the floral blends. You can't go wrong on these. Scents a little more on the daring side are abundant. But we do warn you to feel pretty sure that you know the lady and her tastes. Don't hand a modest violet to a siren nor a musky blend to a demure old lady.

Rely on Bath Trimmings.

If you're completely in the dark about her cosmetic or her perfume preferences make bath trimmings your last minute selections. The oils, the soaps, the salts, the colognes, and the dusting powders are thrilling beyond belief this year—and the amounts the buyer can spend for them are equally thrilling from any point of view.

The toilet goods counters, you see, are your happy hunting ground at this frantic last moment.

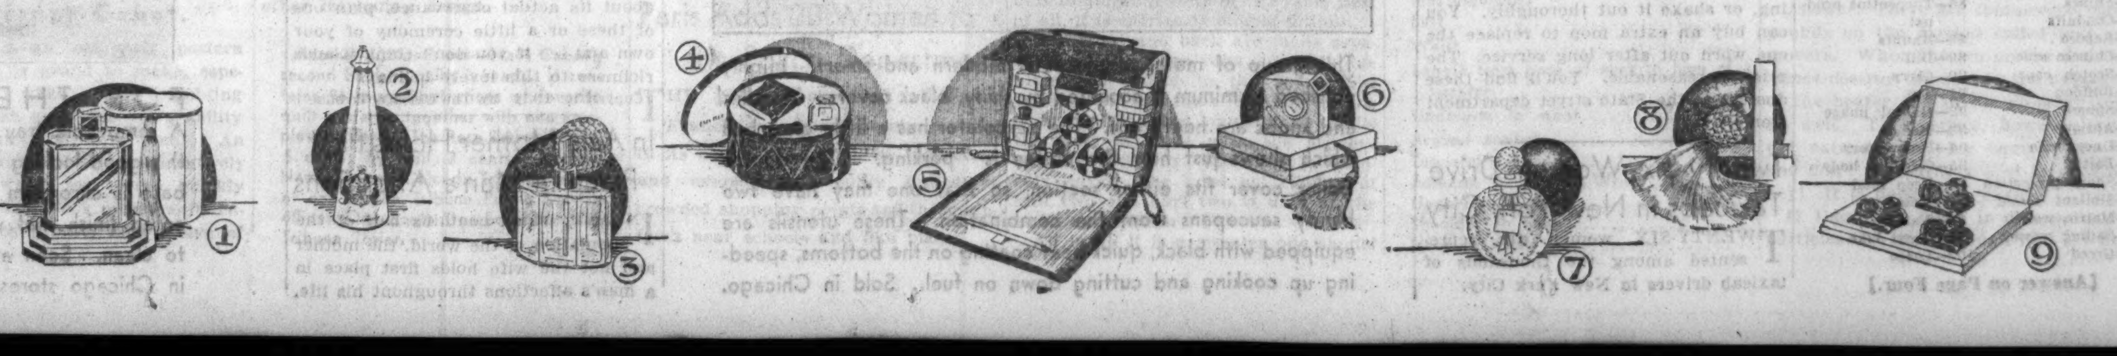
LAST minute selections that will woo any woman. No. 1: One of the richest of perfumes, as alluring as it is elegant. The bottle proper is encased in golden hued mirror glass, over which fits a tasseled sheath of coral velvet. No. 2: A new cologne with a decided Russian flavor, product of one of the great cosmetic houses. No. 3: One of the most practical of gifts for the woman who treasures her perfumes, an atomizer that foils evaporation. No. 4: Lipstick and a powder compact in red, white, and blue drumstick cases have a gay companion—a small flacon of a fine scent. No. 5: A lether traveling kit, fitted with fine beauty aids, zips open like a portfolio and is as convenient to carry as a flat purse. No. 6: An intriguing, sophisticated perfume for the woman of fashion comes in a beautiful jade green flacon. No. 7: A light, delicate scent, a beguiling floral blend, in a cunning decanter of bubble glass. No. 8: A corded silk sachet tassel in a famous fragrance is available in a range of exquisite colors. Its strength lasts for years. No. 9: Three tiny bottles of fine perfumes that make a jewel-like assortment.



Modern Fruit Cake Made in Three Minutes

Tradition Makes This Delicacy Indispensable to a Merry Christmas.

By MARY MEADE.

SAILING along under mountains of Christmas shopping and saluting Santa Clauses on every loop corner is a grand reminder that there are just two precious days left before Christmas, and that if fruit cakes aren't already ageing on our shelves it's high time we got a scramble on and put them there before the in-laws start to arrive.

There's no getting away from the fact that the majority of fruit cakes are better for a few weeks of ageing, even occasional "basting," to season them for the holidays. But if you're a put-offer like so many of us, there are still fruit cakes which may be made tomorrow and yet be rich and luscious for Christmas feasting. The simplest trick of all has cut down the four hour labor of grandma's day to a three minute kitchen merry-go-round, with the cake in the oven almost as soon as the wish for it has popped into our heads. The "props" for this domestic miracle consist simply of a package of one of the several fruit cake "mixes" now on the market, flanked by an egg and a cup of liquid or whatever the recipe on the box suggests. With certain mixes, the cakes may simply be tossed together in a bowl, then turned back neatly for baking into the tins in which they were bought. Glaced pineapple, cherries, dates, nuts, spices, and other good things help to pattern these 1934 models after recipes which date back generations.

Canned Fruit Juices Help.

But if you still love that glowing feeling of having truly created the Christmas fruit cake you can yet be modern in the methods you use. Delectable fruit juices come in cans. Citron, lemon, and orange peel arrive ready sliced in tidy packages. Nuts may be bought already shelled, raisins seedless or seeded, and dates pitted.

A recipe which takes these cook's helpers into consideration and is not too big for modest sized families and pocketbooks is:

DARK CHRISTMAS FRUIT CAKE.
½ pound currants
1 pound raisins
2 packages dates
½ pound candied pineapple
½ pound candied cherries
1 package citron [3 ounces]
1 package lemon peel [3 ounces]
1 package orange peel [3 ounces]
½ pound almonds
½ pound pecans
3 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon allspice
1 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
6 eggs, well beaten
1 square chocolate, melted
½ cup grape juice
½ cup honey

Chop the fruits and nuts. Sift together three times the flour, soda, salt, and spices. Finish by sifting them over the chopped fruit and nuts, mixing these well. Cream the fat in a large mixing bowl and beat in the sugar, stirring until fluffy. Add the beaten eggs and the chocolate, mixing thoroughly. Now add the flour and fruits alternately with the grape juice and honey. Mix well and pour into two loaf pans which have been lined with waxed paper and oiled. Bake in a slow oven (250 degrees F.) for 4½ hours or until done.

Endless bright notions present themselves if fruit cakes are to play a part in Christmas gift giving. Gay figured papers or glittering transparent wrappings, folded neatly about two pound loaves, are tied with smart gold or silver ribbons and topped with sprigs of evergreen or holly. Or if a more substantial gift is the thing bake your fruit cake in a covered, fireproof glass casserole, seal in all the goodness when the cake has cooled, and wrap it in the proper festive jacket for its seat under the Christmas tree.

Quite a different sort of cake is produced when we add fat pork to the cake mixture. No new fangled idea, either, for the recipe which follows has been used countless times by our English and early American great-greats—with the same rousing success that accompanies it today. Here comes the recipe:

HOLIDAY PORK AND FRUIT CAKE.

1 pound fat pork [no lean nor rind]
2 cups boiling water
2 cups seedless raisins
1 pound currants
1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup chopped maraschino cherries
2-3 cup chopped candied fruit peel [mixed]
2 cups brown sugar
1 cup molasses
1 tablespoon almond extract
1 tablespoon soda
1 tablespoon baking powder
5 cups cake flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon ground nutmeg
1 tablespoon ground cinnamon
1 tablespoon ground cloves
1 tablespoon ground allspice

Run the pork fat through the food chopper and mix it with the boiling water. Cool, then add the chopped fruits and nuts, the sugar, molasses, and almond extract. Mix thoroughly. Sift together three times the flour, baking powder, soda, salt, and spices. Stir these gradually into the first mixture and when well blended pour the batter into a large loaf pan lined with waxed paper. Bake in a slow oven [325 degrees F.] for 2½ hours, or until done.

Paris Withholds Title "World's Best Dressed Woman"

PARIS dressmakers indulged in their annual spree of choosing the most elegantly gowned women of the world a few days ago, but, reluctant to offend, did not honor any one with the title of "world's best dressed woman." There was as great a divergence in names as there were couturiers' lists.

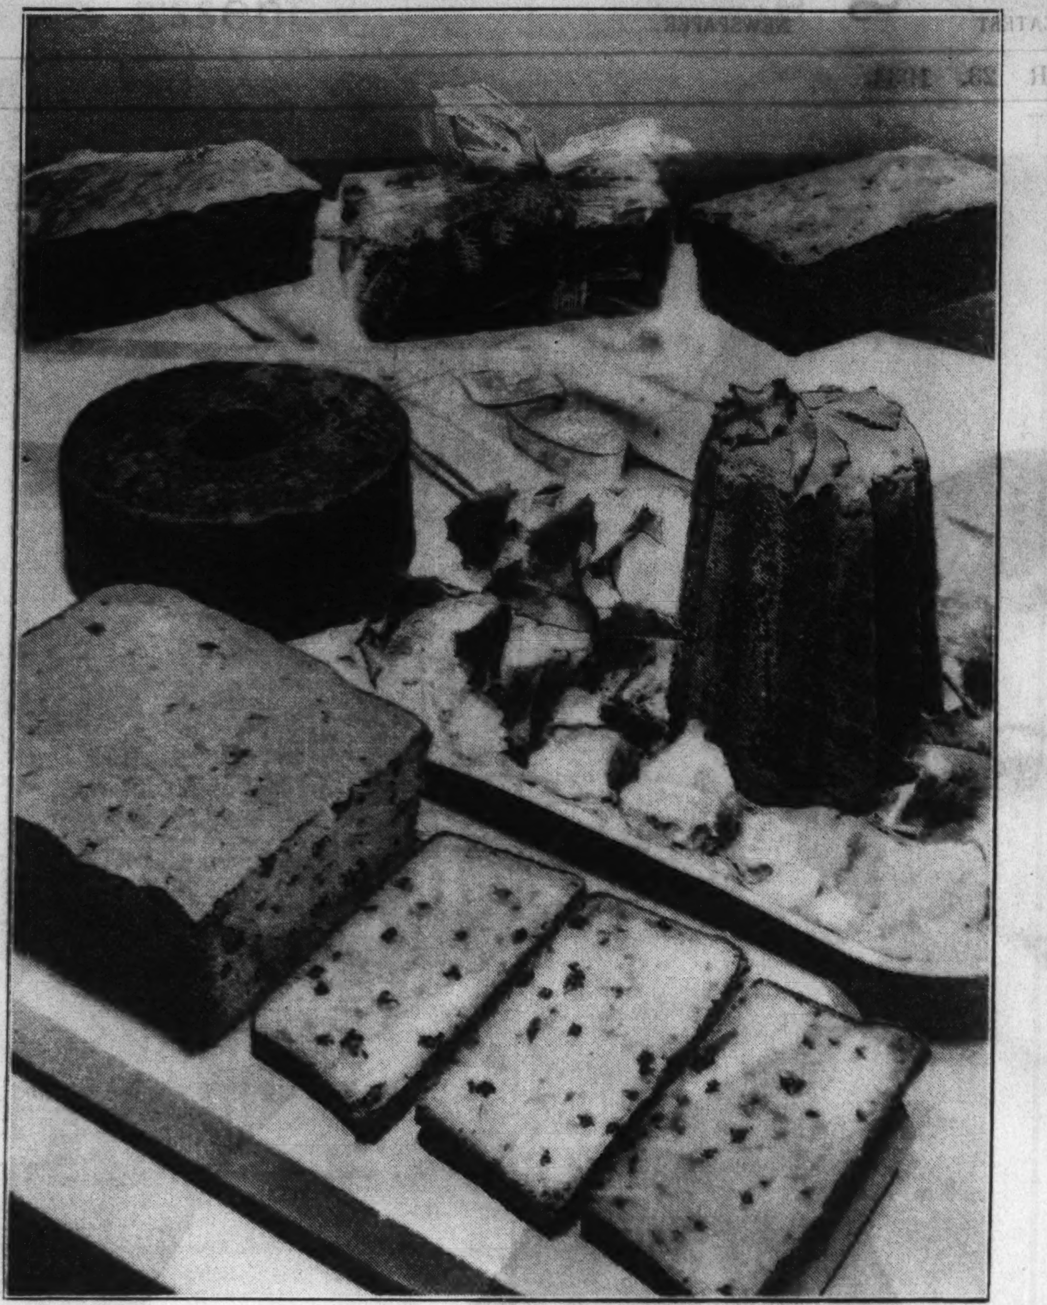
One of the lists was headed by the name of a New York woman—Mrs. Harrison Williams.

Other American women named in this list were Ina Claire and Tallulah Bankhead, actresses; Mrs. Eleanor Patterson of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. William G. McAdoo, Mrs. William Vanderbilt, Mrs. Chester Leeds, Mrs. Carroll Carstairs, Mrs. Frank Jay Gould, Princess Faucigny Lucinge, the former Caroline Foster, and Baroness Eugene de Rothschild, formerly Kitty Spotswood.

Included on the list were two South American women, Countess Georges Castellane, born Fernandez y Anchorena, and Marquise del Merito, daugher of the Bolivian tin king, Simon Patino.

Others named were Mrs. Arthur Bendir of England, the French born Hon. Mrs. Reginald Fellowes, the French Begum Aga Khan, Countess Alain de Solages, Countess Gabriac, Mme. Chantin, and Mme. Rolo, an Italian woman who is the wife of a wealthy Egyptian.

GIFTS OF IMMEDIATE BENEFIT



Psychologists agree that a Christmas gift which cannot be used for some time does not give as much pleasure as a seasonable one. Fruit cakes, light, dark, rectangular, or round, may be catalogued as both useful and seasonable gifts. Another welcome present is a plum pudding in its mold and ready to be reheated. Enclose in the package a recipe for the pudding sauce.

[STORY ON PAGE ONE.]

Rites with Bayberry Candle a Charming Christmas Custom

WHEN purchasing candles for the holiday season one should include at least one or two bayberry candles. For it is traditional to light a bayberry candle on Christmas night and wish for blessings during the coming year. These green, hand-molded candles are made from fruit of the wax myrtle, and the aroma emitted when they are lighted is delightfully fragrant.

As it is innate with most of us to have faith in many quaint customs connected with Yuletide, a peaceful and happy gesture for Christmas night when the entire family is together and lights are low, is to watch these flickering candles burn and while doing so recite an old jingle associated with them to the effect that——

If on Christmas night a bayberry candle
Is burned to the socket
It will bring health and peace to the home
And gold to the pocket.

"Circle i-dot" in Handwriting Denotes Self-Consciousness

By Muriel Stafford.

There are many kinds of i-dots, but perhaps the most unusual one is the i-dot made like a complete circle. This is always an intriguing indication. Such persons should have an environment especially suitable to their unusual temperaments.

MURIEL STAFFORD.

Writers of the "circle i-dot" want beauty around them. I can almost say they must have it. They are apt to be very self-conscious, though sometimes the writing will show such a gentle, kindly nature that it is hard to realize how strongly individual the writer is.

The most definite indication of the circle i-dot is an artistic trend of some kind. Unless such writers are placed in a congenial atmosphere, doing something they enjoy, they are moody and unhappy. If you make the circle i-dot you don't like routine. You may be quite opposed to conventionality and yet you dislike confusion because it makes for a lack of beauty.

One of the most interesting and even fascinating things about this i-dot is its contrariness. You can find it in handwritings that are totally different in many ways. The persons themselves may seem as opposite as the poles, yet if they make the circle i-dot they have much in common.

Here are two excellent examples of contrasting personalities with only the circle i-dot in common.

Everything is in fine order

This is a calm, amiable, sweet tempered person, as you can see from her rounded m's and n's and even letters. She must have a place for everything and everything in its place. Yet the circle i-dot betrays an originality and individualism that would never otherwise be suspected.

My difficulties are unbelievable

Many things point to a love of the artistic in the writing of specimen No. 2. Notice the capital M as well as the numerous circle i-dots. The writer's temperament is aggressive and intense to a high degree and she is very much less placid than the writer of specimen No. 1. Her t-bar betrays an opinionated mind and her whole writing shows that she is a difficult person for her associates to understand.

It has been said by some authorities that a person who makes a circle i-dot habitually will be happiest in marriage with some one who does the same.

Mop Invention Is Aid in Cleaning Venetian Blinds

IT'S one thing to install good looking Venetian blinds, and another to keep them looking spotless. Now the business of cleaning all the little slats is greatly lessened with the invention of a special small mop for the purpose.

This is divided, like the prongs of a two-prong fork, so that it slips over the slat perfectly, dusting it on all sides. As it is a dry mop, no oil is there to soil the tapes of the blind. The fluffy white yarn of which the duster is made holds the dirt and soot until it is shaken or washed out.

When this handy item becomes soiled simply untie the draw cord and slip it off the handle for easy washing, or shake it out thoroughly. You can buy an extra mop to replace the one worn out after long service. The price is reasonable. You'll find these dusters at the State street department stores.

Twenty-Six Women Drive Taxicabs in New York City

TWENTY-SIX women are represented among the thousands of taxicab drivers in New York City.

THEIR GLEAMING BEAUTY IS MATCHED

This group of matched pieces is modern and smart. Highly polished aluminum is accented by shiny, black covers. Handles and knobs are heatproof. The percolator has a little glass ball which shows just how the coffee is "perking." The double boiler cover fits either section, so that one may have two handy saucepans from the combination. These utensils are equipped with black, quick-heat coating on the bottoms, speeding up cooking and cutting down on fuel. Sold in Chicago.

Ceremonies Add Richness to Christmas Day

Every Family Should Evolve Its Own Traditions of Carols, Feasting, Tree.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

BUT Christmas is different.

I know—we have lots of holidays. There's the Fourth of July and Decoration day and Lincoln's birthday, and Election day, and even Easter.

But Christmas is different. To me it's just the perfect festival. "It's got everything," to use a today's phrase. Each year you hear me wax enthusiastic over this lively holiday. But I can't help it. Each year all the reasons why I like it come over me afresh.

In the first place it's gay, and in the second place it lasts for about a month, which is nice and generous. In the third place it gets into everybody's blood—young and old, rich and poor—and seems to pervade the whole world. In the fourth place it delights the eye with its evergreen and holly and candles and bright faces. In the fifth place it delights the inner man with its feasting In the sixth place it delights the ear with its exquisite or jovial Christmas music—and in the seventh place it delights the soul because it is a festival of love and celebrates the birth of that baby whose coming changed the hearts of men. "It has," as you see, "everything"—even one more thing that we don't have much of in modern life—the preserving of tradition and ceremony.

Everything, from Breakfast On, Should Be "Special."

And it's about the last I want to talk a little today because I think it adds a lot to Christmas day itself not to be too casual about it. After all, it's a red letter day—red as a holly berry or Santa Claus' rosy cheeks—and red letter days should be just as different as possible from ordinary days, I believe. I think it's nice to have everything "special" on Christmas day, even starting with breakfast and everybody's favorite dish—though to the younger excited ones this treat won't mean much. The first sight of the tree, the giving and receiving of presents—these things, I think, should be invested with the charm that accompanies a touch of ceremony.

Different families have different rituals for these proceedings—some making it really a ritual by doing the same things every Christmas, others varying it from year to year.

One Family Has Early Parade, Carrying Candles, Singing Carols.

One of the nicest procedures I know of was this: The house was warmed early and the tree lighted and doors or draperies and shades drawn. Then the children, at a signal, got up, washed faces and combed hair, and put on warm robes and slippers. The oldest then gave out the Christmas candles—one for each, in a holder. These were lighted, the big ones keeping a watchful eye on the little ones. Then mother started to play softly the music of a Christmas carol while the children lined up. Then, at a chord, the children took up the carol singing as the little procession moved downstairs and through the hall, and around and in and out of the rooms. When the carol ended, the candles were set on the breakfast table and eager faces turned as the doors were opened and the tree stood forth in all its glory. Underneath were seen the heaps of packages, but only the little presents on the tree were opened at that time.

Followed then a scamper and a dash into clothes and a family breakfast with shades up and daylight flooding the room. Later came the distribution of the presents and still later the setting and decorating of the dinner table by the family en masse.

Dickens' "Christmas Carol" a Delightful Epilogue to Day.

Another family I know which makes most of its Christmas gifts and is always madly wrapping packages and toys before breakfast on Christmas morning, tend to rush through the first meal to "clear up" the house and finish piling up the presents. These people, young and old, prolong their suspense by the marching and singing of carols all about the house, winding up before the tree. Here an uncle presides, bestowing presents and quips and jests and funny written messages alike, with the one-by-one opening of gifts by their recipients before admiring eyes. In this family, no matter what occurs or who is there, a big fire is built toward evening and either before or after supper this same uncle reads aloud—with enough cuts to make it the right length—Dickens' "Christmas Carol."

Some other families always have an obliging masculine member disguised in a full Santa Claus costume to bestow the gifts. Others have their own little carol festival on Christmas eve. Still others finish their crèche and invite the children of the neighborhood in on Christmas eve or Christmas day.

Games Relieve Tedium of Early Evening.

Or your touch of ceremony may be a little pageant planned for the early evening of Christmas day to make the day more memorable—and to fill that time after dinner which in some families is a litle flat because it is an anticlimax. Games may be planned for these early evening hours—these could not by any chance be called a form of ceremony, though by their gayety they add to the brightness of this red letter day.

If you've always been matter-of-fact about Christmas day—casual about its actual observance, plan one of these or a little ceremony of your own and see if you don't think it adds richness to this lovely holiday.

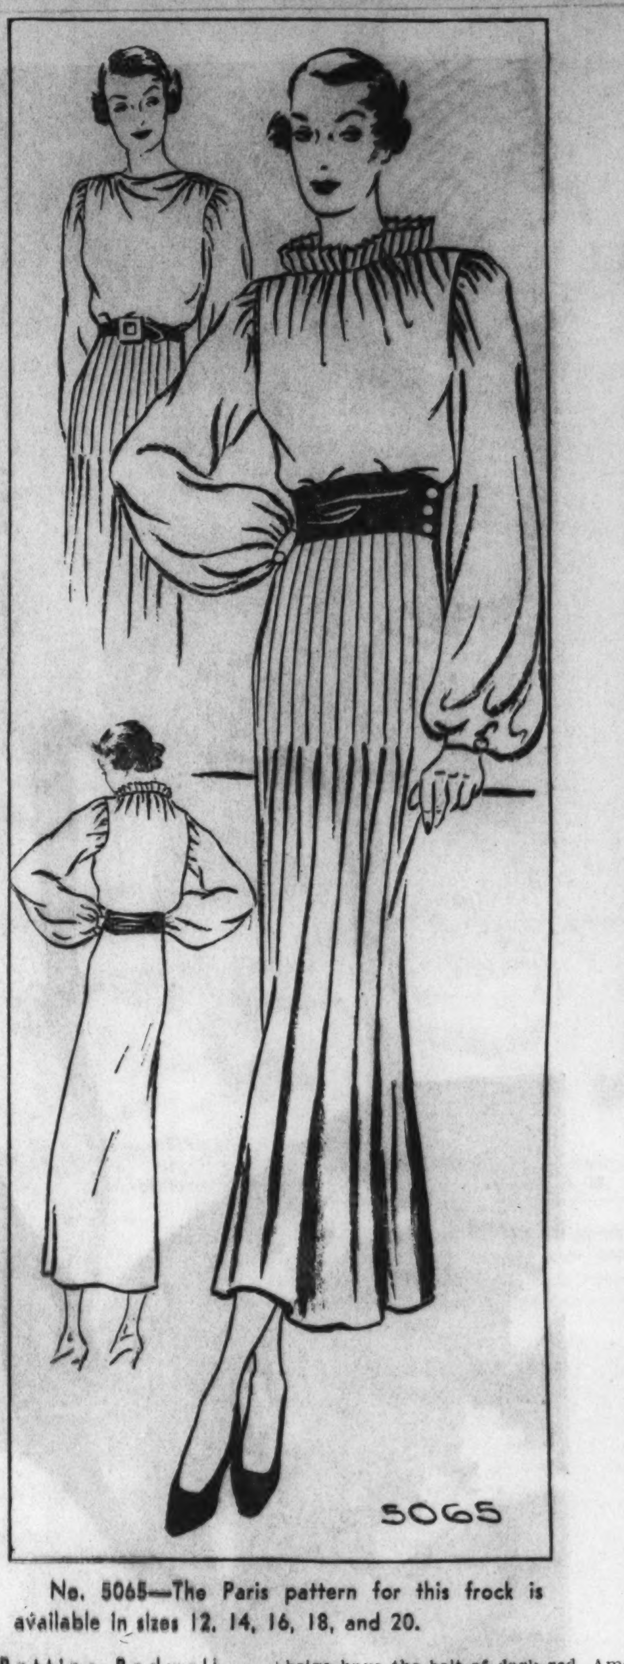
Paris Sends a Pattern of the Latest Craze, the Peasant Frock



No. 5065—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20.

By Bettina Bedwell.

THIS pattern is for those of you, dear ladies, who like to be in the band wagon of fashion. It is designed in the new French peasant theme, which Paris has okayed as a coming style. Really chic, this pattern is also practical, and I have made it with two necklines, so you may take your choice. Both are used by the French creators when they make peasant frocks.

If you have the neck for it, I recommend that you make your frock like the sketch at the right, with an upstanding, plaited frill, but if your neck is inclined to be either thin or short, better use the simpler drapery shown in the figure on the left. I have also given you the choice of a wide and narrow belt. The wide belt, buttoned on the right side, is more in the peasant spirit, but use your own judgment. A snort woman couldn't get away with this wide belt successfully.

You can make this frock in any semi-sheer soft wool, or in one of the supple silks, like flat crêpe. I suggest a color contrast in the belt. Beige is coming in, and if you make the dress beige have the belt of dark red, American beauty red, old rose, or one of the lively greens, or sapphire blue. You may make the dress of dark blue material or dark red. If dark blue, a belt of American beauty red or copper or soft green is charming. If you make it dark red let the belt be pink, palest turquoise, or, for practical wear, a dark, winey brown that tones in.

Sardine Servers Obviate Risk of Supper Mishaps

YOU Sunday supper lovers haven't seen real efficiency until you've looked over the new sardine server. The two uses for this small utensil will more than justify the tiny corner it takes in the kitchen drawer. The server picks up the most fragile of the small sardines without breaking it and at the same time drains off the oil. And if by chance the key to a sardine can is lost, just pull out the handle of the sardine server and there's a key for opening the can.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Sally Offers Her Annual Vote of Thanksgiving to Readers Who Have Helped Her Help Others in a Difficult Year; Those Aided Add Their Voices to Hers.

By Sally Joy Brown.

THIS day has been set aside for the pleasant task of saying our annual "thank you" to our readers. All through the year we devote our precious space to requests for the needy, so at this season it seems only fitting that the kindly donors who make our work possible should have an opportunity to learn of some of the happiness their continued interest and coöperation have wrought.

The year has been a difficult one, and without your help we would not have been able to provide the numerous comforts, small and large, which have made many, many people happy.

A discarded book, overcoat, baby buggy, or blanket may seem to you a small and unimportant item, and in order that you may realize a little of the joy such donations bring with them, I am printing a few of the notes in the bulging file reserved for letters of acknowledgement.

From a young mother, still weak after confinement in a charity hospital, who had been unable to prepare anything for the coming of her first child: "I just got home from the hospital yesterday and found the package of baby clothing one of your readers sent. I can't tell you what it meant to me to know that my little daughter would have a plentiful supply of fresh, clean clothing."

◆

From the wife of an incurable invalid: "May I thank you from the bottom of my heart for the light you have caused to shine in my home? Through the great kindness of Mrs. H. we received a radio this afternoon. How it has lightened my husband's dark hours! Words cannot express my feelings, but I want you to know that we have indeed found 'it's always darkest just before the dawn' . . ."

◆

Mrs. C. became interested in one of our invalid cases and recently wrote: "I sent the puzzles to Mrs. M. and would like to have you see her charming acknowledgement. I am glad I sent them and I am writing her tonight. A little thing sometimes does a great deal for one, doesn't it?"

◆

An unemployed father writes: "We want you to know about the wonderful baby buggy we received from one of your readers. It has already made a great change in the baby's health, and my wife seems stronger and happier than she has been in many weeks."

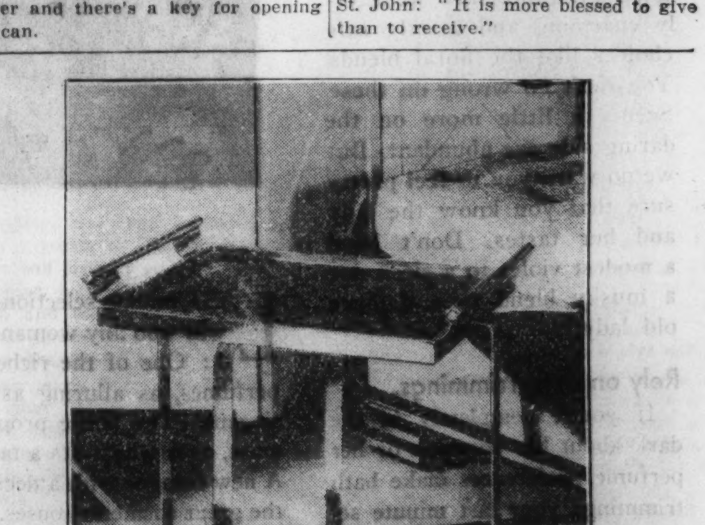
◆

Mrs. A. is a young widow, mother of a small baby, friendless, and at the time she wrote to me, in a state of hopeless dejection. Several readers went to her assistance, and her most recent letter read: "I am so happy this morning that I just had to write to you, although words cannot express my appreciation. I called at Mrs. K.'s and received a lovely box, and Mrs. S. has helped me a great deal. I certainly don't know what I would have done if it hadn't been for their help, and I am mighty grateful to all of you."

◆

And so they go, hundreds of them—all expressions of gratitude for articles generally regarded as everyday necessities. I hope that they will help my constant readers in this and other states, who give me their interest and faithful coöperation, to realize just how much their contributions mean to others less fortunate. Your books have meant much to invalids, tiny garments will protect numerous sickly infants from the perils of winter, odd pieces of furniture have made real homes in tenements, clothing has given new confidence and hope to shabby, downcast men and women—everything contributed, no matter how small, has made someone happier.

So when the symbolic Christmas candle gleams softly a few days hence, may you all feel the joy and peace due to those who have room in their hearts for their fellow man. In the words of St. John: "It is more blessed to give than to receive."



FOR THE COFFEE HOUR

A removable tray is one of the nice features about this good looking little coffee or cocktail table. The base is chromium and the top is given a new, patented finish that will never fade or become difficult to clean. Seen at the Merchandise Mart, and sold in Chicago stores. It symbolizes home modernism.

Well Bred Manner of Entering Room, Standing, and Sitting Are Essential for Complete Charm

Truly Lovely Persons Are Graceful and Poised in Social Gathering.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

LAST Sunday I introduced charm as the appeal for which our modern beauties now strive. It is that something added to what you have in physical assets that will make you outstandingly attractive. You see, today, with most women adept in the matter of personal care and grooming, there must be something else to distinguish one. So all the charm that you can pack into that composite photograph known as you, just so much more fuel to the fire of distinction and admiration.

As said previously, there are women who are letter perfect in so far as complexion, coiffure, silhouette measurements, and so on are concerned, but who do not register happily with people. Their manner lacks charm. Their voices destroy charm. Their lack of poise is apparent. They walk without grace. Hand gestures are graceless. They say just the wrong thing and do the wrong thing. They irritate by an aggressive manner and speech, perhaps. They are opinionated, domineering. Or perhaps it's an inferiority feeling at fault. Anyway, by manner and mannerisms they alienate rather than charm. All the massages, the diets, clothes, makeup in the world will not extract for such that rapturous exclamation: "How perfectly charming."

Manner of Entering Room Is Fundamental in Charm.

Not, of course, that there can be any let-up on the physical assets nor the polishing of them to the nth degree. But there must be more. To illustrate, let's take two women entering a room in which guests already are foregathered. Each, we'll say, is well dressed, well groomed, as most women are likely to be for social events. One "barges" into the room, perhaps tripping up the hall runner, calling her greetings in a loud, unpleasantly pitched voice, shouting wisecracks to those in the group she knows or to the hostess, either to attract attention or as the natural expression of one without poise. Her entrance is, in a manner of speaking, disorderly, crude.

The other woman gathers herself at the doorway, or so we might put it. She pulls herself up in a dignified way (without being at all formidable). Her carriage is graceful. Head up, chest up easily and without strain, but with such bearing that makes people sit up and take notice. She may stand in the doorway to the living room, creating a nice picture while she gathers momentum for the moments of introduction. Quickly she takes in the scene ahead, places those she knows in the gathering, registers where her hostess stands so that there won't be confusion on this point later. Then she makes her entrance with assured and graceful step. Introductions she accepts with a simple "How do you do." She greets those whom she knows with a pleasantry such as "It's so nice to see you again." She doesn't stand around long or dart here and there to say another word to some one, meanwhile keeping others standing endlessly. She takes her seat with fair promptness and, unlike the other woman, she doesn't throw herself into the chair.

Norma Shearer's facial expression and bodily posture in the above photograph are illustrative of the manner every woman should cultivate in order to appear to be the interested listener.

Poised Woman Seats Herself Gracefully.

She doesn't wiggle around and shift and shuffle when she sits down. She gets close to the chair and, because her body is well poised, she drops easily into her seat. There she may arrange her skirt just once to create a pleasing picture and then she proceeds to forget about herself. The other woman, when she sits down, after throwing herself into the chair, after much shifting and shuffling, either doesn't arrange her skirt gracefully at all, or she is jumping up, pulling the skirt down from time to time. All of which excess movement is disconcerting to an audience, whether the audience be one or ten. This business of entering a room with poise and grace and taking and keeping one's seat to create a pleasing picture is of great importance, for first impressions are most effective, since they are what register with new acquaintances.

The charming woman's charm is basically poise, a well bred poise. Perhaps a studied poise, nevertheless poise. And a certain pleasing self-assurance that comes with the disciplined mind and body.

To continue the discussion of the two women: They're seated now and ready to carry on as guests. The charming one turns to the person nearest and introduces a topic of conversation, if the other one is numb of speech. But she doesn't start in I-ing the other. The personal pronoun I is incidental, not the big theme. Rather the charming one's object is to draw out the other person, which she can do well only if she has an interest in people generally. She can't if she's a snob, or bored, or self-centered, or if, as I say, she can't see beyond her own I's.

The poise of Dolores del Rio's posture is one interpretation of how a charming and well bred woman gathers herself before entering a room.

Good Listener Allows Speaker to Reveal Himself.

If it is a man she wants to please she'll feed him a lead and then let him expand to his heart's content. Meanwhile she'll be so quiet and poised in her manner that she seems the perfect, eager listener, which will send him off exclaiming over the woman's intellect as well as charm.

By being a good listener it isn't to be assumed that you must not say anything at all, of course. Your act is to draw out the other person with an apt comment on what is being said or a flattering "How interesting!" now and then. And LISTEN, but not with that vague expression or restless waiting for your chance to get in and take the floor. You know a trick known well by women of experience is, when listening, to take a gentle, long breath as if one were inhaling the perfume of a rose, the body bent forward slightly. It gives your audience the feeling that what he is saying is absorbing. Such tricks as this and standing a second in a doorway before making entrance into a room may seem artificial, but they do create a poise that is pleasing to all concerned.

More of charm secrets next Sunday, when I shall take up hand gestures and how to make them lovelier. About the art of hostessing charmingly and other points of charm.

New Year's Is Ideal Day for Party Giving

Hold Open House and Welcome Your Friends, Says Miss Bartlett.

Questions pertaining to etiquet and correct social behavior are invited. For a reply enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your letter. Address mail to Helen Bartlett, Etiquet Editor, Chicago Tribune.

By Helen Bartlett.

TAKING the White House as the supreme example, Jan. 1 is THE day for receptions and at homes, for on New Year's day at the capitol the President of the United States receives. The doors of the White House are invitingly thrown open and every citizen of the United States is welcome to greet and shake hands with the President and the first lady.

Beginning at about 11 o'clock in the morning the dean of the diplomatic corps is the first to be received. He is followed by the rest of the diplomats in the order of their precedence. Meanwhile the line of waiting visitors grows and grows until it stretches for blocks in length. At 1 o'clock the stream of patriotic handshakers begins to move slowly through the rooms of the White House to the one occupied by the President and his wife. Then after they shake hands the line continues through other rooms and eventually reaches the exit.

During the afternoon, while the President is still shaking hands, probably with pain by this time, all official Washington is busy receiving visitors and making calls. That's what we would recommend for you on New Year's day.

Get the news around to all your friends and neighbors that you are going to be at home on New Year's day and that you want them all to come in to see you . . . between the hours of 4 and 7, perhaps. Arrange an attractive buffet table. Make a gay centerpiece of squatty red candles banked with holly, mistletoe, and frosted pine cones. On the buffet place your prettiest linen, china, and silver.

Extend your ingenuity in making attractive little open faced sandwiches and crisp Christmas cookies such as springerle, cinnamon stars, and pfefferneusse. Thin slices of rich, mellow fruit cake, nuts, and candied fruit are all a part of the holiday scene. And a warming cup of tea will cheer the hearts of all. If it is a more spirituous beverage you want to serve your guests, rich, warm eggnogs with a dash of spicy nutmeg are the order of the day.

And since I won't be there, let me wish you all a Happy, Happy New Year.

Initialed Gearshift Handles Make a Distinctive Gift

AN eleventh hour gift suggestion for the best beaux or some one whom you wish to remember with something distinctive are the stunning metal gearshift handles finished in black enamel with his or her initials on the sterling silver centers. Or, if you prefer, a medal of St. Christopher, the patron saint of travelers, is available.

Box 537, Grand Central station, New York City, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service bureaus at Tribune Tower or 1 South Dearborn

By Clotilde.

EVERY woman enjoys being smartly gowned, and if you choose the pattern No. 3425 for one of your winter dresses you'll be sure to like it. As you can see, it is cut in one piece from neck to hem, with no dividing line at the waist. The back is cut in one piece and the front in two. And you have a choice of two different sleeves. One is short, the other is a long sleeve, made bell shaped at the wrist, than which there is no smarter type for a daytime dress today.

Buttons form the main trimming for this pretty dress, and they are used from shoulder to hem. The neck of the dress is high across the back, while at the front it forms a shallow, square outline, and the right front carries right across from this square outline to the armhole. Two buttons hold it in place there. Then, the buttoning follows the line of the armhole closely and from there on it goes down the length of the skirt.

Pin Tucks Assure a Trim Waistline.

Pin tucks either side of the center front and back make the dress fit in well at the waist, and a narrow belt of the dress material buttons together at the center front.

The neck and front opening had better be finished with a bias facing and the ends of the long sleeves should also be faced.

A soft angora finished woolen in a green and brown plaid, with brown buttons and self-fabric belt are pictured. In heavy Canton crêpe or velveteen it will make a smart dress for office or town wear.

Three Frocks May Be Made from One Pattern.

Pattern No. 3468 suggests charming schemes. You can make three dresses from this one pattern and have each one appear entirely different. To begin with, you can have a two-piece dress, joined at the waistline under a removable belt. It is straight line, and you can fairly live in it for smartness and comfort, if it is made of a brown tweedy woolen with brown velveteen collar and bow.

The simulated two-piece dress, seen in the small sketch, will be smart made of a bottle green wool crêpe and trimmed with brown velvet, while the tunic dress favors black silk crêpe with white flowers.

The upper part of any one of these dresses will be easy to make, as the sleeves extend up to the neckline, forming raglan sleeves.

Traits That Keep People from Social Popularity

Egotism, Argument, and Personal Questions Thwart Air of Charm.

By Doris Blake.

LET'S entitle today's dissertation "Why Some Folks Aren't Popular," with emphasis on errors of mature persons rather than those of persons of courtship age. The latter we handle frequently, because "how to be popular" is their heart's desire, but older people often get into fixed habits that alienate them.

We shall speak first of a certain conversational habit that makes a painful bore of the offender. You know one of the type, no doubt, who insists upon introducing a thousand little irrelevant details into the telling of a single incident. Here's a mild sample of the offense:

"Last summer, no it couldn't have been the summer, because I was in Logansport attending Mary Jane's wedding, and it was a beautiful wedding. It must have been in the spring. No, it wasn't in the spring, because junior was home then with the measles. Well, anyway, O, yes, I remember, now, it was in May, because I had just bought that hat to wear with my black dress"—and so on. By this time the listener isn't interested in what happened. And it might have been an interesting enough yarn if the unnecessary details had been left out.

There's conversational vice No. 2, which shuts off people from the pleasant social contact that might be theirs. We refer to the people who put a question to you and, before you have a chance to answer, they're off on a long recital of their own. They may ask about your family, for example. Before you have time to answer, you hear all about their family, its ills, its plans. Or the interrupter may stop you in the middle of a conversation with something completely foreign to the subject under discussion, and come back to it later, when your zest for the theme has quite expired.

But more objectional is that bane of reserved people's lives, the one who bluntly puts exceedingly personal questions to you, such as the cost of your clothes, your rent, your new house, and such other things into which well bred people do not inquire. A safe rule to follow is to allow people to tell you voluntarily what they want you to know. They will, and only that. Curious people antagonize. Also, they're avoided because they're usually great talkers and are bound to pass on the information they "surprise" out of people with their blunt approach.

It's largely by conversation, of course, that contacts are made and held. So, another type of offense worthy of note is that of rudely contradicting a statement or opinion. Certainly one does not have to agree with opinions that conflict with one's own, but there are ways of disregarding without that slap in the face that ensues when a person says: "You're all wrong. It's this way." One can say, without antagonism in the voice, something like "This is the way it seems to me!" A definite offender is in mind, whose habit of contradiction has become a passion for argument. Well, life would be dull without argument and differences of opinion, but they can be conducted without rancor if one remembers that each and every individual is entitled to his and her opinion. Anyway, the less arguing at which a woman is caught, the better her stand with the opposite sex.

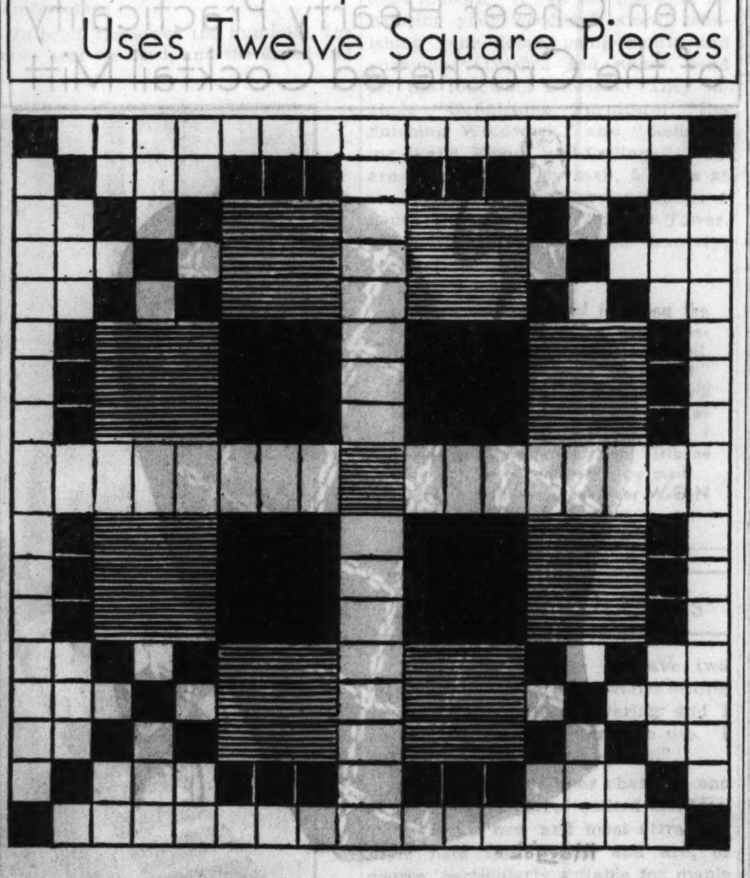
We can't let pass the self-centered egotist with the I-I-I complex. Unless one has had an extremely colorful career, known unusual adventures, and is encouraged by listeners to go on and on, it is well for popularity's sake to relinquish the floor frequently to others. The ordinary run of humans simply is not interesting enough to keep up a running fire of the I theme for long. Besides, it is quite flattering to the other person to give him a chance to expand a bit, too.

And then there is that goose that kills her golden opportunities for fine friendships, the sour-tongued critic. She is a goose because she is not clever, or she'd know sour remarks are the reflection of a sour soul. We refer to the individual who is always there with the disparaging comment about others. You may recite an incident of another's thoughtfulness or kindness. The sour soul will remark: "What was her object? There must have been some object!" The one who criticizes unpleasantly and condemns others freely simply warns people to be on their strictest guard, for theirs will be the next turn. Speaking ill of others never won a single popularity vote, whereas a tempered judgment and a kindly word never fail to create a good impression.

Paris Adds 20 Women to Its Police Department

THE police department of Paris, France, is adding twenty women to its corps. They will be inspectors and overseers of police duties at crowded shopping points and thoroughfares near schools and like places.

Attractive Quilt Pattern Uses Twelve Square Pieces



Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

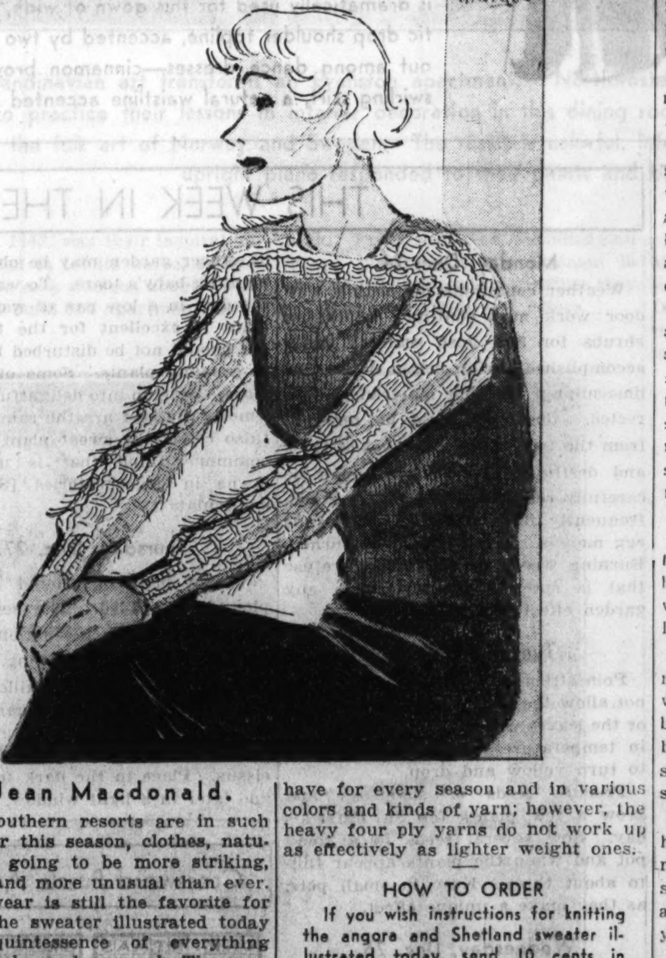
By Nancy Cabot.

HERE is an old quilt pattern which is grand to make, especially when some doubting Thomas questions one's ability to make a quilt in record time. "An Odd Patchwork" is composed entirely of squares which are pieced quickly and easily. The block measures twenty-four inches square, and twelve of them are needed for an entire coverlet.

Print and plain material may be most attractively combined in a pieced quilt of this type. When the patches are joined block to block to form a continuous pattern, one finds still another intriguing design.

Another edition is out—Nacy Cabot's second book of quilts is ready. It contains 96 more illustrations of favorite quilt patterns, together with one complete pattern, "The Rose Basket." Price, 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Light Sweater a Gay Addition to Winter Playtime Wardrobe



By Jean Macdonald.

Since southern resorts are in such high favor this season, clothes, naturally, are going to be more striking, smarter, and more unusual than ever. Knitted wear is still the favorite for sports. The sweater illustrated today is the quintessence of everything smart, lovely, and unusual. The combination of lightweight angora and fine shetland is interesting enough in itself, but the addition of an attractive style makes it one of the most outstanding sweaters of the year. Best of all, it is extremely simple to knit.

The front and back are made separately. The angora yoke is knit in one piece and joined to the body. The yoke is of the same pattern as the body; but it runs horizontally while the body is made with the stitches running vertically. The effect is decidedly novel. The good old ribbing of knit two and purl two is used at the waist and wrists.

All in all it is a sweater one should have for every season and in various colors and kinds of yarn; however, the heavy four ply yarns do not work up as effectively as lighter weight ones.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instructions for knitting the angora and Shetland sweater illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter. Also send the following measurements:

Household Queries

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Are there air filters which can be installed in a bedroom so that all the air which comes into the room may be cleaned and purified before it is breathed? [2] Are these of help to hay fever sufferers? [3] Do these work together with the mechanical air conditioners or are they separate units?—J. F.

Answer: [1] Yes. [2] Those who suffer from that type of hay fever which is caused by pollen in the air are greatly benefited in a room which has no air excepting that from which a high per cent of pollen and many other impurities has been removed. [3] There are a number of excellent separate units of air filters and also some mechanical air conditioners are so manufactured as to include this filtering of the indoor air. Send in a stamped envelope and I will refer you to certain sources from which you can secure more information on these air filters.

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We want to finish a dining room floor, but it is badly discolored in spots. How can we remove this discoloration?—John K."

Answer: Use hot water and as many crystals of oxalic acid as the water will dissolve easily. Apply this bleaching solution with a scrubbing brush and leave on the surface for several hours, if necessary, until the stains disappear.

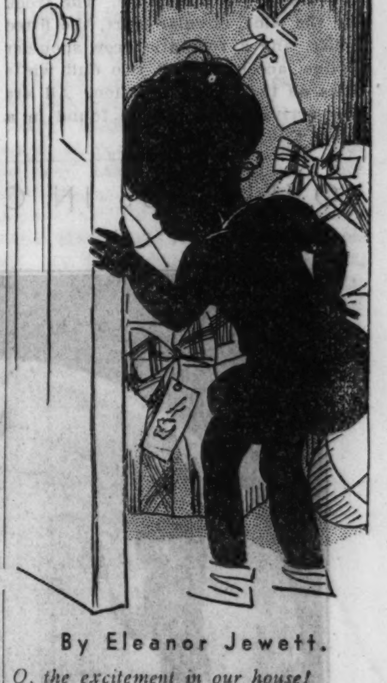
Then wash the surface well with hot, clear water. You may have to repeat the application before the stains are entirely gone. This oxalic acid is poisonous, so be careful when you use it. Better wear rubber gloves.

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: What can we use in our boiler to remove the soot? How can we burn the soot in our chimney?—K. T."

Answer: There are commercial compounds on the market called soot removers. When thrown on the fire the fumes destroy the soot in the passages of the heater and in the chimney flue as well. Their effect, however, will not extend into the chimney itself, and don't try burning soot in a chimney! It is dangerous work.

If there are holes in the masonry particles can slip through and set fire to the house. And many a roof fire has started that way. If your chimney is badly clogged consult a heating contractor. You will find a good vacuum cleaning is as good for your chimney as for your rug.

JUST BEFORE CHRISTMAS



By Eleanor Jewett.

O, the excitement in our house!
Presents are under the bed—
Tissue paper and boxes
Tied with ribbons of red

Are filling all of our closets—
We hardly go anywhere
But some one cries sharply to stop us:
"Now, don't you go into there!"

We none of us talk but in whispers,
We walk with a hand at our back
So somebody won't see something—
And "WHAT DID JOHN WANT OF A TACK?"

There are holly wreaths at the window,
A Christmas tree stands in our hall;
The smells and excitements of Christmas
Hang richly over it all.

I am filled so full with the shudders
I think I shall almost burst,
But if I do I hope Christmas
And its fun happens first!

Party Frocks Greeted with Loud Hosannas

Younger Set Ecstatic Over Suave Backs, Dashing Reds, Ethereal Whites.

By Rhea Seeger.

A BRIGHT girl makes her own breaks in this world, and the brightest ones turn the trick with bright new clothes—especially during the holidays with a dozen or more parties to go to each night. After three months or so grinding away at lessons and lectures and living through dateless weeks, it's no wonder the crowds of damsels are thickest in the shops where holiday frocks and wraps are taken seriously.

There are plenty of all black numbers cut and fashioned to more than please the younger set as well as the hesitating parent—black clothes made with plenty of youthful charm, with dash and smartness, and minus all the dull details that used to mark these black affairs for "older sirens only." And there are all kinds of flashing red models, the kind completely to stampede the stag line. . . . Red dresses that can be seen for miles, but good, practical, wearable reds for any wardrobe.

Snow White Dresses Make Even Athletes Look Delicate.

The snowy white dresses, fully guaranteed to make even a superathletic female appear as ethereal and picturesque and approachable as any heart breaker, come in dull white or gleaming satins or twinkling creations glistening with tiny rhinestones sprinkled from shoulder straps to hemline. Pastels and high shades run along in second place, and the colorful printed silks are used by both midwinter vacationers and the gals who are staying at home for the holidays.

Five of the newest and brightest and most successful dresses have been sketched. You'll notice they are fashioned and created for active duty on the dance floor, for while they are long and decidedly pictorial, the trains and even short sweeps are missing. These flattering models are wide, full —and just what you want to rejuvenate the winter wardrobe.

The large figure at the right shows a delightful cinnamon brown sheer, a bit stiffened and made into a knockout dance dress. The skirt swirls widely around the hemline, the natural waistline is accented with a long, satin sash and the full sleeves are puffed just above the elbow. Two decorative pins hold the sash in place.

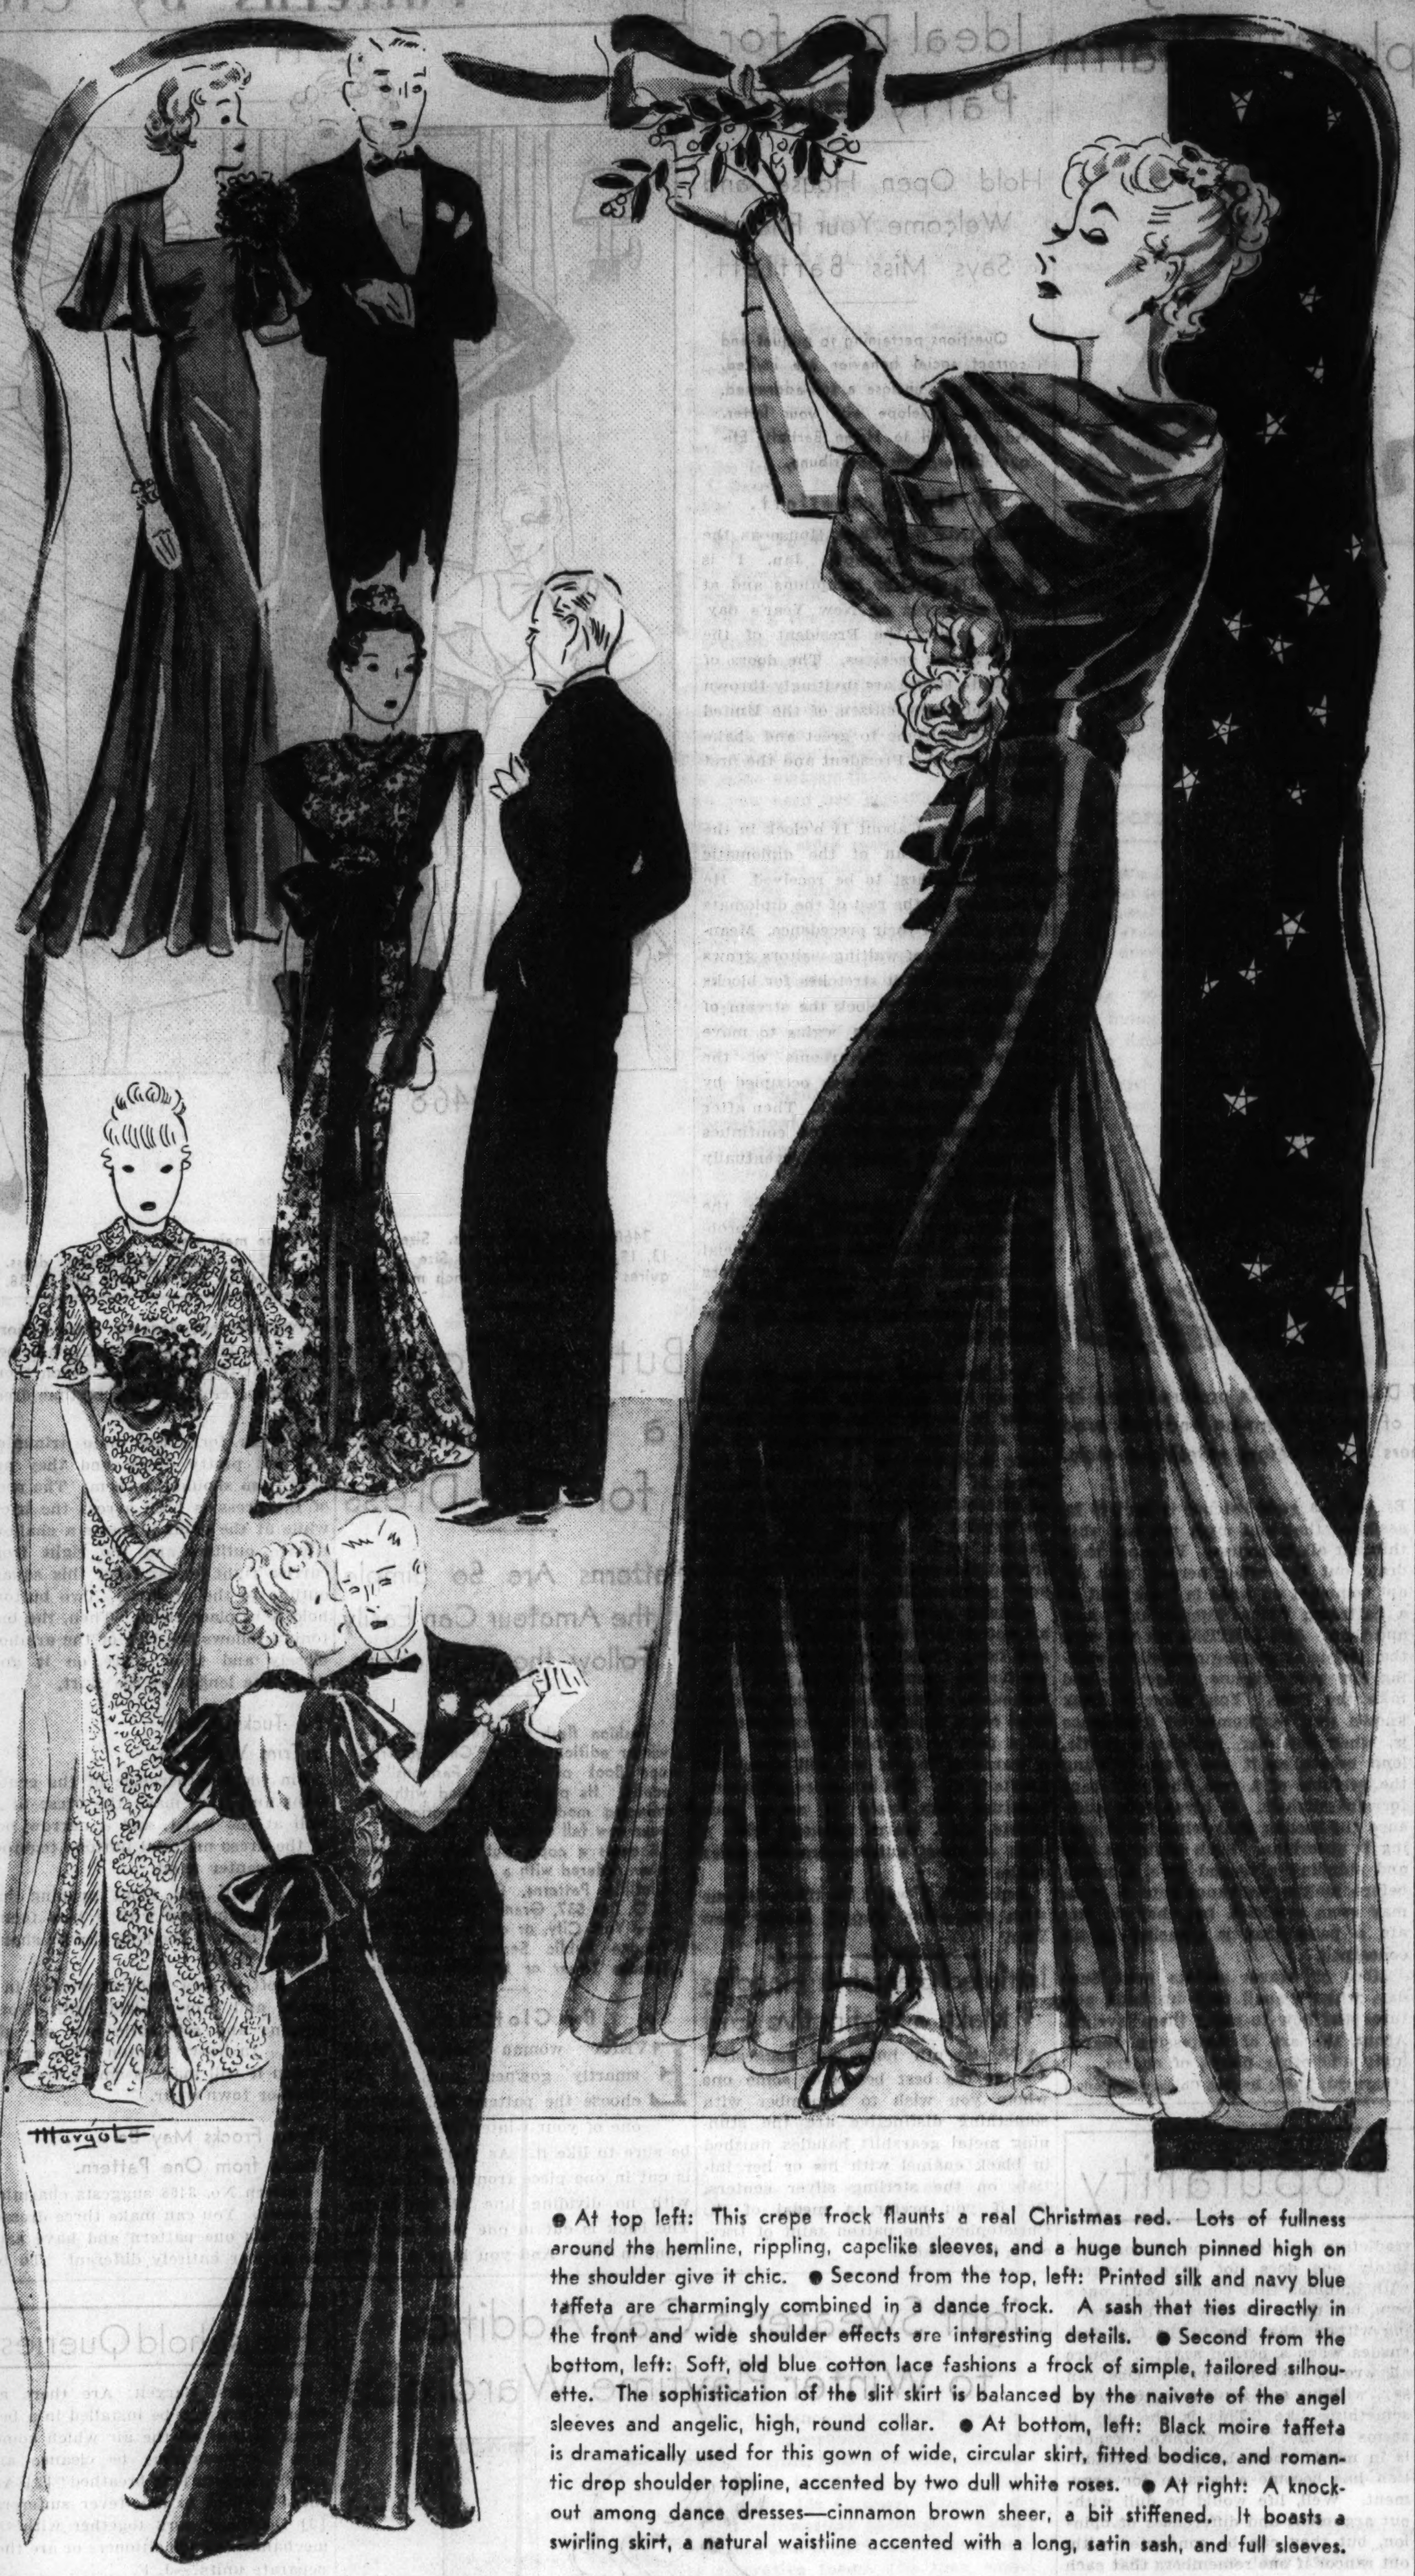
Young Shoppers Fall on Black Moire with Great Enthusiasm.

At the top, left . . . one of the best of the red crêpes, a real Christmas red made simply but with lots of fullness around the hemline, with rippling cape like sleeves, and with a huge bunch pinned high on the shoulder. The figure second from the top, left, shows the newness of printed silk dresses, made with navy blue taffeta shoulders under the printed pattern of the bodice top. The long, swishing taffeta sash that ties most effectively directly at the front is also of navy blue taffeta. Wide shoulder effects are new and interesting.

Soft, old blue cotton lace fashions the dress on the figure second from the bottom. Notice the skirt slit at the front, the slightly tailored silhouette of the entire dress, the angel sleeves and angelic high round collar, if you want to see something simple as well as devastating.

The sketch at the lower left illustrates one of the most popular of swishing black moire taffeta dresses, the kind that acquiring young shoppers decide are irresistible. The frock has the wide, circular skirt, the fitted bodice, and a romantic drop shoulder topline, accented with two dull white roses as the only decoration. All are new arrivals, and will be found in a smart Chicago shop.

GOWNS ATTUNED TO WALTZ TIME



● At top left: This crepe frock flaunts a real Christmas red. Lots of fullness around the hemline, rippling, capelike sleeves, and a huge bunch pinned high on the shoulder give it chic. ● Second from the top, left: Printed silk and navy blue taffeta are charmingly combined in a dance frock. A sash that ties directly in the front and wide shoulder effects are interesting details. ● Second from the bottom, left: Soft, old blue cotton lace fashions a frock of simple, tailored silhouette. The sophistication of the slit skirt is balanced by the naivete of the angel sleeves and angelic, high, round collar. ● At bottom, left: Black moire taffeta is dramatically used for this gown of wide, circular skirt, fitted bodice, and romantic drop shoulder topline, accented by two dull white roses. ● At right: A knockout among dance dresses—cinnamon brown sheer, a bit stiffened. It boasts a swirling skirt, a natural waistline accented with a long, satin sash, and full sleeves.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will be glad to answer questions concerning stamps, except questions about value. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

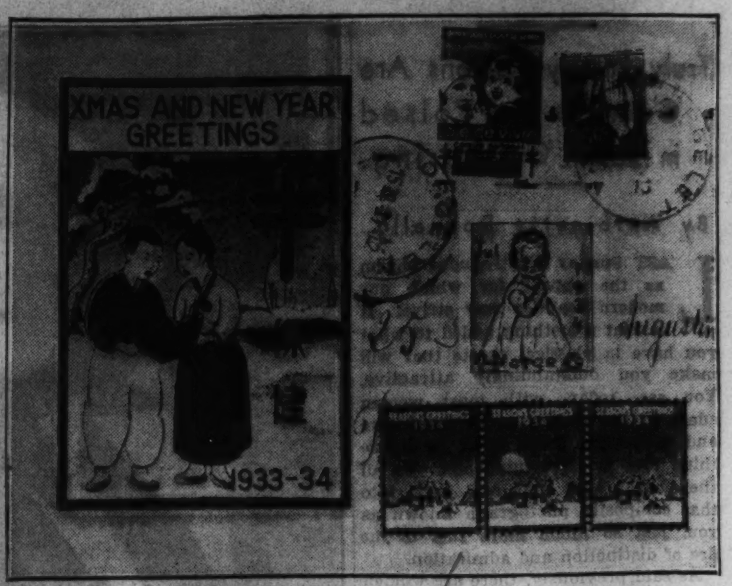
CHRISTMAS seals date back to 1903, when Einar Hoelbell, a Danish postal clerk, introduced them. In the United States Miss Emily Bissell, a Red Cross nurse of Delaware, realized the possibilities of the bits of paper and succeeded in having an issue ready for the holiday season of 1907. Beginning with 1908 they were issued under the sponsorship of the American Red Cross, but in 1920 the National Tuberculosis association undertook the sale, and from that date they show the familiar double barred cross with the pointed arms.

Many collectors of stamps have added seals as a sideline and newcomers find that the completion of the series is not easy, for several of the dates are quite scarce.

Plenty of Material.

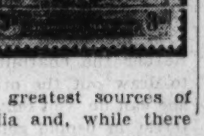
The Christmas Seal and Charity Stamp society is a world-wide organization of collectors of these labels and since seals are issued by some twenty countries and charity stamps of various kinds by many others these collectors find plenty of material to occupy their time.

The illustration at the head of the column shows some typical seals issued in the last few years. The enlargement is the seal used in Korea during the season of 1933-'34. It recalls in many ways the American seals and, strangely enough, contains inscriptions in English as well as in the native language. These seals are issued in sheets of 50 and in booklets of 50 and are sold at 1 yen, or 50 cents, for either. The seal on cover at the top is that used in France in 1932, the one below is the Norwegian seal for 1934, while the strip at the bottom is the current American seal. It is the Anniversary seal and pictures the first tuberculosis sanitarium built in the United States. This was known as the "Little Red" and was founded in 1885 by Dr. Edward Livingston Trudeau at Saranac Lake, N. Y.



"Christmas Seals" are used in many countries to finance the continual war against tuberculosis. Those shown are described in an adjoining column.

Macarthur Centennial.



Australia has just issued a series of three stamps on the 100th anniversary of the death of Capt. John Macarthur, who introduced the breeding of Merino sheep on that continent. Wool forms one of the greatest sources of wealth of Australia and, while there are many varieties of sheep, the greater proportion are pure bred Merinos. Here the wool is of superior quality to that raised in the original home of these sheep in Spain. The stamps show a Merino ram with a mountain in the background. Below is an inscription reading, in two lines, "Captain John Macarthur—1934 — Centenary — 1934." The values and colors are 2 pence, brownish red; 3 pence, blue, and 9 pence, purple.

Provisional Found.

The stamp column in the Rocky Mountain News, edited by Harold Johnson, reports the finding of a used copy of the rare Nashville [Tenn.] provisional stamp. It was discovered in the effects of a pioneer family of Denver which had moved there from Maine following the civil war. It is the 3 cent carmine variety and is canceled Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 7, 1861. Scott's catalog lists this stamp as "never put into use."

Club Notes.

Three new stamp clubs have requested the use of the Bulletin Board in announcing their meetings.

The Hild Library Stamp club meets on alternate Wednesday evenings at 7:30 in the young people's department of the library at 4536 Lincoln avenue, with Miss Catherine E. Adamson, children's librarian in charge. The North Suburban Philatelic society meets on the first and third Mondays at 8 p. m. at the Elm Place school, Elm place and North Sheridan road, Highland Park, Ill. The Skokie Valley Stamp club, beginning Jan. 8, 1935, will meet every Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the Community house, Winnetka, Ill. Visitors are welcome at club meetings, and lone collectors will find many advantages in a membership in a stamp club.

The National Poster Stamp society has been formed in the city for the collection and exchange of poster stamps. While no stamp collector will admit that poster stamps rank with postage stamps, there is no denying the fact that many of the little billboards are beautiful and instructive, and that often they are superior to postage stamps in color and design. The headquarters of the society will be at 64 East Lake street, and interested collectors may obtain full details of the organization by writing to the society at that address.

Number 594.

The unused copy of the rare perforation variety, United States stamp, series of 1922, listed in Scott's catalog as No. 594, and recently noted in this column, has been sold at auction in New York City for $1,975.

This stamp is of the same design as the ordinary 1 cent stamp now used, but is about ½ mm. or about 1/64 inch wider, and is perforated 11 all around instead of 11 by 10½. The perforation is determined by counting the number of teeth or holes in a space of 20 millimeters.

Cachet Notices.

The 74th congress will convene on Jan. 3, 1935. Send covers unsealed, stamped and self-addressed to Raymond C. Schaffer, 1833 California street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Fizzer Caps Do Nobly by Spirit of Ginger Ales

IF one has one of the new, tricky fizzer caps which fit any size bottle made with a crown top, there need never be any ginger ale wasted, for when this new kind of cap is attached to the bottle, it remains on it until contents are gone, no matter how many days or weeks that may be. No taking off the cap to pour at any time —for you "fizz" out of the bottle.

These fizzers also take care of charged water. They are smart and good looking, and they may be had in a choice of nickle, chrome, or gold plated ware. They bear the emblem of A Century of Progress, therefore converting them into useful souvenirs. A tiny spout with a little spring beneath does the trick which, when one presses down on it, charges and fizzes the liquid to the satisfaction of any "old timer."

Light Colors Aid Dark North Room

WE usually think of a north room as harder to decorate than other rooms in a home or apartment. But with a little thought and imagination it may often be more successfully treated. Colors show their true values in a cool light, where effects are greatly softened. As long as one keeps in mind that the room which is never given direct sunlight calls out for the happy yellow and cheerful salmon hue and will respond graciously to light warm tan, young spring green and vermilion, it is difficult to go astray in north room decorative effects.

LOVELINESS IN CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

Any mirror can be transformed into a lovely Christmas picture by means of these silver paste-me-ups—angels and stars—which are easily applied with rubber cement. They cannot injure either mirror or walls and can be "peeled" off at any time. These festive Christmas symbols are sold in a Chicago store.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, Dec. 24.

Weather conditions permitting, outdoor work may continue. Spraying shrubs for San José scale is easily accomplished during bright days. Use lime-sulphur or other materials, as directed. Cocoons should be removed from the trunks and branches of trees and destroyed. Loose bark may be carefully removed, and beneath it one frequently finds nests of cocoons or egg masses. These should be burned. Burning weeds or composting refuse that is sure to accumulate in any garden effectually kills pests.

Tuesday, Dec. 25.

Poinsettias are ready for display. Do not allow the soil to become dried out or the leaves will fall. Sudden changes in temperature will cause the leaves to turn yellow and drop.

Procure seeds of shamrock and grow a few plants for St. Patrick's day. Sow several seeds in a small pot and when the plants appear thin to about three. Keep in small pots, as they make a unique effect.

Wednesday, Dec. 26.

A built-in aquarium or terrarium is a fine asset for a room. Plant material can be selected that will endure over a considerable period. Water plants to use include the eil grass [Vallasneria], floating gem [Salvinia], parrot's feather [Myriphyllum], water hyacinth [Eichhornia], umbrella plant [Cyperus], and fish grass [Cabomba]. Snails and fish add life to the picture.

A miniature rock garden may be planted with succulents and operated as a dry garden. Cacti take very little water, but most succulents require a moist soil. A very attractive dish or saucer garden may be obtained by planting baby's tears. To water, place the dish in a low pan of water. This plant is excellent for the terrarium, but should not be disturbed by stronger growing plants. Some of the club mosses develop into delightful colonies. Among the best are the rainbow moss [also called the sweat plant] and the commoner kind that is useful for lawns in conservatories [Selaginella denticulata].

Thursday, Dec. 27.

Vacant plots of ground should be plowed or spaded. The soil will be mellowed through the action of alternate freezing and thawing, and numerous insects will be killed. Plans can be made for starting garden work on time next spring.

Pot a few more paper white narcissus. Place in the dark for a week and later in a light window. The yellow variety is also excellent and easy to grow.

Friday, Dec. 28.

Rhubarb lifted some time ago for forcing may be grown in a temperature of from 55 to 60 degrees. The tender stalks are excellent for pies or sauce and require little effort to produce.

Pruning may be undertaken at any time, but it should be done only after careful consideration of each tree or shrub, as no two are alike. If large limbs are to be removed, be sure that sharp saws are used and that the cuts are made close to and parallel with the trunk. Be careful not to allow the heavy limbs to pull away a section of the bark; rather make two cuts, one close to the trunk and upward, the other a foot from the trunk and downward. The branch will fall cleanly from its own weight. Paint the cut surface with thick paint or coal tar. A bruised section of the trunk should have all rough edges smoothed back to sound wood and the whole exposed surface painted.

Saturday, Dec. 29.

Many novelties may be had for displaying house plants. Odd shaped containers with curious plants are always attractive. The Christmas cactus should be showing buds. This plant is native to Brazil, where it grows in the crotches of trees along with orchids and other air plants. A plant grafted on a serpentine cactus or Barbados goosberry gives an attractive, umbrellalike effect, raising the flowering plant above the ground. Do not permit the soil to dry out, avoid overwatering, and changes of temperature.

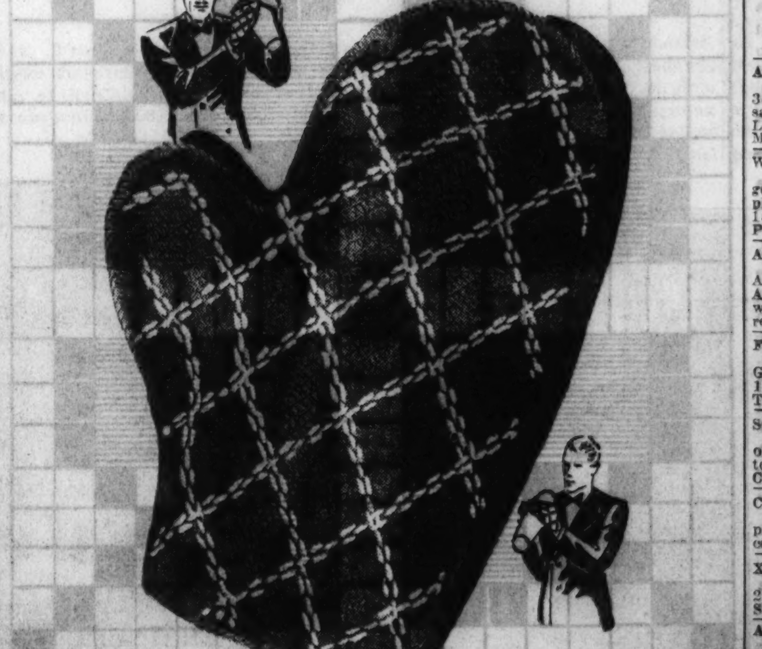
Men Cheer Hearty Practicality of the Crocheted Cocktail Mitt



By Ellen Bruce.

If your men folk are averse to using the huge cocktail towels, sister, mother, wife, or best girl might crochet one of these dashing cotton cocktail mitts. Or even two. Connoisseurs maintain that in order to make the perfect cocktail, shaker, ice, and beverage therein must be thumped up and down 150 times. Why not perfect the job in every detail by waving a gaily colored mitt or pair of them in the air? These mitts are crocheted in the simplest stitches—single and double crochet—in Spanish red, yellow, blue, and latticed with white diagonal stripes.

Cotton cord is the material used together with a number four crochet hook. The worker must also consider whether or not she crochets at a tight, medium, or loose tension. Instructions for sizing are included in the simple directions.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the cocktail mitt illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune; or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower lobby.

UNIT HEATS AND HUMIDIFIES

To combat the ravages of our far too dry indoor winter air is the purpose of the present day humidifier. The above portable electric unit, which comes in varying sizes, has all its moving parts covered and throws moisture in the form of unheated vapor into the air. There are many different humidifiers available designed to contribute, according to their capacity, some sorely needed moisture to the various rooms of our homes, apartments, and hotel rooms.

Dry Air Cause of Many Colds During Winter

Every Home Needs Some Device, However Simple, to Regulate Humidity.

By Louise Bargelt.

FIRST of all—this story is going to be brief; the pictures tell a tale all their own. They show a few of the many ways to buy our apartment or our hotel room a present of—some moisture in its air.

The field of humidifying equipment is large. Units differ vastly in the amount of water which they evaporate. Some create only a small amount indeed—but even that little is better than none! Others can be counted upon to evaporate from two to eight and more gallons of water daily, as the indoor air grows drier and more dry, and the need for moisture, artificially supplied, becomes imperative.

No attempt is made to recommend one type over another nor to discuss in detail the different available methods of obtaining humidity for our indoor air. Rather we are going to point out a few facts which show the need for this humidity. And to urge that after the holidays we do something—however slight it may be, if slight it must be to fit our present budget—to humidify our rooms.

Statistics Show Relation of Humidity to Illness.

Below are a few statistics which came to my attention recently. Now these statistics do not apply to all climes, but they do represent conditions in this locality, where the winter is cold and our houses and apartments warm, and coughs and colds and sneezes—and worse—run rampant.

From the following chart it will be seen that the points where there are the highest number of respiratory diseases are those of low humidity.

Month.	Av. indoor relative humidity.			*No. of cases.
July..	50%	High humidity	Good health	17
Aug...	56%	High humidity	Good health	20

*Total number of cases of respiratory diseases per 1,000 population.

Again, I'll say that not all houses suffer from as low humidity as the above chart shows. This states an average, a condition which exists far too frequently in many houses and in many, many apartments and hotel rooms where neither the heating system nor the individual family members have made any provision for furnishing moisture to the air by artificial means.

Temperature of 70 Demands Relative Humidity of 40 Per Cent.

To be comfortable, a room which has a temperature of 70 degrees should have a relative humidity of forty per cent. If the humidity is fifty per cent the temperature can be less, even 68 or 67 degress, while if the humidity drops as low as thirty per cent we will need a temperature at least 72 degrees or more to feel comfortable.

In brief, the lower the humidity, the more heat we need, and the dryer and hotter the air becomes, the dryer our throats and noses and lungs, and the more susceptible are we to that host of respiratory diseases mortal flesh seems heir to during the cold weather months.

We need proper humidity for three reasons: first, our health; next, our comfort, and last, but not least to many of us, the necessity of keeping our rooms at an enjoyable and not shivery temperature with less fuel consumption.

To determine the relative humidity there are special instruments known by various names. Some of these are simply read, and their dials show the temperature of a room as well as its relative humidity. Different types of these instruments are obtainable in department stores and in most places where thermometers are sold.

Units Vary Widely in Price and Capacity.

As for humidifiers and where they may be purchased, this depends on the type. Many department stores and electrical shops carry units of varying prices and capacity. Many large manufacturers of heating plants, boilers, furnaces, and air conditioning systems have manufactured individual humidifying units for winter use which may be secured independent of the complete all year around air conditioners. Architects, builders, material supply houses, expert heating contractors are all in a position to advise regarding these humidifiers.

After the new year will come a cessation of activities as far as holiday celebrations go. Then we can turn our attention to things perhaps to be done indoors. If you are planning on painting your woodwork anew, refinishing your floors, using paints and enamels, varnishes and waxes, send for the following booklets. They include "Refinishing Furniture, "Refinishing Woodwork," and "Refinishing Walls, Floors, and Ceilings." They are 7 cents each by mail, 5 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn, and Tribune Tower.

A merry Christmas to you—a merry, happy Christmas!

If you are interested in lifting the face of your kitchen, or your basement, the booklets by Louise Bargelt, "A New Deal for the Old Basement" and "Modernizing the Kitchen" will help you. They are 3 cents each at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby; 5 cents each by mail.

Mrs. Bargelt will speak over W-G-N next Saturday at 2:30 p. m.

This looks like a radiator enclosed in a cabinet, and it is that—and something more. It is a unit which heats, and also which contributes from four to eight gallons or more of water to the air of a home on a zero day. The sections do double duty, acting to distribute heat and to evaporate moisture. The water is piped to the humidifying radiator from the house water supply system, and the unit is automatic in the performance of its duty. It can be installed in place of an existing radiator, or as another, if more heat is needed.

Furniture Queries

"Dear Miss Weigle: I have two maple armchairs in an upstairs sitting room. They need re-covering and I do not know what material to use. I am tired of homespuns.—B. N."

I suggest you do your chairs in one of the lovely, colorful quilted chintzes. These are a new and most attractive style note this winter and are, of course, particularly suitable for maple furniture. The large Chicago stores showing the new glazed chintzes also have a quilting service. The customer pays a set amount per yard for this quilting.

Query: "I have an old four poster bed in the style of Heppelwhite. Will you tell me what materials would be appropriate for the hangings? It has a canopy top.—B. T. R."

Answer: Heppelwhite himself felt that a simple fabric like dimity, corded or plain, was ideal for bed hangings. He also used linens and printed cottons. In the time of Chippendale rich materials such as damask and silks were popular, but Heppelwhite rarely employed them. A dotted Swiss, a sprigged dimity, or a pretty chintz would be lovely for your bed.

Crepe Paper Fashions Some Last Minute Christmas Gifts

Wooden Twister Will Pull It Into Tough, Strong Strands Like Raffia.

"Selecting, Framing and Hanging Pictures" tells you how to bring beauty to every room in the house. If you are in doubt about what subjects to use in the living, dining, or any other room, consult this booklet. It is 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn St. and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

IT'S almost the night before Christmas—almost, but not quite. If you've a few last minute gifts to prepare and your purse is flat as a pancake after weeks of shopping, here are some suggestions. These gifts, while useful and good looking, won't cost you more than a fraction of a dollar. And you'll find it as much fun as a game making them.

All you need are castoffs such as empty boxes or cartons, tin cans and bottles, some crêpe paper, and a little wooden gadget called a crêpe paper twister. By means of this last you transform strips of the paper, which you cut to the desired width with your scissors, into twisted strands that look a little like raffia and that are tough and strong to work with. Then, using this material, you proceed to achieve a few minor miracles.

Coat of Shellac Gives a Permanent Finish.

For instance, the smart waste basket, shown in the illustration today, is simply a paper carton glorified with twisted crêpe paper. You begin at the bottom of the box and glue the end of the pulled paper in place, then wind the strands tightly in parallel rows, being careful to cover the end of the strand with the second row as it is being wrapped. Finish by gluing the end and tucking it neatly under the other strands.

It isn't necessary to apply paste or glue all over the surface to be covered, but often it is helpful to apply paste along corners or edges. After you've finished covering the entire carton a permanent finish may be obtained by applying a thin coat of white shellac. The basket shown has five rows of braided, five-strand twisted crêpe paper as a decoration.

Doll and Elephant Merely Old Bottles.

The doll holding the shoe brushes is simply an old bottle wrapped with this twisted paper, and the toy elephant is quite easily made in a similar manner. At the left of the picture is a pretty little box, really almost any old cardboard box you may have, covered like the waste basket, and the little designs, also made of the crêpe paper, applied afterward.

So arm yourself with the wooden crêpe paper twister, some crêpe paper [it comes in 50 colors], and go to work on the odd boxes and empty tins you have at home. For a few cents you can turn out some Christmas gifts that will delight your friends.

Decoration Queries

Miss Winslow will be glad to answer questions on interior decoration. If a personal reply is desired remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

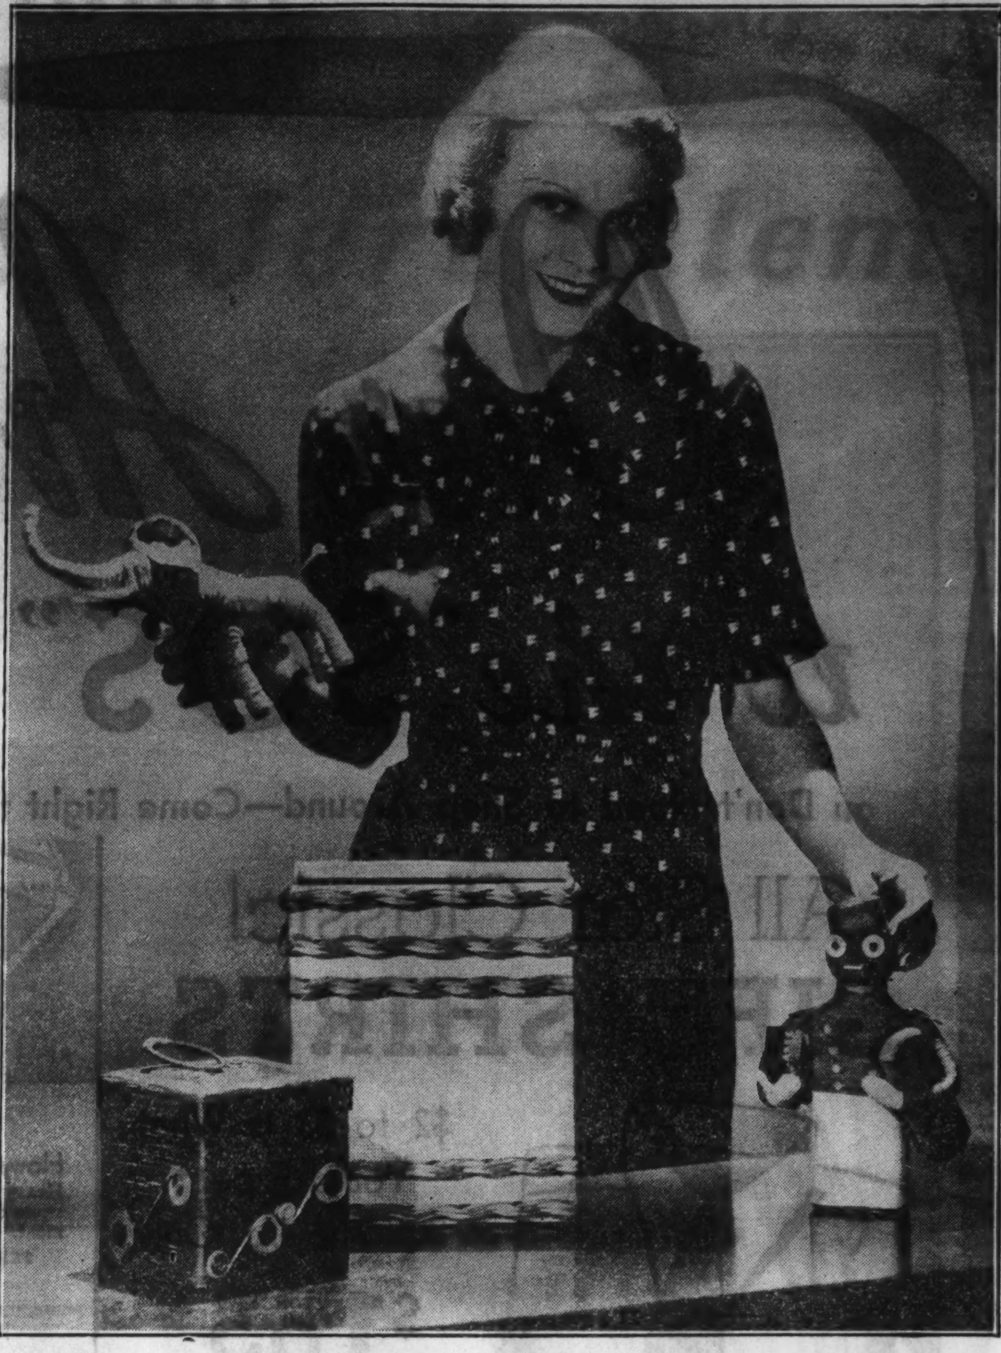
Query: "I have a rust rug and rust draperies. Will you suggest a color for my living room davenport? The walls are light tan.—T. B."

Answer: A simple Lawson or Chippendale type of sofa in medium blue mohair frieze, or corded rep, or tapestry would be charming with your rust rug. Stay away from green, as the green and rust color scheme is deader than the dodo. With your blue and rust use beige, if you get another chair, and introduce touches of white in your accessories.

Query: "Can you tell me if children's cribs are made in metal as well as wood?—C. E."

Answer: Yes, indeed, some of the best looking models are in metal with pastel enamel finishes. They look exactly like wood, but, unlike wood, they will never creak or warp. They're made by a manufacturer of fine springs, mattresses, and beds.

AMUSING AND USEFUL PRESENTS



This young woman is showing you the attractive Christmas gifts that can be made at the last minute with twisted crepe paper. The good looking waste basket is simply an old carton covered with the raffia-like strands, and George, the brushholder, is an empty bottle dressed up. The cost of making these presents is—well, practically nothing. And you'll have loads of fun doing it.

Artists Create Bit o' Norway on North Shore

Northwestern Students Do Apartment in Gay Scandinavian Decore.

"Beautiful Bedrooms," a booklet by Edith Weigle, gives various ways of furnishing this room: in early American maple, in colonial mahogany, and in the modern manner. It is 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn St. and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

NORWAY in Evanston—that's news. Up a flight of stairs in a modern apartment building is a home done delightfully in the spirit of rural Scandinavia. From the entrance way to the back door the folk art of these Nordic peoples is used to decorate the furniture, the walls, everything. Even the telephone wears a coat of paint that is luscious to look at.

This residence was turned over as a sort of experimental laboratory by Anna H. Rutt, who lives there, to her students in interior decoration. Mrs. Rutt is the Ida C. Cook professor of art at Northwestern university. Using her home as a project, they determined its decorative theme and then went to work to accomplish the ornamentation with their own brains and their own hands.

Old Hoop Top Chest Is Nucleus of Apartment.

An interesting hoop top chest, brought by Mrs. Rutt's father from Norway in 1865, was their inspiration. They decided to let its naïve, artistic aspect serve as a nucleus about which they would build the apartment, so to speak. From books on Scandinavian cottage furniture in the Ryerson library at the Chicago Art institute they got authentic motifs and colors.

Some of the students: Jean Thomas, Marjorie Lasker, and Janet Badgley, assisted by Winifred Cass, Virginia Dawes, and others did some charming murals in crayon on bright yellow muslin. These are fitted into the panel moldings on one wall. Janet Yost designed and painted the piano, while Marie Skog transformed the simple wooden table into a colorful affair with the words: "Spise, Drikke Og Vaere Glad" [eat, drink, and be merry] lettered on the top. Two solid wooden benches, one done by Bob Peterson, are gay with peasant figures in soft colors and are used with this table. Scalloped wooden cornices at the windows take the place of draperies and curtains.

One of the pictures today shows this dining group, and in the background a modern floral painting by Norman Rutt. Another view shows the piano and the muslin murals, and a third is a glimpse of Mrs. Rutt touching up her father's old blue traveler's chest, which was the inspiration for the apartment's decoration.

Bedroom Couches Wear Striped Flannel Blankets.

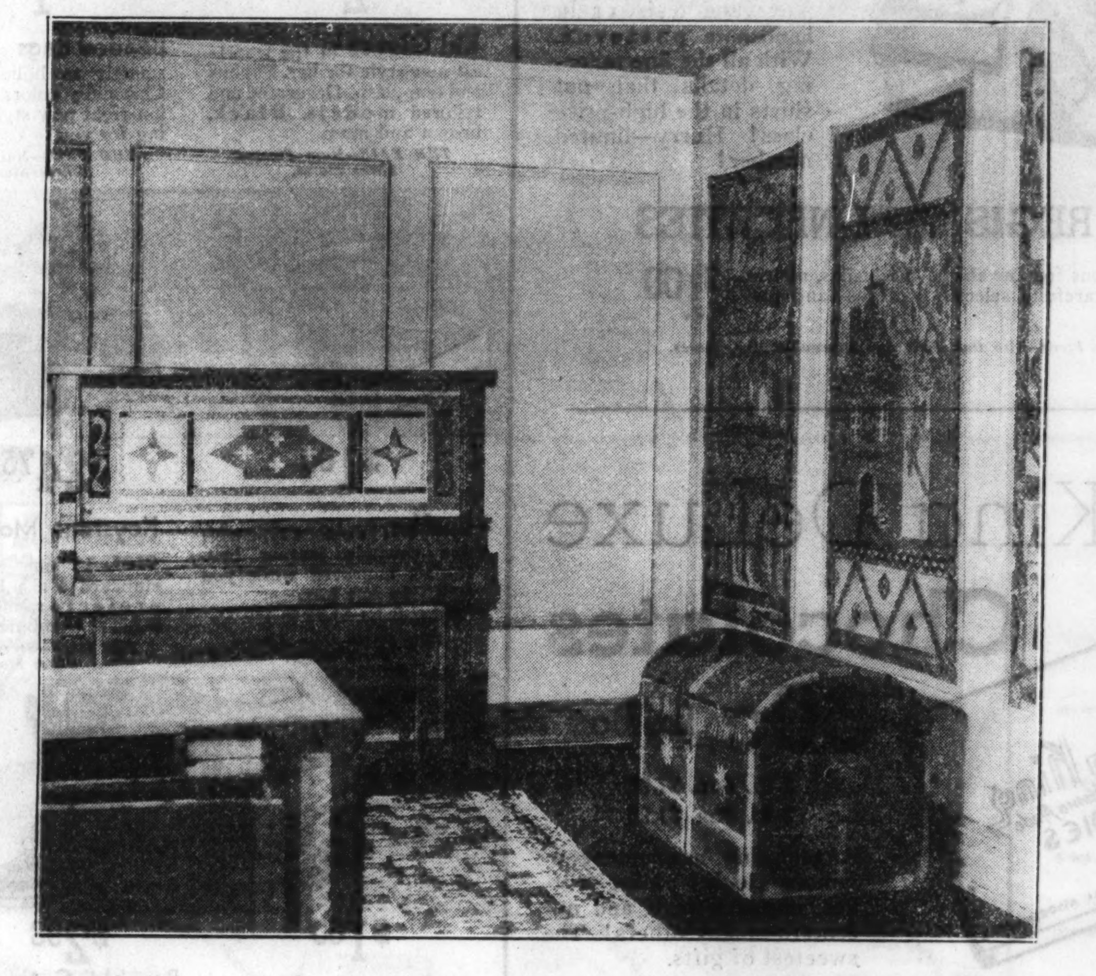
The walls of the dining room are painted a light gray; the ceiling is pale orange and the furniture is done in tones of yellow, brown, green, orange-rose, and many other tones. In the living room a deep rose broadloom rug is matched by deep rose woodwork, and a small writing desk and chair decorated by Genevieve Smith in the same shade with contrasting decorations.

Against one wall is a chest painted lavender, with two amusing panels across the front showing peasant figures on an orange background.

Couches in the bedroom wear boxed covers of gayly striped flannel blankets and a large, open shelved bookcase and flat topped desk carry out the folk art embellishments.

Mrs. Rutt says her students had loads of fun with their paints and brushes, often working without any preliminary pattern, and their spontaneous artistic results certainly prove this. Mechanical exactness was avoided. It is all done in the cheeriest, most unpretentious manner and is, therefore, quite delightful. They had a bright idea to start with and they carried it through to successful completion.

COLORFUL, INFORMAL, AND GAY



Scandinavian art transforms an Evanston apartment. Northwestern university students put into practice their lessons in interior decoration in this dining room following the traditions of the folk art of Norway and Sweden. The result is colorful, informal, and gay. Even the upright piano responded to their paints and brushes.

The dining table is gayly painted and the words: "Spise, Drikke Og Vaere Glad" (eat, drink and be merry), appear on the top surface, while "Skal" is lettered on the wooden-backed benches. One end of the table lifts like a lid to disclose a compartment for napkins, etc. Students in the class of Anna H. Rutt did this decoration.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Mrs. Anna H. Rutt, the owner of the residence, is seen here touching up the curious old Norwegian traveler's chest brought by her father when he came to this country in the middle years of the 19th century. The chest served as inspiration for the decoration of the apartment carried out by Northwestern undergraduates.

200 Years of Marching on Jerusalem

A Christmas Story of the Crusades

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

DAY after tomorrow all Christendom will observe its holiest of holy days. Throughout the world voices will be lowered in prayer and lifted in rejoicing song to mark again the birthday of the Prince of Peace. Youth will recall the simple lessons that were given to the world nearly two thousand years ago by the humble teacher from Nazareth. Mature minds will meditate upon the golden promise of an everlasting serenity beyond the frontiers of strife and woe. Rich and poor, high and low, all people everywhere born within the sound of church bells or influenced in any way by that wonderful faith in the kingdom of heaven and the brotherhood of man will feel noble stirrings in their breasts, will pause for kindly thought toward all mankind.

Sound reason for rejoicing next Tuesday. Is not the world, after all, a pleasant place in which to live?

There can be no doubt in the matter—men are growing more sensible with each generation. True, they have lapses, in which they abandon the divine law for the code of the jungle, but in the main they are growing more tolerant. On the subject of religion, for example, they are quite different today than they were a hundred years ago, far different than they were in the dark and gloomy abyss of the middle ages, when religious zeal meant a hysterical craving to bathe the world in blood.

Drama Has a Lively Flurry Here

Four Yuletide Premieres for Chicago Stage

Holidays Bring Flurry of New Shows; Dennis King in Comedy.

By Charles Collins.

A LIVELY flurry of new shows comes sweeping into Chicago with the advent of the Christmas holidays. This is a traditional occurrence, but for several years it has been a diminishing phenomenon of the theatrical season. The premières on the Yuletide calendar for 1934, however, mark a quickening of activity. There will be four events to challenge the attention of playgoers and reviewers—a condition which justifies a certain degree of optimism about the future of the Chicago stage.

An advance survey of these novelties in threatrical entertainment is in order. Here are the jottings that will guide my playhouse pilgrimages this week:

Dennis King—An actor with a legend for popularity in Chicago and with a past that covers both operetta and the romantic drama. His engagement in "Richard of Bordeaux" was one of the high points in Chicago's last theatrical season. Mr. King will bring to the Harris theater on Christmas eve a new play called "Petticoat Fever"—a comedy said to combine the elements of romantic adventure, wit, and love affairs.

New Role for Dennis King.

The star has the rôle of a radio operator in a remote station on the barren coast of Labrador, where a group of travelers is stormbound. The title suggests that woman trouble breaks loose in the group, with Mr. King as its focus. The presence in the company of two attractive leading women, Ona Munson and Doris Dalton, heightens my suspicions. The history of "Petticoat Fever" is thus far limited to a recent and successfull engagement in Philadelphia. The author is Mark Reed.

"Stevedore" — A drama whose opening in the Selwyn theater Christmas eve will mark the debut of a new play producing organization called the Drama Union, patterned after the Theater Union of New York. This group or movement will specialize in "the drama of social importance," which apparently means themes of proletarian protest and radical rhetoric.

This play deals with Negro dock laborers in New Orleans and a minor race riot. It was written by Paul Peters and George Sklar; it had a run of 26 weeks last season in New York, where its melodramatic scenes were regarded as highly effective; and most of its players are experienced Negro professionals. The cast is practically the same as that of the New York run; this, in fact, is the original Theater Union company and production, sponsored by the new born Drama Union.

"King Lear" by Globe Players.

"King Lear"—A new production by the Old Globe players of A Century of Progress, to mark the opening of an engagement at the Studebaker theater on Christmas night. This version of the classic tragedy will run for an hour and a half, with Carl Benton Reid in the title rôle. It will be followed by "As You Like It." These two plays will form the evening program through the week. Daily matinée performances will consist of Marlowe's "Doctor Faustus" and "The Taming of the Shrew." Curtain hours, 2:30 and 8:30 p. m.

Monte Carlo Ballet Russe—The most brilliant company of dancers in the world today begins a week of repertory in the Auditorium theater next Wednesday. For further details see the music editor's column on another page of this section.

Showboat Dixiana — This Thespian barge, to be found in the north branch at Diversey parkway, will add "Bertha, the Beautiful Sewing Machine Girl" to the sentimentalities of the season next Wednesday night.

Furthermore, the prospects for theatrical amusement in Chicago after the first of the year are distinctly encouraging. The tide in the depression of the legitimate theater has turned, according to present omens, and the New York impresarios are beginning to send companies on tour again.

"Roberta," notable musical comedy hit on Broadway last year, is scheduled to open at the Erlanger theater Jan. 6, following "Ah! Wilderness." [This is the show that contains the popular song, "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes."] The Abbey Theater company of Dublin will bring its repertory of Irish plays, including several new items, to the Harris theater for an engagement that will begin Jan. 28. Eva Le Gallienne will arrive at the Grand Opera house Feb. 4 in "L'Aiglon" and other plays.

Other theatrical possibilities of the winter are the D'Oyly Carte Opera company, in a repertory of the works of Gilbert and Sullivan; "Dodsworth," long-run New York hit, with its original company, and "The Great Waltz," an elaborate musical show which has been flourishing in the huge Rockefeller Center theater.

The Christmas blooming of new productions on the New York stage this week recalls the pre-depression era. The list of premières, not including two reopenings, runs to 15 titles. To equal this number you will have to turn back to the Christmas of 1928.

DENNIS KING AND COMPANY

Dennis King brings a new play, called "Petticoat Fever," to the Harris theater to enliven Chicago's Christmas holidays. Above, his leading woman, Ona Munson; center, the star himself; below, the handsome Doris Dalton. [Photos by Murray Korman and Alfredo Valente.]

Ferde Grofe's Band at Drake; Cabaret Shows

FERDE GROFE, composer and arranger of scores who has been one of the leading figures in the establishment of jaz music on an artistic basis, will bring his dance orchestra to the Drake hotel next Saturday night. For many years he was pianist and arranger for Paul Whiteman, and he has made important contributions to the library of orchestra jaz. His orchestration of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" is famous. Grofe's dance band has played engagements in many first class hotel dining rooms.

● Elaborate plans have been made for New Year's eve parties in the cafés and cabarets. Some of the downtown hotels have arranged for special floor space in their ballrooms for the celebration, which promises to be the most spirited since 1930.

● Cherniavsky, the orchestra leader famous for his musical eccentricities, will add color to the holiday spirit that will pervade the Joseph Urban room tomorrow night with a "Christmas Eve in Moscow" celebration. During his two years at the Chicago theater he has proven himself not only a musician but a showman. By adding a classic touch to popular dance rhythms he produces a new tempo which he calls "sympho-syncopation." He has a 13 piece band. The floor show includes the Townsends, a dance team, and Robert Royce, singer. On Christmas eve Leone Mayer and Lester Hayes will offer Russian dances, and a Russian revue will be featured.

● Paul Oscard, former producer of stage shows for the Paramount-Publix chain of theaters, will take charge of the cabaret program at Chez Paree on Dec. 27. He will form a new ballet, and is preparing special dancing numbers, called "Flamenco," "Cosmopolitan Scene," "Black and Rose," and "Two Moods."

● The Hersey Twins, Edyth and Billy, a dancing team, have been udded to the cabaret program at the Blackhawk restaurant, where Kay Kyser is band leader and master of the revels.

● The Christmas eve party in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel will have the St. Peter's church choir as its feature. These fifty singers in vestments, carrying lighted candles, will be accompanied by James Kozak's orchestra in a repertory of Christmas carols and anthems.

● Bob Ripa, of the Empire room's new "Holiday Revue," which was launched last Thursday night, is regarded a new genius in juggling tricks. He is a Dane, 19 years old. Other entertainers are De Roze, from Maxim's of Paris; Harris, Claire, and Shannon, dancing trio; Tommy Martin, sleight-of-hand man; Roy Cropper, operetta tenor; and Ted Weems' band.

● Old London Inn, a sequel to the Cheshire Cheese Inn of the English Village at A Century of Progress, has been opened at 744 Rush street. Same management; same cuisine, with elaborations; and some of the Merrie England pageanteers and mummers as official greeters.

● The New Year's eve celebration in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel will include an expanded floor show. Bliss, Lewis, and Ash, soft shoe dancers, and the McNallie Sisters, singers and dancers, are among the recent additions to the troupe.

● The Floridan room in the St. Clair hotel provides the atmosphere of a winter seaside resort in the subtropics. Jimmie Bell's band plays for dancing.

● The French Casino's new revue, which gives Johann Strauss III. his American debut, has been received as a worthy successor to the "Folles Bergeres." It blends the atmosphere of Parisian and Viennese night life, and contains as many performers as a first class Broadway revue. The program has more humor than its predecessor, and Robins, a comedian from the Ambassadeurs music hall of Paris, is a notable contributor to the mirth. This a brilliant spectacle of the super-cabaret type. The revue is now divided into three sections.

PLAYS CLASSIC HEROINES

Irene Tedrow is one of the leading actresses of the Old Globe company, formerly of A Century of Progress. This famous organization has ended its stay at McVicker's theater as an adjunct to the cinema, and will begin a run at the Studebaker on Christmas night, giving programs of two plays matinee and night. Good Actor

PIERRE WATKINS is making his first Chicago appearance in "Romance" at the Blackstone since he played here with William Courtney in "Dangerous People." He appeared recently in New York in Elmer Rice's "We, the People," and in "Mad Hopes," with Violet Kemble-Cooper. Previous Broadway engagements included "The Acquittal," with Crystal Hearne, and "Meet the Wife," with Mary Boland. Last spring and summer he appeared as leading man with the Henderson Play Festival company in Milwaukee and Ann Arbor. He played opposite Mary Pickford on her recent vaudeville tour in "The Church Mouse," but not in Chicago.

Chicago Dancer.

Margaret Saye, a Chicago dancer, has entered the cast of "As Thousands Cheer" at the Grand Opera house.

Broadway Sees an Inspiring Washington

He Is Heroic, Yet Human, in 'Valley Forge'

'Anderson's Drama Will Thrill Playgoers of the Old American Stock.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Let me see, who was that Chicago mayor who some years back was apoplectic with desire to tweak the nose of good King George? Whatever his name is, I thin keven he would approve of the George Washington that Maxwell Anderson has put into the newest of his historically decorated dramas called "Valley Forge."

This George is not a copybook hero, nor yet a completely debunked national hero of the Rupert Hughes order. This George is a big, human, emotionally depressed, lightly vacillating, beaten, tired, sensitively tempered aristocrat who, in a crisis, found the needed last ounce of courage to carry on.

A rather fine figure of a man as Philip Merivale plays him for the Theater Guild at the Guild theater, fine in his reactions, fine in his understanding, fine in the idealism that threw him into a fight the wisdom of which he must often have questioned.

Persuades Deserter to Recant by Argument.

He strides into the first scene, a bunkhouse in the Valley Forge of 1778, such a Washington as it is possible to accept on the hoof as it were, an inspiration worthy of patriotism.

The men in this particular bunkhouse are an assorted lot of sufferers, sick and well, loyal and lukewarm, shredded as to clothes, half starved and rebellious. One among them is man enough to declare an intention of deserting, of going home for winter and coming back to fight again in the spring.

The human Washington reasons with this man, and with all the men through him. Let him go home if he is willing to take his chances with the punishment decreed for deserters. But let him know that by going he weakens the chances of his fellows much more than he realizes. Every deserter from this winter camp, says Washington, strengthens the belief of an enemy smugly comfortable in Philadelphia that the end is near for the Continentals. There is nothing to offer the soldier as a reward for loyalty, nothing but more cold, and more suffering, and probably less food. He must himself weigh the rewards of that dream of liberty which sent him onto the field against the misery which is the cost of it. And the man stays on.

Old Sweetheart Tries to Make Washington Surrender.

It is this same dignified, steadily poised, quietly forceful Washington who continues through the play. Once, in Mr. Anderson's gesture to romance, he is faced by the Mary Philipse who had loved him as a young man. She has come from the camp of Gen. Howe to urge, dispassionately and reasonably, that Washington surrender on gentle terms to an enemy wearied of fighting half starved men. The help he expects from France, she says, will not be given him. She has come, too, to remind him of the love she bore him and still bears him, though he had married the Widow Custis and was content.

Again Washington calmly rejects suggestions and offers. He and the war of which he is the military representative are a part of those things destiny had decreed and would continue so.

Once representatives of a bartering Continental congress that was trying secretly to force a peace behind his back by supplanting him with Gen. Gates irritated him beyond endurance. Then Washington indulges in a bit of fiery defiance and ends by taking the most irritating of the congressmen by the seat of his trousers and the collar of his coat and throwing him out the door. It was this scene, reports have it, that went best in Washington, where they know their congressmen.

Army Turns General's Own Logic on Him.

Finally Washington, beaten in spirit by the intrigues of his enemies and the suffering of his men, agrees to meet with Gen. Howe in a barn on the Delaware river and discuss terms of a truce that shall lead to a sort of honorable surrender. But here he comes upon a foraging party from that same company he had met in the bunkhouse and they are bold enough to talk plainly to their general about his intentions. Let him resign if he will, but nothing that he does will return them to an allegiance with George III. If he once urged them to accept such fortunes and such misery as they must for the dream that inspired them, let them now urge him to do the same.

So it comes to pass that when Gen. Howe has argued reasonably enough that wars are seldom fought and won or lost for the causes that inspire them, but rather for trade gains, and usually to the profit of others than the men who do the fighting, Washington refuses the suggestion of an amiable surrender.

"I am a servant of these men in homespun," he tells Howe. So long as they are still impelled to fight on for their dream he can do no less than continue with them. Let the treacheries of the congress be for the time forgotten. "This liberty will look easy by and by, when no one dies for it," he says as the curtain falls.

Play Has Neither Patriotic Hoop-la Nor Romantic Appeal.

There is no hoop-la in this play. Anderson is far too sane a patriot for that stuff. The glamor and romantic appeal that he was able to build up in his twisted but fascinating stories of Elizabeth and Mary are also missing, but there is the same inspiring use of the English language. I will be a little surprised if the play runs long past the subscription season of the Guild, though I am hoping that it will, counting it one of the worthier dramas of the time.

There are many it will leave emotionally unmoved, because there are many, and mostly they are supporters of the theater, whose ancestral roots strike only through the top soil of America. I pity them that they miss the thrill of satisfaction that goes with a deeper heritage.

In addition to the Merivale performance, which stamps the eloquence of dignity and the dignity of eloquence upon the auditor, there are many fine short performances—by Stanley Ridges as a fiery volunteer from the Indian wars, one Lieut. Col. Tench; by Victor Kilian, who supplies a touch of comedy by playing the first scenes through without his pants [he is pantless, in fact, until he gets through the English lines and comes back all dolled up in red breeches]; by Margalo Gillmore, who is the Mary Philipse; by Edward Trevor, who is the Lafayette; by Alan Bunce, Reginald Mason, and others.

Down in Fourteenth street, which is a long way from the Guild in Fifty-second street any way you look at it, the Theater union is presenting another of its propagandic dramas and stirring its radicals to lusty shouts for the old red flag.

This one is called "Sailors of Cattaro" and aims to convince the proletarian that he can lose more by excessive talk and bickering with his comrades than he can gain by strikes and abortive revolutions.

The play is taken from the mutiny that broke forth in the Bay of Cattaro the last year of the great war on board the ships of the Austrian navy. Six thousand sailors struck to end the war, to improve their conditions, and to give a capitalistic world a taste of their power. They had the situation well in hand, as the play runs, when they went into series of meetings with their sailors' councils and managed finally to talk their advantage to death. The government regained control of the ships and the leaders of the strike were led away to be shot.

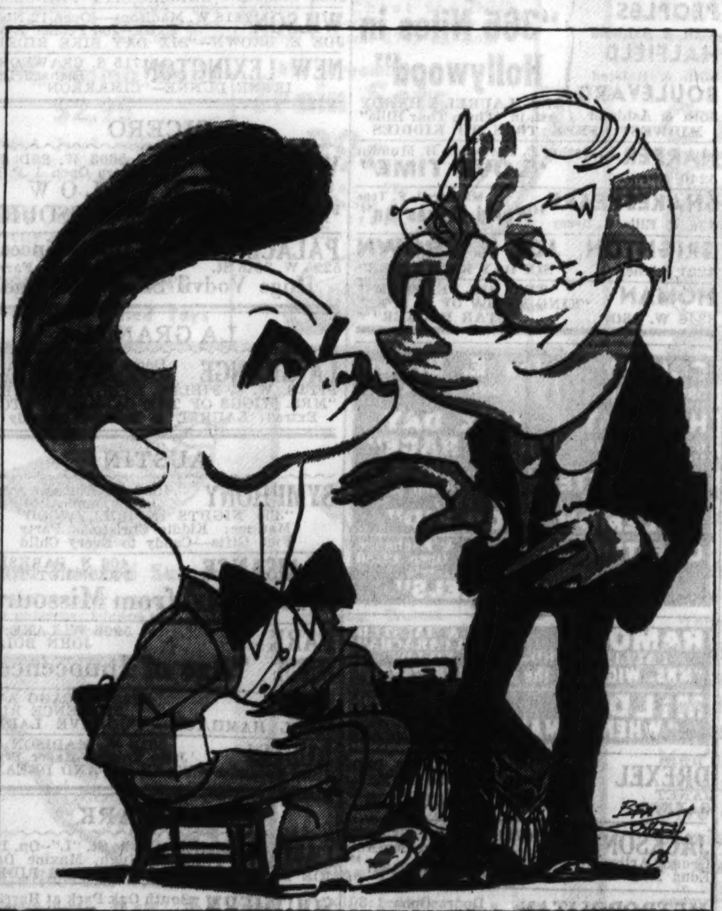
Direct action is evidently the plea the author, Friedrich Wolf, has in mind. He is an exiled literary man from Berlin now living in Russia. He would, if I get his message, have the dissatisfied ones start shooting earlier and depend less on argument.

It is a fine safety valve, this radicals' theater in Fourteenth street. It gets rid of a lot of steam and presents considerable exciting drama. It is valuable, too, in indicating how the other fifth reasons. The Theater union production of "Sailors of Cattaro" is professional and capable.

'PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS'

"Kitten Peeping from Woodpile" could easily be the title for this cunning photograph of Joan Bennett. "Pursuit of Happiness." Oriental.

MR. COHAN AND HIS BAD BOY



[Drawing by Ben Cohen.]

In Eugene O'Neill's comedy, "Ah, Wilderness," current at the Grand Opera house, George M. Cohan has the role of a small town father of 1906, much worried by the crazy conduct of his love-sick son. This is a cartoonist's impression of Mr. Cohan trying to impart the "facts of life" to the lad, acted by Elisha Cook.

Ballet Russe to Open Here Wednesday

Will Give Both Old Favorites and Revivals in 13 Performances.

By Edward Moore.

YOU might spend the next few days in polishing up your Russian pronunciation, seeing with what deft ease you can place the accents on the right syllables in Tamara Toumanova, Alexandra Danilova, Irina Baronova, Tatiana Riabouchinska, David Lichine, and Yurek Chabelevsky, looking to it that the first syllable of Massine's name sounds a little different than it looks in print.

For as the Chicago Grand Opera company goes out of the Civic Opera house, the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe prepares to come into the Auditorium. It will ring up the curtain Wednesday night and stay there for a brief, too brief season of eight evening performances and five matinées.

It is the same glamorous company that last season got every one excited with its light and color and expert dancing and miming. This season it has already been to Mexico City, Toronto, Montreal, Washington, Philadelphia, Boston, Cleveland, Detroit, and points east and south. From here it goes to the Pacific coast. And it is bringing most of its favored ballets, some revivals, and several pieces that have never been seen here.

"Aurora's Wedding" Condensed Version of "Sleeping Beauty."

Two of the novelties will be on the opening bill Wednesday night. One is "Aurora's Wedding." It is a condensed version of Tschaikowsky's long ballet, "Sleeping Beauty," and it rates as the most difficult and spectacular exhibition of Russian dancing in the company's whole répertoire. Diaghileff produced it in Europe in 1921 and it had its first American performance in Philadelphia a few weeks ago. It will be done with the original Bakst settings and costumes.

The second novelty is "La Boutique Fantasque" (The Fantastic Toy Shop), created by Massine just before the death of Diaghileff. The music is by Rossini, written for the amusement of some friends during an inactive period of the composer's life, after he had composed fourteen other operas and retired from stage life. He himself called the piece "Les Riens" (Nothing). It is not well known, nor even listed in a fairly comprehensive catalog of Rossini's music, but it was uncovered by Ottorino Respighi, the modern composer who holds a high position in musical Rome today, rescored for modern orchestra, and given to Diaghileff with the suggestion that a ballet be made of it. Massine planned the choreographic action and André Derain designed the settings and costumes.

Toys Rebel to Keep Lovers from Being Separated.

The story is a merrily spun creation telling how the proprietor of a toy shop is doing a rushing business selling toys, playing cards, and dolls to customers of various nations. Two of the dolls, a pair of cabaret dancers, entrance all the customers, but are unfortunately separated by purchase. After the proprietor has locked his shop and departed for the night the toys come to life and bewail the fate of the pair doomed to separation. The lovers organize a plot, and with the aid of the others make their escape from the shop.

The customers return in the morning, furious that their purchases have not been delivered. The proprietor, handing them their dolls, finds that the packages contain only paper. The enraged customers set about wrecking the shop, but the toys come to life again, drive off the rioters, and save the day. This will be the first performance in America of the work. It will be followed by the greatly favored "Beau Danube."

On Thursday night will come Stravinsky's "Fire Bird," with which the Diaghileff company caused the Chicago public to burst into amazed delight on its first performance on the same stage in 1917. It, too, will have the original scenery and costumes. A fourth novelty will be Liadoff's "Contes Russes" on Saturday afternoon, with a dramatic background of a series of Russian fairy tales.

An enlarged orchestra is promised for the Chicago engagement, and the musical direction will again be in the hands of Efrem Kurtz and Anatol Dorati.

DANCES WITH BALLET RUSSE

Here is one of the lovely Russians who will make the Auditorium populous and popular from next Wednesday night to the following Wednesday. She is Natalie Branitzka, a decorative member of the Monte Carlo Ballet.

Dennis King

DENNIS KING will begin an engagement of two weeks at the Harris theater tomorrow night in Mark Reed's new comedy, "Petticoat Fever," under the auspices of the American Theater society. Always a favorite here, he returns under the management of Richard Aldrich and Alfred de Liagre Jr., supported by Ona Munson, Jay Fassett, Doris Dalton, Joaquin Souther, Leo Curley, Robert Bentzen, and others.

The play deals with a group of characters in an isolated wireless station in northeastern Labrador.

Says Society Debs Yearn to Be in Movies

Rosamond Pinchot, Now Star, Discourses on High Life vs. Career.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—"There are more girls in society who would like to be in pictures than there are girls in pictures who would like to be in society," says Rosamond Pinchot, daughter of Amos Pinchot and niece of the famous Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania. She is a new M-G-M contract player.

The tall, willowy, blonde beauty, in talking of her own recent omission from the social register, dismissed it with a smile as of no importance and made the above comment: "Girls of society families are plagued nowadays with the idea that they should have a job," she continued. "Of course movies are the desirable thing for them because of the glamor and because of the money to be made.

"I am often accused of taking jobs from girls who need the money. I get letters like that often. The plain truth is I need the money at the present time, as it is necessary for me to make a living. As for society, it has never meant anything to me. I never really was a debutante. I resigned from the Junior league and all my clubs years ago. About that matter of taking jobs from needy girls: I'm in open competition, and if any one can get my job it's theirs.

Women Expect Both Equality and Chivalry.

"The trouble with modern women and this society and careers business is that fields for women are not as yet clearly defined. We try to be modern and yet expect the old chivalry as well. We expect men to accept us on a modern basis, yet we complain when they do. It's all highly confusing.

"It seems to me that it's been proved that it is about 80 per cent impossible to stay married while pursuing a picture career. Ego is needed for a career, and if there's one thing that challenges the ego it's marriage. If I should ever decide to marry again I would give up my career. It's enough of a career to manage a home, a husband, and children. I know because I've done it.

"There's a clause in my contract that is unusual. I don't know that it's ever been in a contract before. The clause is a proviso that if I marry my contract is void. Only in this way can I break my contract. I had it inserted because of my convictions about marriages and careers. [Miss Pinchot is estranged from her husband, William Gaston II., former husband of Kay Francis.]

Miss Pinchot is to play the leading rôle in "The Brave Live On," the story of Florence Nightingale, for M-G-M production to be started in February. Meanwhile she takes screen tests, and, as she laughingly says, "I am accused of wearing them out, having them run and rerun, studying them and trying to improve myself."

Reinhardt Accepts What Boarding School Rejects.

It is notable that this, her first film rôle, will be as a lead. So also was her first stage rôle. At 17 she was playing the lead as the nun in "The Miracle" on Broadway. She had never had any previous experience, but her aristocratic carriage and good looks fitted the rôle so well Reinhardt selected her for it on sight.

"I have never played in any amateur productions. It is amusing to recall that when I was at Miss Walker's school I couldn't make the dramatic club. Next year I was a lead on Broadway. Were they surprised when they heard it at Miss Walker's!

"Following my run in 'The Miracle' I spent a summer as a guest star in stock through the east. I'd like more experience in stock. I believe it teaches more than any dramatic school could. I hope to return to the stage from film work from time to time. I want so much to be a success in films. If I am I am sure it will be entirely as myself and not because I am like anybody else. I'm tall and not the typical leading lady sort. I hope being tall won't be against me in films. Do you think so?" she asked anxiously.

La Pinchot Hopes Some Day to Enter Politics.

Dancing lessons in acrobatic and in stage routines take up much of this ambitious young lady's time. Her ambition is to work hard in films for at least three years, by which time she hopes to be established. "And then for Capri, where I intend to lie in the sun and rest for three months.

"Politics interest me very much," says this feminine scion of a great family of politicians. "If my stage and screen career don't make it impossible I'd like to go into politics later on, when I'm in my forties. I'd go back to Pennsylvania, of course, to the family's home. I believe there is a real place for women in politics.

"In the meantime I'm occupied with getting ready to make my first film a success. The story rests entirely on the work of the central character. I must make that real or the film fails. It's not usual that a person unknown to film audiences is given the whole burden to carry in a first production, and I want so much to be successful."

Miss Pinchot has a brilliant pink and white complexion and golden hair worn loosely about her finely molded but not entirely regular features. Her large blue eyes suggest intelligence and a twinkling sense of humor. Full, well molded lips outline fine teeth. A richly toned voice, well modulated and feminine, is winning. Quite an unaffected, friendly sort of person, her personality is engaging. She is popular both at the studio and with the press.

Colleen Moore in Hollywood for Old-Fashioned Christmas.

Colleen Moore has rented a house in Hollywood for the holiday season.

Her own Bel-Air mansion is leased to Marlene Dietrich. Colleen's home has been in New York with her husband, Al Scott, at a hotel suite for some months, and Colleen felt she had to stretch herself and lose that cramped feeling by coming to Hollywood to see her friends over Christmas.

"I want a nice home cooked turkey with fixings and homemade apple pie," said Colleen, rolling those expressive eyes.

"I've had ten years of hard work in films and ten years of nervous indigestion. For the last four years I've been having fun. I've really been enjoying life. I'm not concerned over films any more. Those last two were really made to get money to complete my doll house."

Doll's House Made Like a Palatial Castle.

Thereby hangs the tale. This week Colleen insured her doll house for $420,000, preparatory to sending it on tour in February, when, it is hoped, her nine year creation will be completed.

Colleen's famous doll house, the most elaborate in the world, surpassing even the one belonging to Queen Mary, will be shown all over the world at a cost of 5 cents per child to raise money for Miss Moore's pet charity, a home for crippled children.

The house is 9 feet square. In design it is a castle, the home of a prince and princess. Famous artists like James Montgomery Flagg, Maxfield Parrish, and others designed and executed the various rooms.

In the great hall of the miniature castle the ceiling has sixty-four illustrations, in tiny detail, of fairy tales from Grimm's and Andersen's collections.

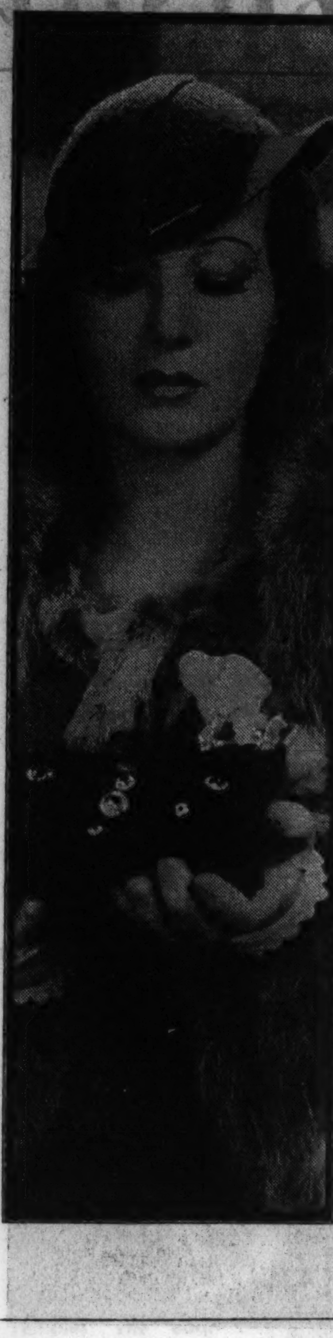
The floor of the great hall is tortoise shell inlaid with gold. The fairy princess' bath is in real jade and silver and crystal. "That is the room that really broke me," says Colleen with a grin. "There are two silver horses on each side of the sunken tub. On their backs are crystal basins holding silver cupids, who in turn hold conch shells in their hands. From the conch shells water spouts up, falling into the basins, and then into the tub below.

Princess' Bedroom Has Spider Web Murals.

The princess' bedroom is decorated beautifully with murals of spider webs; tiny fairies walk tightropes with nets below held by spiders. The bedspread is of fine Mexican lace made like spider webs. There is a tiny crown for the princess, an Irish art object in the shape of a ring. It is of pearls and has a shamrock of three emeralds surmounted by a diamond. It is in a tiny gold casket which says in Gaelic "Love never dies."

The water system in the house really works. It is supplied by a tank in one of the towers. The electric lights really work, too. The most difficult thing was to have a chandelier for the great hall.

"As everything is exactly to scale," says Colleen, "I was in despair over this, as the tiniest light available would be the size of an arc light in the castle. I was told it was impossible, but finally I found an electrician who didn't know it was impossible, and he made me a chandelier with many lights, the size of each light being that of a grain of wheat. They show a good deal of light, too."



'ONE EXCITING ADVENTURE'

The young woman who holds a fortune in her hands seems to be doing some lightning calculating. She's Miss Binnie Barnes, the English star, and you can see her in "One Exciting Adventure." State-Lake.

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Wants a Break for Barbara Stanwyck.

Dear Friend: After reading your article in THE TRIBUNE regarding "A Lost Lady," which states that sacrilege has been committed: sure—but why? With all this we read about cleaning up the movies, selecting pictures we should see and ones we should not see, will you please state how the picture would have passed the censorship had they followed the book?

That's just what's wrong with the movies. Why try to please a fickle public when there will always be narrow minded people in this world until its end?

Some of the so-called musical comedies are most vulgar and disgusting—yet they are among the ones to see. A lot of "hooey." Of course it's not the actress' or actors' fault. Barbara Stanwyck has yet to give a poor performance. Yet does she ever get a break in our paper? Actresses with loads less talent and naturalness get all the writeups. Still we are looking for cleaner and better pictures. For what, I ask you. A Barbara Stanwyck Fan. MAYME SAGERT.

Urges Theaters to Provide Head Sets for Deaf.

Dear Editor: It was a revelation to me to learn through an acquaintance who has recently moved to Chicago and who is quite deaf what a marvelous experience it has been for her to discover one movie theater in the loop and two on the north side which furnish head sets for the hard of hearing patrons. How much enjoyment she derives from such service! Why can't many others provide such service! Surely there are hundreds who would avail themselves of such an opportunity. G. A. T.

Editor's note: Theater managers, please note!

GOOD MORNING!

Shirley Temple fans—attention!

Here's a picture with our baby blossoming all over it!

A regular Christmas gift of a picture—"Bright Eyes"—with a Christmas party in it. An airport Christmas party! Given by a baker's dozen of handsome aviators to the little daughter of a one-time pal who had "cracked up" and "gone west" while soaring along on duty.

Shirley's widowed mother is parlormaid in the home of a nasty nice couple who have a perfectly horrible little girl of their own. The other member of the family is one Uncle Ned, an eccentric, crochety, wheelchair ridden relative, whose fortune the Smythes expect to inherit. Which accounts for their careful consideration of the gewhilliking old gentleman.

The Smythe house isn't far from the airport, and, when Shirley isn't there, why, usually the boys off duty are in and out to say "Hello" to and keep an eye on their "Honey."

Those Who Deserve Good Duly Rewarded.

At least that's what they do till Mrs. Smythe tells Mary frigidly that they MUSTN'T. . . .

Shirley's favorite aviator is Loop, who loves no woman but her. Loop, you see, had once been engaged to a girl who had treated him badly. . . .

This young lady, a niece of Uncle Ned, comes to be house guest of the Smythes. She's nice. You will like her. So does Shirley. But she's poison to Loop, until——?

Christmas rolls around—and with it comes sorrow for Shirley. Not, however, until almost the end of a perfect day. . . .

The tragedy which occurs precipitates many events which result happily for all who SHOULD be happy. . . .

The last scene is—just—swell! A hand comes down—HARD where you've been longing to plant your own for a good, long time. . . .

Jane Withers Perfect Running Mate for Jackie Searl.

Little Shirley is her usual sparkling self. She and James Dunn DO work so beautifully together! Remember them in "Baby, Take a Bow"? Well, they're every bit as appealing in "Bright Eyes."

In her way Jane Withers, playing the enfant terrible, is as good as Shirley. She makes the character she portrays a brat from the word "Go" and is utterly deplorable with the same ease that Shirley is completely adorable. WHAT a pair she and Jackie Searl would make!

Lois Wilson is appealing as Shirley's brave, sad mother. Dorothy Christy and Theodor von Eltz qualify as the unlovable Smythes. Charles Sellon is excellent as choleric, soft spoken Uncle Ned. All other rôles are well handled.

"Bright Eyes" is clean, eventful. It's a picture that all children will love, and that grownups—who don't object to a little hokum—will enjoy.

See you tomorrow.

AMERICA'S "HONEY CHILE"

America's Honey Chile — Shirley Temple! The adorable little witch is now starring in "Bright Eyes." Chicago theater.

Drama Union

"STEVEDORE," the New York Theater Union's play about Negro dockworkers in New Orleans, written by Paul Peters and George Sklar, will open at the Selwyn theater tomorrow night for a month. It closed recently in New York after a run of twenty weeks.

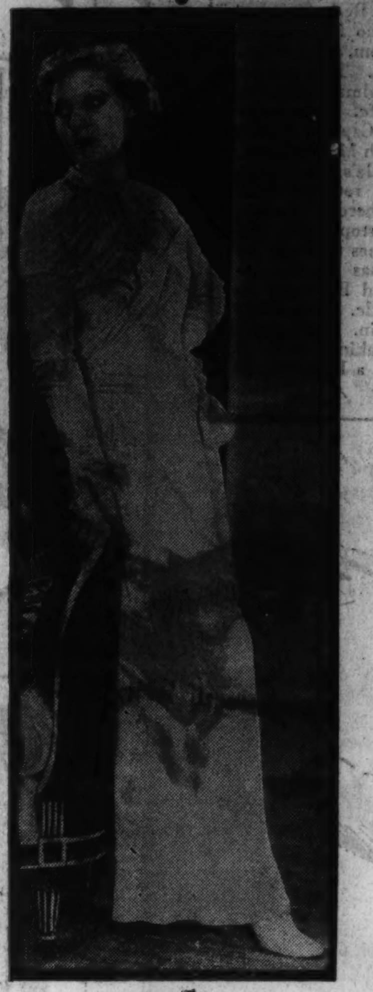
The Drama Union of Chicago, sponsoring the engagement, announces that twenty-five Chicago organizations have pledged their support. Over half of the tickets for the first three weeks have already been sold. Labor unions, associations of professional people, students, social workers, fraternal societies, and charity groups are included in these coöperating groups.

Plans to establish a permanent theatrical organization in Chicago "to produce a series of plays dealing with significant social problems" are being formulated by the Drama Union. The Theater Union's first production in New York, "Peace on Earth," will be given here after the showing of "Stevedore."

For New Year's Eve.

The Palace is scheduling two special programs for New Year's eve. It is the only popular priced downtown theater to reserve all seats for the New Year's eve shows.

A "DIFFERENT" VIEW OF LORETTA YOUNG



A somehow "so different" view of the popular Loretta Young. Who, d'ye think she might be "honing" for? She's in "Caravan," at the Palace theater.

HOLLYWOOD HAPPENINGS

The English rage continues. With Ronald Colman finished with his portrayal of Clive, hero of Indian empire building, Irving Thalberg announces the purchase of the story of Cecil Rhodes to star Charles Laughton. Rhodes built England's empire in South Africa. First thing we know somebody will be doing "Cornwallis of Yorktown."

The interview room where Mae West, Claudette Colbert, Marlene Dietrich, and the other Paramount gals "tell all" to the scribes is known as the lethal chamber.

And you should have seen Marjorie Rambeau wham Victor McLaglen about the face with a heavy pillow in the retakes of "East River" at Fox studio. "Don't blink your eyes, you are anticipating her blows," Director Irving Cummings yelled at Victor, and the latter had to keep a smile on his face and take it.

May Robson is so fond of birds that not only has she an aviary of feathered songsters in her garden but her windows have feeding troughs for wild birds which come at dawn and excitedly demand attention if the troughs have not been filled.

Leo Carrillo, one of California's native sons, is acting as technical adviser without salary for Louise Fazenda, who is building a Spanish ranchhouse in the San Fernando valley.

Holiday Revue at the Chicago; Variety Bills

THE Chicago theater's stage show for the current week consists mainly of a "Holiday Revue," containing the Evans ballet and numerous singers, dancers and comedians. An extra feature is Capt. Roman Proske, Austrian animal trainer, with a cage of tigers. Cherniavsky's holiday offering as orchestra director is a "Christmas Fantasy" arranged by George Parrish.

Joe Laurie Jr. leads the new program of vaudeville at the State-Lake theater as star of a revue that runs an hour. He calls it "Memory Lane," and has enlisted a number of veteran performers as his assistants. They include the Maxwell singing trio; Lizzi Wilson, who harks back to the heyday of Maurice Barrymore and claims to be the original "Schnitzelbank" singer; William C. Handy, composer of the "St. Louis Blues" and a pioneer in jazz music; Gus Hill, Indian club swinger and former theatrical producer; Grant Gardner, Swiss bell ringer, and J. Rosamund Johnson, composer of Negro musical comedies. Verne Buck's portion of the bill consists of several vaudeville acts, including Lester Harding, radio singer; the Keene Twins; Smith, Strong, and Lee, and the Two Daveys.

Milton Berle, comedian and master of ceremonies, leads the holiday vaudeville program at the Palace theater. He is assisted by Baby Rose Marie, juvenile singer; Pat Rooney, veteran dancing comedian, assisted by his son; Lowe, Burnoff, and Wensley, burlesque adagio dancers, and "Mattison Rhythms," a dance revue by Maxine Rice; the O'Connor Brothers, and Leo O'Neill.

The "Revue Continental," staged by A. B. Marcus and containing 100 entertainers, is the current stage show at the Uptown theater. This troupe recently completed a tour of the world, picking up performers in various countries.

By Clemence Dane.

A dramatization by Clemence Dane of her own novel, "Broom Stages," will be staged in New York after the holidays, with Glenn Hunter in a leading rôle. Its title will be "The Life of Harry Broome."

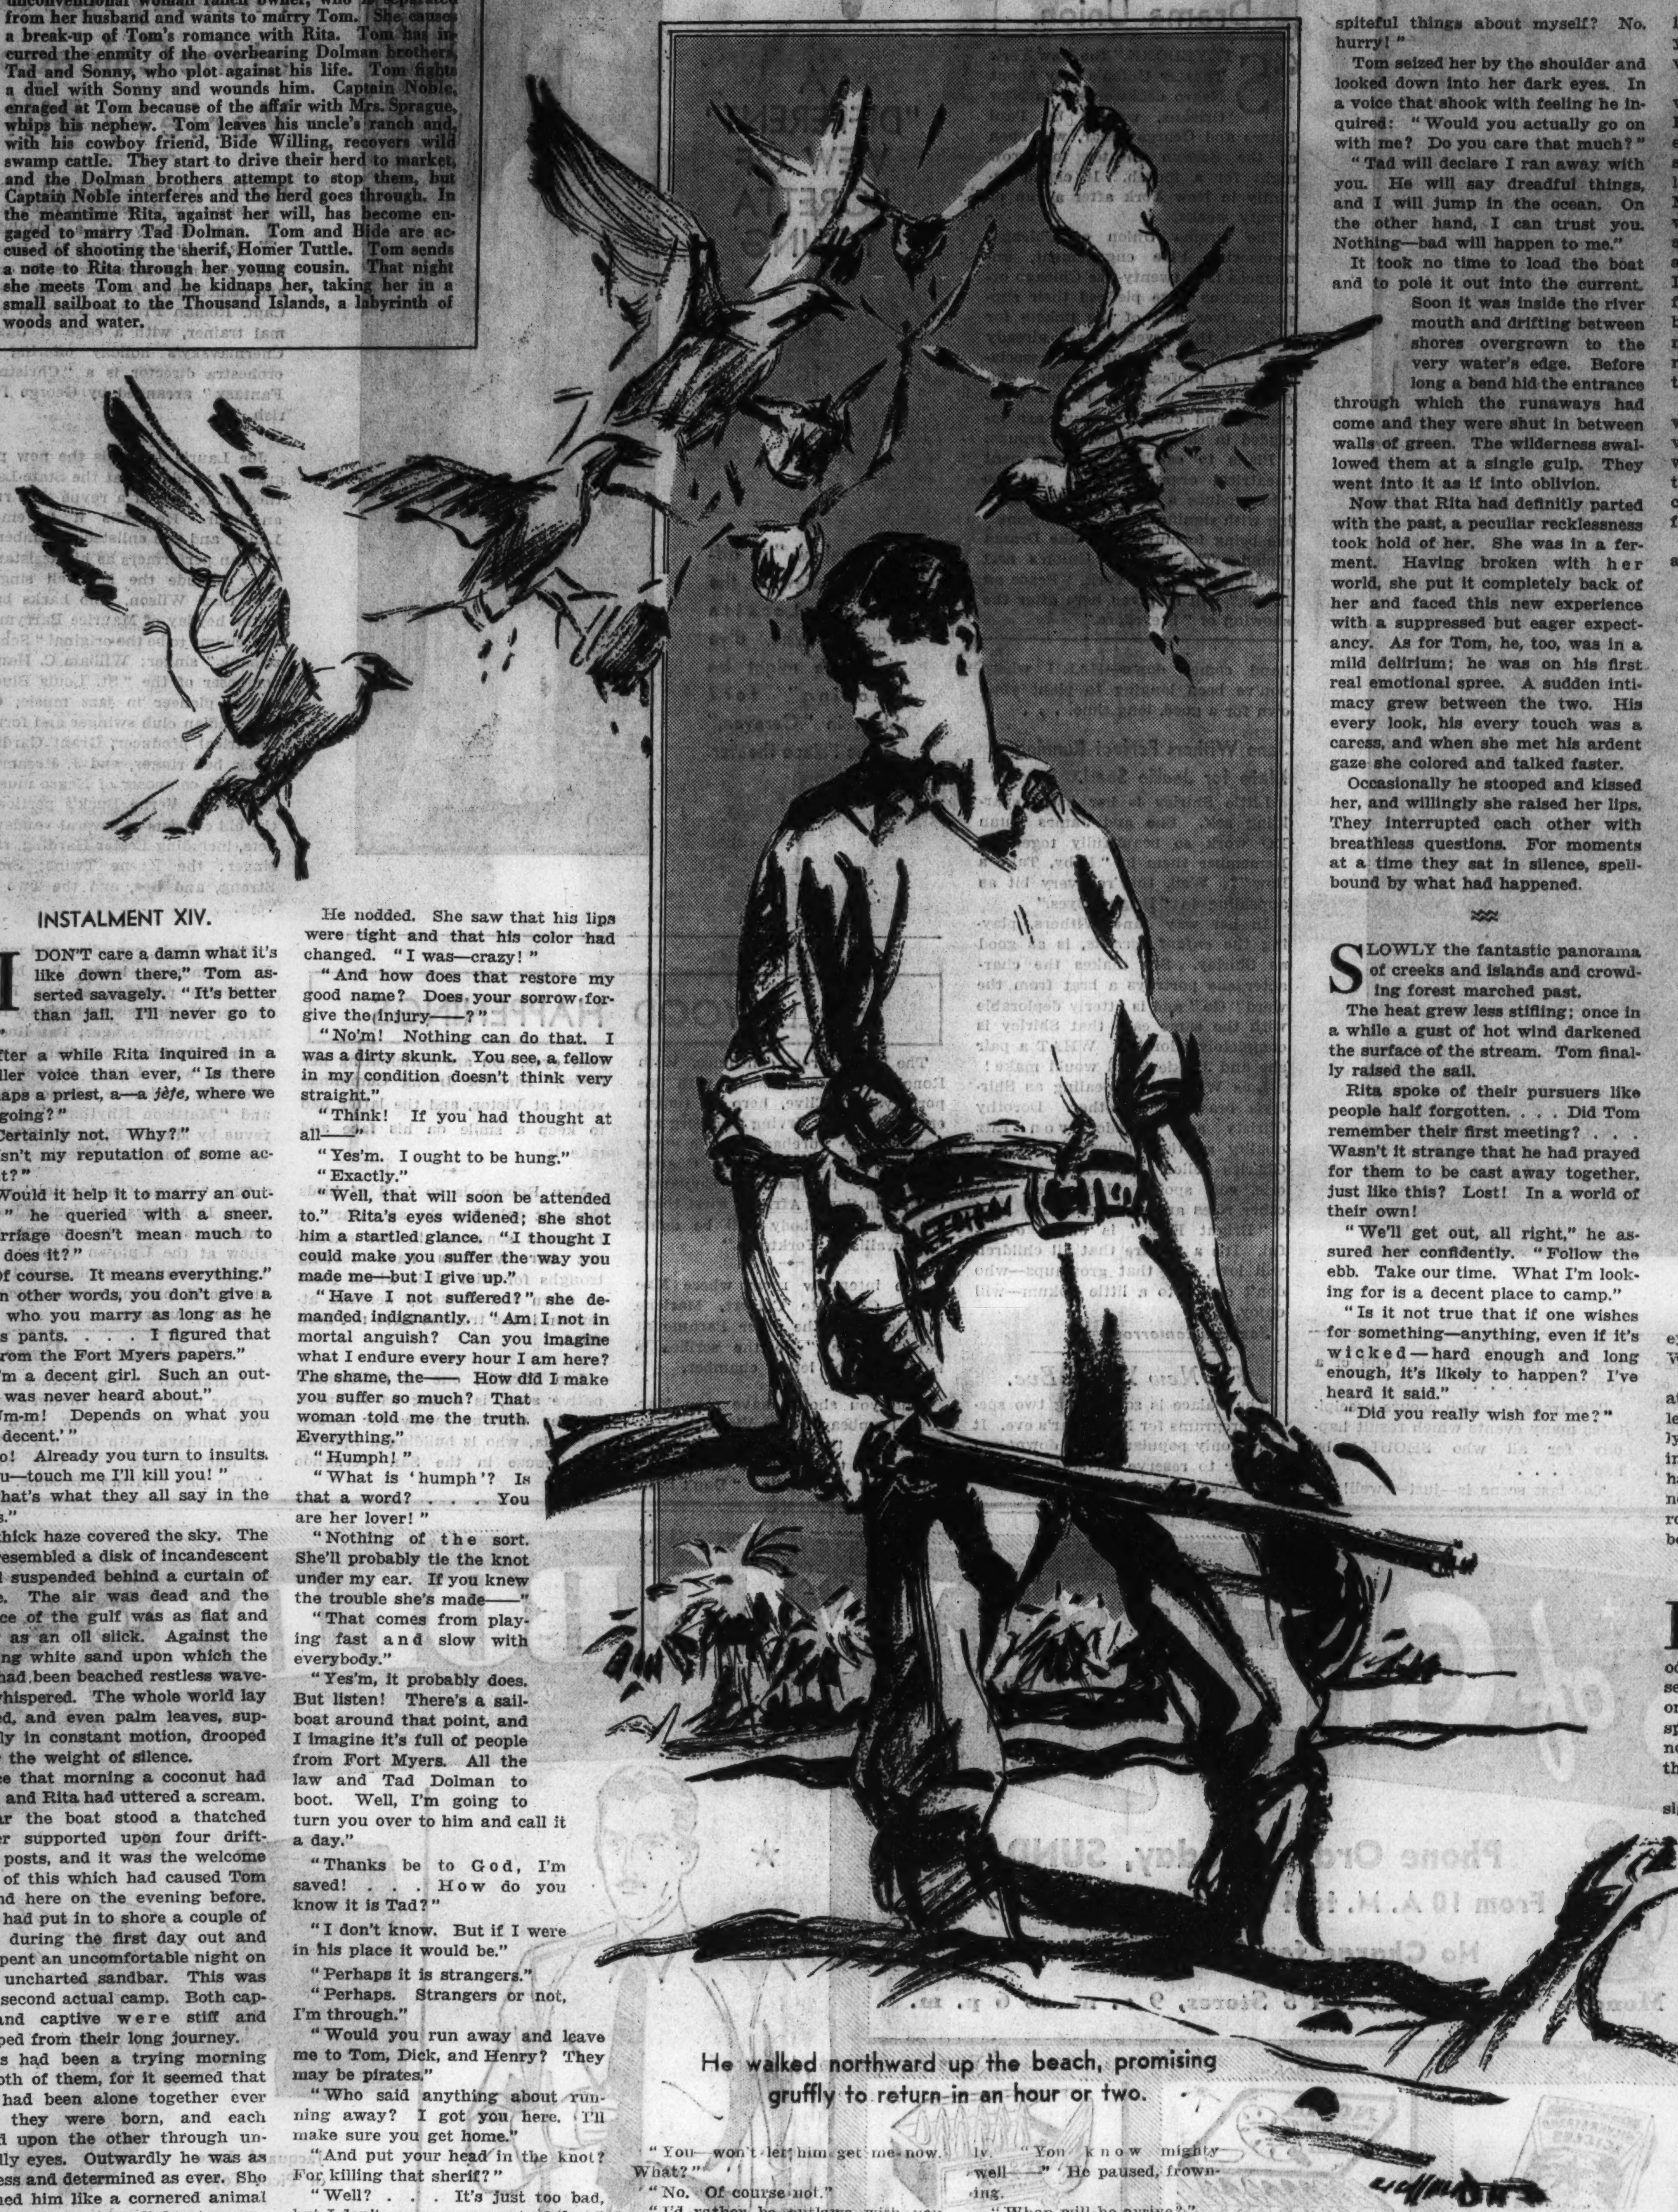
Wild Pastures

By REX BEACH

THE STORY TO DATE

The scene is the wild Florida cattle country in the '90's. Tom Kennedy, youthful Texas cowboy, comes to Fort Myers to work for his uncle, Capt. Ben Noble. Tom falls in love with a beautiful Cuban girl, Rita Mendez, but becomes involved with Mrs. Belle Sprague, unconventional woman ranch owner, who is separated from her husband and wants to marry Tom. She causes a break-up of Tom's romance with Rita. Tom has incurred the enmity of the overbearing Dolman brothers, Tad and Sonny, who plot against his life. Tom fights a duel with Sonny and wounds him. Captain Noble, enraged at Tom because of the affair with Mrs. Sprague, whips his nephew. Tom leaves his uncle's ranch and, with his cowboy friend, Bide Willing, recovers wild swamp cattle. They start to drive their herd to market, and the Dolman brothers attempt to stop them, but Captain Noble interferes and the herd goes through. In the meantime Rita, against her will, has become engaged to marry Tad Dolman. Tom and Bide are accused of shooting the sherif, Homer Tuttle. Tom sends a note to Rita through her young cousin. That night she meets Tom and he kidnaps her, taking her in a small sailboat to the Thousand Islands, a labyrinth of woods and water.



He walked northward up the beach, promising gruffly to return in an hour or two.

INSTALMENT XIV.

"I DON'T care a damn what it's like down there," Tom asserted savagely. "It's better than jail. I'll never go to jail."

After a while Rita inquired in a smaller voice than ever, "Is there perhaps a priest, a—a jefe, where we are going?"

"Certainly not. Why?"

"Isn't my reputation of some account?"

"Would it help it to marry an outlaw?" he queried with a sneer. "Marriage doesn't mean much to you, does it?"

"Of course. It means everything."

"In other words, you don't give a hoot who you marry as long as he wears pants. . . . I figured that out from the Fort Myers papers."

"I'm a decent girl. Such an outrage was never heard about."

"Um-m! Depends on what you call 'decent.'"

"So! Already you turn to insults. If you—touch me I'll kill you!"

"That's what they all say in the books."

A thick haze covered the sky. The sun resembled a disk of incandescent metal suspended behind a curtain of gauze. The air was dead and the surface of the gulf was as flat and shiny as an oil slick. Against the blinding white sand upon which the boat had been beached restless wavelets whispered. The whole world lay hushed, and even palm leaves, supposedly in constant motion, drooped under the weight of silence.

Once that morning a coconut had fallen and Rita had uttered a scream.

Near the boat stood a thatched shelter supported upon four driftwood posts, and it was the welcome sight of this which had caused Tom to land here on the evening before. They had put in to shore a couple of times during the first day out and had spent an uncomfortable night on some uncharted sandbar. This was their second actual camp. Both captor and captive were stiff and cramped from their long journey.

This had been a trying morning for both of them, for it seemed that they had been alone together ever since they were born, and each looked upon the other through unfriendly eyes. Outwardly he was as ruthless and determined as ever. She watched him like a cornered animal and shrank at his slightest move. Inwardly each suffered emotions at once painful and pleasant—a restrained excitement, the sort of anxious exhilaration that comes when danger stalks.

Noon came and went; Tom grew steadily more restless. There was no direction in which his prisoner could escape. The boat, he knew, was too heavy for her to launch, so he left her in the grateful shade of the thatch and walked northward up the beach, promising gruffly to return in an hour or two. She shrugged indifferently and told him he need never come back.

When he had passed out of sight around the distant point she rose, undressed herself, and waded into the shallow water. There was relief in this, and, although she knew she was utterly alone and safe from observation, she nevertheless directed an apprehensive eye in this direction and that. She was as watchful as a timid quail.

* * *

FEELING greatly refreshed by her bath, she emptied the bag in which Miguel had stored his clothing and tried on a pair of duck trousers and a shirt. They fitted well enough. She added some feminine touches, combed her hair, and tried to survey the result in the bright top of a lard bucket. The reflection was dim, but it satisfied her. Her pretty dress, now soiled and sadly in need of attention, she carefully folded up and laid away.

When in due time Tom strode up to the shelter he found a boy awaiting him.

To her surprise, he made no comment upon her changed appearance. He wiped the sweat from his face, flung his rifle aside, and began abruptly:

"This has gone far enough, Miss Rita. I never should have done what I did. I'm sorry."

"At last you have arrived at your senses, eh?"

He nodded. She saw that his lips were tight and that his color had changed. "I was—crazy!"

"And how does that restore my good name? Does your sorrow forgive the injury——?"

"No'm! Nothing can do that. I was a dirty skunk. You see, a fellow in my condition doesn't think very straight."

"Think! If you had thought at all——"

"Yes'm. I ought to be hung."

"Exactly."

"Well, that will soon be attended to." Rita's eyes widened; she shot him a startled glance. "I thought I could make you suffer the way you made me—but I give up."

"Have I not suffered?" she demanded indignantly. "Am I not in mortal anguish? Can you imagine what I endure every hour I am here? The shame, the—— How did I make you suffer so much? That woman told me the truth. Everything."

"Humph!"

"What is 'humph'? Is that a word? . . . You are her lover!"

"Nothing of the sort. She'll probably tie the knot under my ear. If you knew the trouble she's made——"

"That comes from playing fast and slow with everybody."

"Yes'm, it probably does. But listen! There's a sailboat around that point, and I imagine it's full of people from Fort Myers. All the law and Tad Dolman to boot. Well, I'm going to turn you over to him and call it a day."

"Thanks be to God, I'm saved! . . . How do you know it is Tad?"

"I don't know. But if I were in his place it would be."

"Perhaps it is strangers."

"Perhaps. Strangers or not, I'm through."

"Would you run away and leave me to Tom, Dick, and Henry? They may be pirates."

"Who said anything about running away? I got you here. I'll make sure you get home."

"And put your head in the knot? For killing that sherif?"

"Well? . . . It's just too bad, but I don't see any way out of that."

"Probably he was a bad man. Go. Sail away. Leave me. Do I want your blood on my hands?"

* * *

HE SHOOK his head. "I'm sick of the whole thing. I haven't closed my eyes, thinking about what I did to you. I was willing to risk everything just to see you again, just to be near you and—and keep you from marrying—— But I can't go on, loving you like this."

"Loving me? And that Mrs. Sprague, too, I sup-pose? Ha! You couldn't do this outrage on a nice girl if you loved her. How many women do you love, anyhow? Two, three, a dozen, for all I know."

"I never cared for her. Some things—just happen to a man. I've kicked myself a hundred times. That's what started all my bad luck. Uncle Ben whipped me for it, and I took it. He drove me out."

"Is that true? I mean about her?"

"Good Lord! Can't you see?" the man inquired huskily. "O, Miss Rita, I've been in hell every hour since that day you—told me to leave you alone! I couldn't love anybody but you if I tried. And I couldn't hurt you, either."

The girl eyed him curiously for a while before saying gravely: "What a pity this happened! It seems that woman has spoiled your life, and mine, too. Now it is you who shall listen while I speak some truth. Why did I come out of the house in my best hat and dress? At such an hour? Why did I kick my feet so feeble and scream in a whisper? Did you never have the sense to ask that? Idiot! My valise was all packed up, ready to go."

"With—me?"

She nodded vigorously. "Listen further. I never intended to marry that pig-dog."

With a choking cry Tom took the boyish figure in his arms. He kissed her, and she clung to him, quite out of breath.

"You— won't let him get me now. What?"

"No. Of course not."

"I'd rather be outlaws with you than marry Tad. O, a thousand time!"

"You won't have to marry him. I'll get you home somehow."

"If he speaks of it again I'll say: 'Alas! It is too late for that. I'm not the girl I was.' I'll shudder and weep——"

"Stop that!" the man said harshly. "You know mighty well——" He paused, frowning.

"When will he arrive?"

"Depends on the wind."

"Come along, then. Push away the boat. We have no time to waste."

"We can't move in this calm. There isn't a breath. And besides—"

Rita stamped impatiently. "We'll row or—or shove against the bottom with sticks. You think I'll let them catch you? Am I to return and hear spiteful things about myself? No. hurry!"

Tom seized her by the shoulder and looked down into her dark eyes. In a voice that shook with feeling he inquired: "Would you actually go on with me? Do you care that much?"

"Tad will declare I ran away with you. He will say dreadful things, and I will jump in the ocean. On the other hand, I can trust you. Nothing—bad will happen to me."

It took no time to load the boat and to pole it out into the current. Soon it was inside the river mouth and drifting between shores overgrown to the very water's edge. Before long a bend hid the entrance through which the runaways had come and they were shut in between walls of green. The wilderness swallowed them at a single gulp. They went into it as if into oblivion.

Now that Rita had definitly parted with the past, a peculiar recklessness took hold of her. She was in a ferment. Having broken with her world, she put it completely back of her and faced this new experience with a suppressed but eager expectancy. As for Tom, he, too, was in a mild delirium; he was on his first real emotional spree. A sudden intimacy grew between the two. His every look, his every touch was a caress, and when she met his ardent gaze she colored and talked faster.

Occasionally he stooped and kissed her, and willingly she raised her lips. They interrupted each other with breathless questions. For moments at a time they sat in silence, spellbound by what had happened.

* * *

SLOWLY the fantastic panorama of creeks and islands and crowding forest marched past.

The heat grew less stifling; once in a while a gust of hot wind darkened the surface of the stream. Tom finally raised the sail.

Rita spoke of their pursuers like people half forgotten. . . . Did Tom remember their first meeting? . . . Wasn't it strange that he had prayed for them to be cast away together, just like this? Lost! In a world of their own!

"We'll get out, all right," he assured her confidently. "Follow the ebb. Take our time. What I'm looking for is a decent place to camp."

"Is it not true that if one wishes for something—anything, even if it's wicked—hard enough and long enough, it's likely to happen? I've heard it said."

"Did you really wish for me?"

The girl took his face between her hands and looked into it with a hunger that made him dizzy.

"Every day. Every hour."

"And I dreamed about this very thing! Only, of course, I thought it would be a heap different . . . pretty woods. A little shack with lots of wild flowers. . . . But—you're so beautiful it doesn't matter where we are."

"Mind you, I think nothing of what occurs to me. Only your life. Better if we become two savages, forever. Why not? There's nobody to see. You shall teach me to cook. A long time from now people in Fort Myers will hear about a family of white Indios in the Million Islands, all dressed up in the soft skin of wild animals. But no! The girl children I shall dress in garments of white feathers from those lovely tame birds. It's better to be here than to marry Tad Dolman. Yes, and there's no other women at all. That's nice, too."

"There wouldn't be any other woman for me," Tom told her in a voice he scarcely recognized. "But we won't stay here long. I've been trying to remember the map. It can't be so far to Key West. There's food and shelter there."

"I think I like it better here. You are safe in this place."

The man fell silent; he averted his eyes. "Key West is a county seat. We can be married there."

Those birds which Rita had called attention to, egrets and ibis and curlew and herons, were acting peculiarly. They no longer winged their way in flocks or waded the shallows; they had congregated in the swamp and now huddled under the mangrove roots, refusing to fly even when the boat passed close by them.

* * *

EVIDENTLY something impelled them to seek shelter, and Kennedy himself experienced an odd feeling of apprehension. He sensed a change in the air or the barometic pressure. Those gusts of wind spilled themselves with more violence now. At times the boat cut through the water with considerable speed.

It rounded a point finally, and a sight was suddenly revealed which caused the travelers to exclaim in astonishment. Directly ahead of them was a clearing, a house, a plantation! Strangest of all, the house stood upon a natural elevation, the first they had seen. It was a shell mound, of which there are many in the state. Coconut trees leaned drunkenly along the water's edge. Behind them was a cane field, yellowed now by the evening sun into vivid contrast with the rubbery green of the unending mangroves.

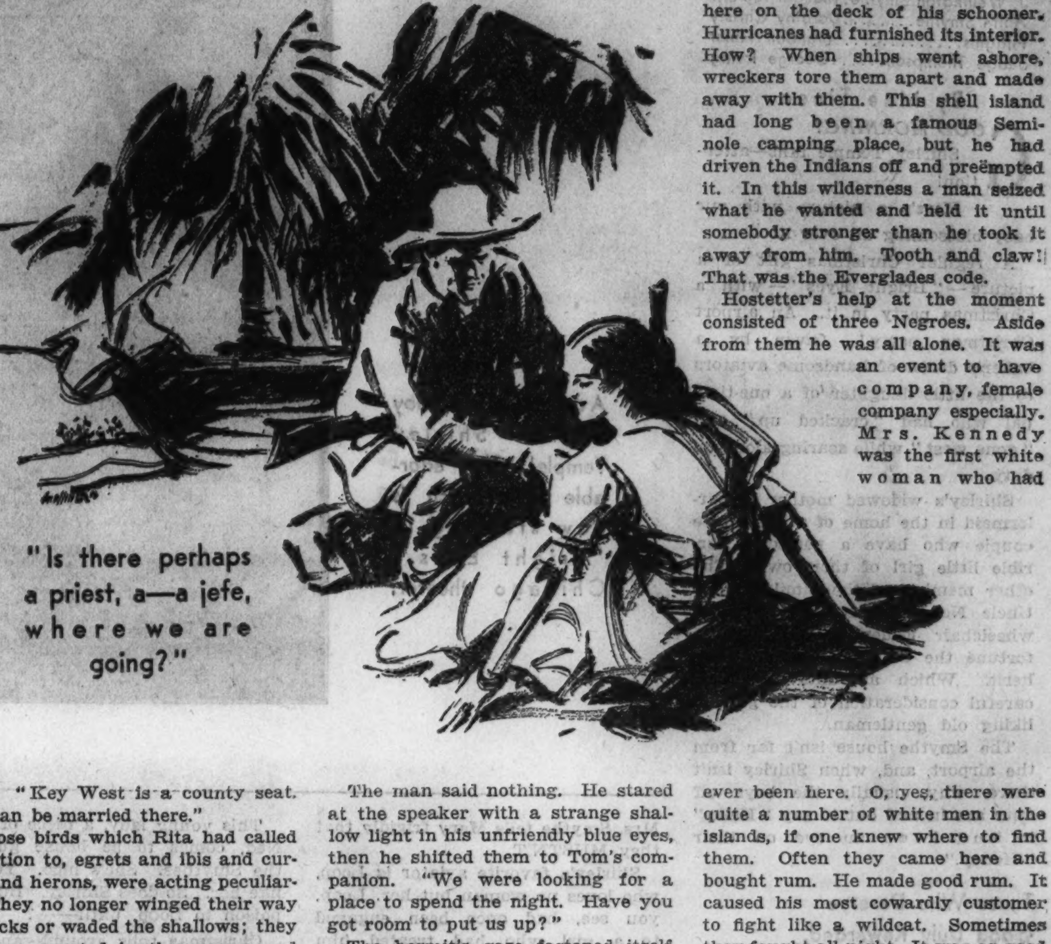
It was a startling sight to the refugees, but it was welcome nevertheless. A tall house with board sides and shingled roof here in this mystic maze of silt! A house with shuttered windows and a stout brick chimney! Near by was a low, ramshackle shed building with a corrugated iron roof, evidently a cane mill.

The premises were occupied, moreover, for at the landing lay a fifty-foot sharpie, some weatherbeaten rowboats, and a Seminole dugout.

A man came into view and stood motionless, paralyzed with amazement, no doubt, at the sight of a strange sail. He was bareheaded. As the newcomers drew closer he became silhouetted against the sky, and they saw that he was bearded and unkempt.

Well, here was luck! Tom lifted his voice. He had the sloop tied when the owner of the place came heavily down the path. He was an enormous person. His beard, once blond, had been faded by the sun. His face was wide and flat, his nose fleshy, and his lips were thick. The garments he wore were scanty—a pair of overalls rolled to the knees, a shirt with half sleeves open at the neck and exposing a hairy chest—but they were clean. Repeated launderings had bleached out their original coloring. The man himself was surprisingly clean, too. Under the tan that lay over him like an Indian make-up his skin was white.

"Evening, mister!" Kennedy called to him. "I reckon we're just about lost."



"Is there perhaps a priest, a—a jefe, where we are going?"

The man said nothing. He stared at the speaker with a strange shallow light in his unfriendly blue eyes, then he shifted them to Tom's companion. "We were looking for a place to spend the night. Have you got room to put us up?"

The hermit's gaze fastened itself upon Rita, clung to her hungrily; his sullen expression changed.

"Room? Yes. It's a big house. Who are you? . . . Why do you come to my place?"

Plainly he was a foreigner, for he spoke with an accent. His voice was harsh, rusty from disuse.

It was Rita to whom the question was addressed, and she answered: "My husband fears the storm. Accidentally we came here, and then—like a miracle your big house appears. Is it perhaps a dream house, señor?" She smiled at the giant and dimpled.

"My name is Kennedy——" Tom began, but the stranger broke in.

"Ja! A storm! Wait until you see! All day the glass drops lower and lower."

"Then I reckon we are in luck."

"Sure! Good luck!" For no apparent reason the man laughed loudly—a braying, empty laugh that startled his hearers. "I'm the only house in miles. The only house. I'm king here. I'm the law. I rule—everything."

"We'd like to put up until morning. Then we'll be pushing along."

"O, no! In the morning—you'll see." Again he neighed. Evidently he was a merry soul. "The hurricane is coming. Don't you feel? It—weighs on you, so!" He pressed two thick, short-fingered hands upon his chest. "I smell it! So do the ants. They come into the house by thousands, and bugs, too. They seek shelter. Well, it's a good, strong house, like those in the old country. Listen! . . . You hear—what? Nothing! Not a bird, not a tree toad. They know. By tomorrow we may all be dead, blown away. But my castle is built to stay. Come! I show you."

"That's fine. We'll get our stuff out and——"

"No! Touch nothing. My niggers do that. They do everything. On this place Hostetter is king."

"Hos——! . . . Is your name Hostetter?"

"Ja! Hostetter. Madame——!" He held out his bulging bare arms and lifted Rita lightly ashore. "It's good you came here."

* * *

HE LED the way up the slope and the others followed. Tom noticed that Hostetter's toes gripped the earth like the toes of a gorilla.

Tom tried to remember what he had heard about this fellow Hostetter. An eccentric. Uncrowned monarch of the 'Glades. When he came to Fort Myers he put on the airs of some visiting potentate. He turned his sugar cane into rum and sold it to whites, blacks, and Indians alike, defying the authorities to stop him. He hired men to work his little plantation, and sometimes they were never again heard of. Instead of paying them off, he killed them, so it was suspected. That was one way to make agriculture pay, even in a place like this. This was "Murder Island"; his house was called the "Murder house."

Nobody actually knew the man; everything was gossip, fantastic and exaggerated, no doubt. But what rotten luck to come here, of all places! Well, Rita must not be alarmed. There was nothing to do except see the adventure through and tell her about Hostetter later.

Evidently the fellow had some time served as a ship's carpenter, for his home was low-ceilinged and heavily beamed, and it was cut up into an unnecessary number of small cabin-like rooms. There were four or five on the ground floor. The inclosed stairway leading to the second floor was narrow and steep. It was fitted with a brass hand rail, salvage, probably, from some wreck. Even the beds were built-in bunks and provided with lockers underneath.

A marine block over the tiny brick fireplace struck the half hours; brass lamps on swivels and screwed into the wall—as if the house sometimes rocked and plunged. Their chimneys shone, their metal was bright. The floors, too, were worn smooth from scrubbing with brush and sand, indicating that the owner had at some period in his life experienced a rigid naval training. This was all the more incongruous because his mind was wholly undisciplined.

* * *

HE SWELLED at the impression his house made; he voiced a naïve pride in it. Every board and timber had been hauled here on the deck of his schooner. Hurricanes had furnished its interior. How? When ships went ashore, wreckers tore them apart and made away with them. This shell island had long been a famous Seminole camping place, but he had driven the Indians off and preëmpted it. In this wilderness a man seized what he wanted and held it until somebody stronger than he took it away from him. Tooth and claw! That was the Everglades code.

Hostetter's help at the moment consisted of three Negroes. Aside from them he was all alone. It was an event to have company, female company especially. Mrs. Kennedy was the first white woman who had ever been here. O, yes, there were quite a number of white men in the islands, if one knew where to find them. Often they came here and bought rum. He made good rum. It caused his most cowardly customer to fight like a wildcat. Sometimes they fought all night. It was as good as a show, really! Hostetter uttered his mirthless, braying laugh once more.

Inasmuch as some of his less fortunate neighbors might seek high ground in advance of the storm, he decided to put his visitors in one of the two upstairs rooms, where they would be assured of privacy. A nice room. Madame would like it.

The stairs creaked under his weight as he led the way thither. His bulk filled the narrow companionway.

Most of his remarks so far had been directed at Rita, and he had all but ignored Tom; having shown the couple to their chamber, he appeared reluctant to leave.

When he had finally gone Rita said:

"What a strange creature! Is he a—robber?"

"I reckon he's something of the sort. They're all pretty tough customers down here."

"I don't like him."

"He's odd. But we're lucky to be here if what he says is true."

"It must be true. I feel so—queer. As if something would happen."

"Not frightened, are you?"

Rita shook her dark head. "With you I fear nothing. Aren't we robbers, also? Hunted people? Did you hear me say 'husband'? It's the first time I ever spoke that word to anybody. It's—thrilling, eh?"

"Yes! And I've been thinking over what you said about Cuba. We can make it somehow."

As Above, So Below

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Look for your birthday or the group in which it appears throughout the following notes—it may be mentioned more than once. Mark it with a pencil wherever you see it, and then pay attention to the counsel given.

By WYNN

THIS week continues good for creative efforts intelligently applied. Avoid self-indulgence and faulty schemes; they are apt to tempt us till Friday this week. Today, tomorrow, and Tuesday: Avoid unnecessary extravagance; combine financial strength and intelligence for those for whom you most care. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday: Favorable for travel, study, advertising, adjustments with relatives, and interests afar. Saturday and next Sunday: Prepare business and occupational plans for the future.

Comfort

People who are in accord with the laws of nature are comfortable; all others are not. And the only way they can change discomfort to comfort is to learn and obey the laws. Sounds rather disturbing—and it is, if we don't want to do it. That's the big point—wanting to do what is necessary to learn and obey nature's laws. If you were born March 14-April 6, April 9-May 1, May 15-June 8, Aug. 26-Sept. 18, or Oct. 21-Nov. 19, you are now in a vibration which permits of progress along these lines toward perfect health and happiness, even if you are not in the best of shape now—all you need is to understand and follow nature's laws for health. Please don't take this as being entirely sarcastic. It really is true.

Success

What some call success seems to destroy men. If prosperity were all there were to it we always could measure success exclusively by money. Money is part of the plot, but not all. Real success, to attempt a definition, is that state enjoyed only by those who are making good on the achievement of an expanding ideal. Keep your target sufficiently far away to insure your constant effort. Adjust your sights, if necessary, friends who were born Oct. 11-Nov. 14, Feb. 5-13, April 26-May 4, Aug. 9-18. Your birthdays are here included, Norma Shearer, Dr. Hugo Eckener, Cecil B. De Mille, Bert Lahr, Ethel Barrymore, Edna Ferber, and Mae West.

Super Self-Control

It is one kind of self-control to refuse to pull the trigger, but it is super self-control when we don't even want to do it. And this applies to everything that is negative in the emotional and intellectual departments. Watch this point now and for the coming weeks if you were born Aug. 9-September-Oct. 11, Jan. 16-Feb. 21, or March 19-April 17.

(This does not suggest, however, that others also may not profit by the same principle. Grasp it as your own if it has your name on it.)

Looking Up

Most of us want to get to the top, but few of us act as though we really expect to get there. If we did, we would not do some of the things we do—for when the top is reached we are visible from all sides and from all angles. Occupational progress toward higher positions can now be made by those born Jan. 10-Feb. 9, April 17-May 19, June 20-July 20, and Nov. 10-December-Jan. 5, if intelligent planning and effort are applied to the problems.

Gas, headaches, and sluggishness all gone!

●For 20 years and more I've been compelled to take laxatives, so that you can see I've taken quite a number of different kinds. After my system became accustomed to any certain kind its effectiveness seemed to cease—back came the headaches, gas, and the dopey feeling. Then I tried FEEN-A-MINT—three years ago. It worked like magic—and what's more it still works like magic. I am now living again! As easy to take as chewing gum and as pleasant.

Does better job because you chew it

A typical relief story—our files are packed with voluntary letters about FEEN-A-MINT. It does a better job because you must chew it—and chewing spreads the laxative evenly through the system so that you get more complete relief. The poisons go out of your system with no violent action, no cramps or binding afterwards. If you try FEEN-A-MINT you'll join the 15 million who have found it the best way to deal with constipation. 15 and 25¢ at drug stores.

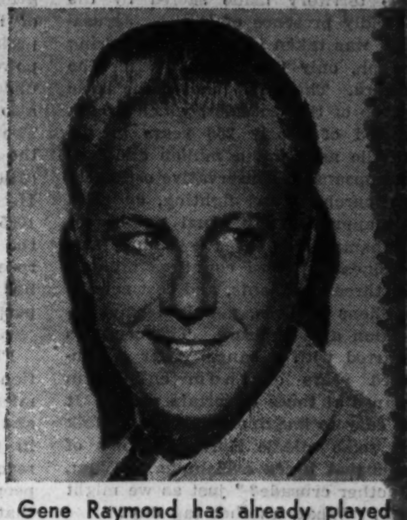
Christmas Day in Hollywood

There's going to be a big party at Helen Twelvetrees' home. It's for her two-year-old son Jackie, and all the relatives will be there.

The little girl wearing a little curl in the middle of her noodle is Baby Carol Young, and she plans to spend Christmas at home with her fond parents—the Robert Youngs.

Jean Parker, who plans a quiet home holiday, painted all her Christmas cards herself!

This y'ar Mr. Robert Montgomery is one of those Yosemite-parking with Clark Gable.



Gene Raymond has already played Santa Claus to studio employes and treated his mother and brother to holiday vacation tickets. He chooses and wraps his presents all by himself.

Here be the Richard Arlens and the Bing Crosbys. These Happily Marrieds and What the Stork Brought will make Christmas hey hey together.

Clark Gable looks pretty happy for himself, doesn't he? An out-of-door Christmas at Yosemite park for him!

Ronald Colman plans an "altitude" Christmas. He'll spend it with friends in his mountain cabin at Arrowhead.

Yule Plans of Stars

By MAE TINEE

NOT a cynic, apparently, in the whole carload of Hollywoodians. To a man and a baby they believe in Santa Claus!

AND prepare for him. Not over the telephone. Not in cafes. But by hand—and in homes. Gifts are selected and wrapped by their donors, "personal." Relatives get together over real old-fashioned turkey dinners and the Christmas dawn resounds with the sort of squeals that the world over announce that small pajamaed figures have accomplished the Great Discovery that makes memories of childhood great.

The Dick Arlens and Bing Crosbys live opposite each other at Toluca Lake, a pretty suburb of Hollywood. Dick and Bing, with their respective wives, Jobyna Ralston and Dixie Lee, and their families, consisting of Richard Arlen Jr., the Crosby twins, and their big brother, plan to spend the day together. For a long time a friendly argument has been under way between the clans.

The Arlens would like the Crosbys to come over to THEIR house first thing in the morning to see tree and gifts—and the Crosbys vice versa. Neither family, you see, wanting to be the one that has to get up and dress early. We'll be able to tell you later—mebbe—how the affair was settled.

⁂

● Fredric March and Florence Eldredge, with their two adopted babies, plan a quiet day in their new home, with tree and fixin's. After the youngsters have gone to bed mamma and papa will hold open house for their friends.

There will be five trees in Loretta Young's home—a big one in the living room and in each bedroom a tiny one for decoration. In the morning Miss Young, with her mother and her sisters, Polly Ann, Sally Blane, and Georgiana, will go to early mass. Friends are expected to call during the afternoon.

For Maurice Chevalier—a French Christmas at home. He will entertain friends during the day and, in the evening, join others in a merry round of Christmas calls.

Florence Rice, daughter of Grantland Rice, is one happy girl! In the first place, she's well again after a long illness. (Note her and the nice work she does in "Fugitive Lady.) In the SECOND place, her dad will be in Hollywood to spend Christmas with his child. All of which makes Mr. Rice not so sad, either.

And, speaking of family reunions, Jack Holt's all steamed up on account of his son Tim will be home for the holidays from Culver Military academy. It's been the boy's first time away from home—and the first father and son have been separated. Christmas is to be a big day—and early next morning Jack and Tim are going duck hunting.

Stockings at the fireplace,
Carols in the air,
Holly wreathing windows,
Smiles erasing care,
Early treks to churches,
Friendly feasts in homes—
Hollywood goes "just folks"
Whene'er Christmas comes.

Walter Connolly will spend Christmas in New York with his wife, Nedda Harrington, and their small daughter.

Doris Kenyon will hold open house all day at her Brentwood estate. There will be cheer of this, that, and the other sort for friends who drop in from 11 o'clock in the morning—on.

A big family party is planned by Norma Shearer and her husband, Irving Thalberg. There will be an early family dinner at their Santa Monica home, to which all the Shearers and the Thalbergs have been invited. The dinner hour is early so that Irving Thalberg Jr. and his two little cousins, children of Norma's sister Athole, may be part of the gay gathering.

⁂

● Mary Brian and her boy friends plan to go a-croonin'. They'll sing carols at the doors of all their friends, ending up at the Stuart Erwins' for a midnight supper. On Christmas day Mary, her mother and brother will dine at Dick Powell's new home with Dick's father and mother, who are visiting their white-haired boy.

A week before Christmas Louise Fazenda (Mrs. Hal Wallis) always goes a-shopping. And she's right there in the kitchen when the blanching of almonds, chopping of citron, and seeding of raisins is going on. When a luscious brown turkey or a cake that melts in your mouth appears on Louise's Christmas dinner table—everybody knows just why one's luscious and the other melts. She's a great gift giver—and wraps and labels all her presents herself. This year will see her at Palm Springs.

And you'd never guess—or yes, probably you WOULD—the kick Wallace Beery gets out of playing Santa to his small daughter, Carol Ann. This year, because of Mrs. Beery's delicate health, Christmas will be spent at the town house instead of the mountain ranch. The afternoon will be given over to a huge party—with many toys and eats—for the neighborhood kids.

Double shifts of workmen are laboring on William Powell's new home—because he hopes to have a house-warming there on Christmas day. . . . Joan Crawford will entertain her mother and her brother on Christmas, as she always does. Friends are expected to call in the afternoon and evening, but her morning is usually given over to visiting the patients in her ward at a local hospital.

Joel McCrea and his practically brand new wife, Frances Dee, plan a cheery Yuletide party at their California ranch. Eighteen relatives and friends, including six children to whom Joel will appear as St. Nick, will spend several days with the young pair. Stockings will be hung over the fireplace Christmas eve, and next day dinner will be served in front of a huge window through which the guests will gaze upon real, live Christmas trees growing just outside.

Mr. and Mrs. John Boles will keep open house. . . . Warner Baxter will celebrate with a family tree and gathering. . . . James Dunn will have dinner at home with his mother. . . . Spencer Tracy expects to be in hell—because he and his company will be in the midst of shooting the inferno sequence for "Dante's Inferno."

Ben Lyons and Bebe Daniels, on tour, will fly home to spend Christmas with their little daughter, Barbara Beebe.

⁂

● And WHAT is that big little star, Miss Shirley Temple, going to do? Well—Miss Temple expects to spend Christmas with her family at Santa Monica. The family consists of father, mother, grandmother, and two elder brothers. You know about Shirley and what she wanted for Christmas, don't you? Well—in case you haven't heard——

Winfield Sheehan of Fox called her into his office the other day, sat her upon his desk, and waggled a finger at her.

"Now, Shirley," he said, "I've called you in here to consult with you on a VERY important matter."

"Yes, Mr. Sheehan," Shirley replied gravely in her very best grownup manner.

"Well," said Mr. Sheehan, "I'm up a tree about what to give a little girl for Christmas. I thought you might be able to suggest something that she'd rather have more than anything else in the whole world. Now, what would you say she'd like?"

"How big is the little girl?" asked Shirley.

"Just as big as you."

"Well," Shirley said, "if she's just as big as me, I think I know what she would like."

"Yes, Shirley?"

"A washboard," said Shirley.

Mr. Sheehan's smile collapsed. So did he—in a chair.

"A WASHBOARD! Why would YOU like a washboard?"

"I was thinking about me," said Miss Temple demurely.

So one of Shirley's presents will be a washboard. And we see where all the dolls in the Shirley Temple family are going to be mighty spick-and-span in the future.

⁂

● This will be the first holiday season that Evelyn Laye has spent away from London and will mark the first interruption in her work on "The Night Is Young" since production was started on the picture.

"I'm one of those people who believe Christmas should be spent at home," Miss Laye said to a friend, "and I'm not going to stir from the house all day. But I'm anticipating calls from friends and looking forward to them."

(And maybe you won't believe it, BUT—that bachelor opera singer, movie actor, personal-appearancer, Mr. Ramon Novarro, has hopefully strung SOCKS all along the fireside of his unwifed residence!) Tales out of school? O, well, this is Christmas time! Who's afraid? Seriously, though, Mr. Novarro does take Christmas very seriously, and presides over a family reunion which numbers about twenty-five members. The day is one of feasting and prayer until evening, when the star throws open his doors to his friends.

Jean Harlow will follow a quiet party in honor of her parents with a tour of the homes of other Hollywood folk. . . . Jackie Cooper has more fun than anybody. BECAUSE—on Christmas all food bars are down for him and he can eat his fill—fall the tummy aches where they may!

And so it goes—the Hollywood movie colony is just one big, happy family—when Christmas rolls along.

Tragic Trails of Soldiers of Cross

Christmas Story of Crusades

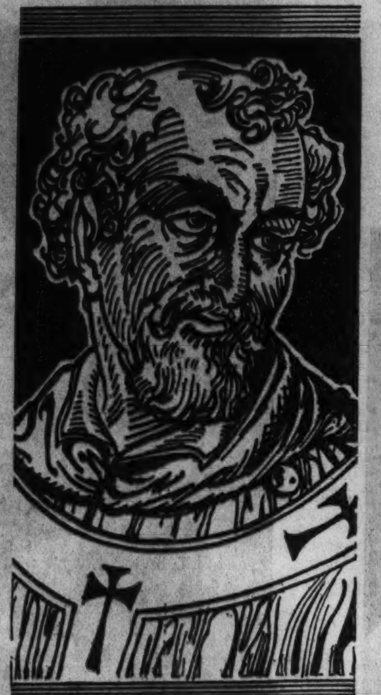
A brief review here of the crusades, those peculiar and world-shaking religious manifestations of medieval times, is intended to reveal not the extravagance of religious enthusiasm of the crusaders, but rather to point out by contrast the sound common sense of all men of today.

* * *

No attempt should be made, however, to judge the crusaders by modern standards. They lived when a thick fog of ignorance and superstition still enveloped the world. Dragons were real to them, not legendary. When they lived the fates of men were settled by the ordeal of fire or the nod of a despot's head. Witches were everywhere. The favored of men dwelt in moated castles; common people were no better than cattle of the fields. The feudal system was a phenomenon of that period of man's emergence from savagery.



Pope Urban II.

Little wonder that religion affected those people of the middle ages as it never had affected people before and never has affected them since. If today we call the crusades insanely stupid and brutal undertakings we are ignoring the mental processes as well as the hearts and souls of the crusaders.

Provocation back of those great armed pilgrimages, aimed in the main at the holy city of Jerusalem, as almost everyone knows, was the overrunning by Mohammedans of the territory made sacred by the worldly presence of Christ. Jerusalem was taken by Omar, conquering caliph, only fifteen years after the hegira. Then was planted the basic cause of the crusades, which over a period of nearly 200 years in the middle ages put a million and half Europeans (a conservative estimate) to marching and fighting, engulfed an approximately equal number of Mohammedans in the same fatal business, affected countless millions in three continents, and cost several millions of lives, mainly from starvation and exposure. The crusades started with a bang. After a hundred years of them enthusiasm waned at times in certain places. It is easy to imagine today honest folk of some middle European town of medieval times exclaiming, "What, another crusade?" just as we might say, "What, another tag day?"

* * *

Authorities disagree as to the number of crusades, some holding to seven, others eight, and still others nine. It all depends upon how historians divide them, for as a matter of fact there was almost a continuous stream of crusades throughout two centuries. Any leader who wanted to popularize himself in those days had only to announce a crusade and he was sure of enrolling followers. It was the thing to do. Thousands upon thousands enrolled—took the cross and thus became crusaders—because of a burning zeal for Christianity. There were others, such as debtors, criminals, and henpecked husbands, who undoubtedly enlisted to get away from home, or, in the case of the two first named classes, to reinstate themselves in the eyes of men as soldiers of the cross. Still others probably joined up for the mere desire of adventure.

First Crusade—1096-1099

Immediate causes of the First crusade, which originated in France, were the appeal from Alexius, emperor of the eastern empire, for help in withstanding the increasing power of the Mohammedans, who for years had been persecuting Christian pilgrims to Jerusalem, and the desire of Pope Urban II. to strength his position in Italy by extending the power of the church over lands under Mohammedan rule. There also were other important causes. The spark that kindled the flame of the crusade, however, was the inspirational sermon preached by Urban II. at Clermont, France, Nov. 26, 1095. The exhortations of one Peter the Hermit, a wild-eyed zealot who rode about France on an ass, also had much to do with stirring up the people to a high pitch of excitement.

First of the armies to get into motion were the so-called people's armies, unorganized mobs of peasants and the like, who, poorly clothed and in the main unarmed, set out to reach the Holy Land. Five of these people's armies in all, the first two, that of Fulcher and that of Gottschalk, got as far as Hungary, where, clashing with the Magyar-speaking Hungarians, people quite alien to them, they were destroyed. The third army, under William the Carpenter, exploded prematurely with religious zeal in the Rhineland, butchered 10,000 Jews there, tramped into Hungary, and was scattered. The remaining two of the people's armies, that of Peter the Hermit and that of Walter the Penniless, finally reached Constantinople, where they committed so many excesses that they were bundled across the Bosporus by Alexius, only to become easy prey of the Seljuk Turks, who slaughtered them almost to a man and left their bleaching bones to become trail marks for the later crusaders to follow. The total number of crusaders in these five armies is variously estimated from a million to 300,000. Conservative of the historians accept the last-named figure.

Slower to start than the crusading peasants were armies organized by independent princes and other leaders (never were the crusades truly national undertakings). These armies, under Godfrey of Bouillon and his brother Baldwin, Raymond of Toulouse and Bishop Adhemar, Bohemond of Otranto and his nephew Tancred, Robert of Flanders and Hugh of Vermandois, and others, reached Constantinople by various routes, all of which, along with other routes taken by crusaders, are shown in the map on page one of this section, and in the spring of 1097 combined to form a force of 150,000 men (a conservative estimate).

* * *

This united army under the crusading princes crossed into Asia Minor and after a month's siege captured the fortified city of Nicæa on June 18, 1097. Alexius took charge of the captured city. On July 1 the crusading army defeated the Moslems at Dorylæum. Many cities, including Tarsus, were taken, and before long the crusade leaders were quarreling among themselves. Principalities were set up and battles fought among the crusaders for the possession of them. Antioch was besieged from Oct. 21, 1097, to June 3, 1098, when it was taken from the Mohammedans by Bohemond. The victors in turn were compelled then to stand a siege. Raymond's army besieged Acre. Finally Godfrey prevailed upon several of the discordant factions to unite for a march on Jerusalem.

The city of the holy sepulcher was taken on July 15, 1099, after a siege of little more than a month. Its inhabitants, including a garrison of 1,000, were put to the sword in a wholesale massacre in which one figure stood out in a different light than all the rest—Raymond of Toulouse extended mercy to those who cried for it. Thus came to an end the First crusade. The Latin kingdom of Jerusalem was established in Palestine, with Godfrey not king, but "advocate of the holy sepulcher." Exactly how many of the crusaders ever returned home is not recorded in history. We have only the statement that the First crusade cost the lives of more than a million people.

Second Crusade—1147-1149

Capture of Edessa by the Turks in 1144 was the cause of the Second crusade. Louis VII. of France and Conrad III. of Germany were its principal leaders, and the total of their two armies is estimated to have been 420,000 men.

The army of Conrad swept into Asia Minor first after a hazardous march from Germany. It was put to flight by the Mohammedans at Dorylæum in October, 1147, losing a majority of its soldiers. Louis VII. and his followers appeared on the scene later. This army, too, had been greatly reduced in numbers. Conrad returned with his men to Constantinople and sailed by sea to Acre. Louis led his men southward overland along the western shore of Asia Minor. Joining forces, the two armies and an army under Baldwin III., king of Jerusalem, laid siege to the walled city of Damascus. The vizier of Damascus, better as a schemer than a fighter, was able to sow seeds of jealousy among the besiegers, and four days after the first attack on the city the siege was lifted. The Second crusade thus collapsed on July 28, 1148. Total cost of lives of that undertaking, including the hundreds of thousands of camp followers and others who perished from exposure and starvation, has been placed at one million.

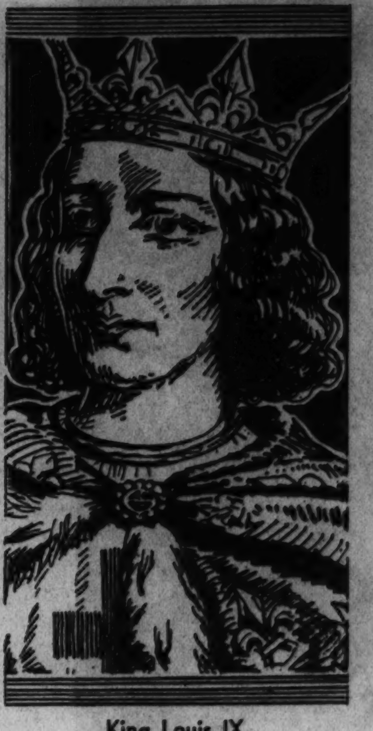
Third Crusade—1189-1192

Cause of the Third crusade was a counter crusade or holy war conducted by the Mohammedans. On Oct. 2, 1187, Saladin, Kurdish adventurer and ruler of Egypt, captured Jerusalem. This act set Europe aflame. Well organized forces totaling, according to estimates, at least 175,000 men were put under way with the intention of recapturing the Holy city. Principal leaders of this crusade were Frederick I. of Germany, Philip II. (Philip Augustus) of France, and Richard I. (the Lion-Hearted) of England. The first started with an army from Ratisbon in May, 1189. The second, at the head of an army, started from Vezelay in 1190, his fleet, a separate expedition, entering the Mediterranean after a voyage from British waters. The third, commanding another force, started from Lyons. Frederick, marching all the way overland, finally reached Armenia, where he died in June, 1190. Philip II. and Richard I. passed the winter of 1190-1191 in Sicily. Continuing on by sea, they finally reached Acre, Richard pausing on the way to conquer Cyprus.

The remnants of the German army, which started out 100,000 strong and had dwindled to fewer than 1,000, joined the French and English before Acre. That city surrendered to the crusaders July 12, 1191. Its capture was the main result of the crusade. Richard, however, remained in the Holy Land for a while, concluding a truce with Saladin by which a strip of land on the coast from Joppa to Acre was given to the Christians, and pilgrimages to the holy places were allowed. The Third crusade was the one especially marked by chivalry, though the proportion of dead as its result was almost as high as those of the earlier crusades.

Fourth Crusade—1202-1204

Desire for commercial expansion can be said to have brought on the Fourth crusade. Christians and Mohammedans were getting along in a friendly manner, the last a good customer of the first, when western Europeans became obsessed with the wish to control Constantinople, gateway to the south and the east. Pope Innocent III. at the same time preached a crusade against Egypt to curb the power of the Saracens, and one Fulk of Neuilly stirred up enthusiasm in France much as Peter the Hermit had done before the First crusade.



King Louis IX.

French barons undertook to raise an army. Venice undertook to transport it across the seas. The Fourth crusade finally was under way, a force of 33,500 sailing from Venice to capture Zara in November, 1202. The expedition, despite the pope's plans, was diverted to Constantinople. In April, 1204, Constantinople was stormed and taken, and in May, Baldwin of Flanders became its first Latin emperor. Frankly, the Fourth crusade was an attack on the Byzantine empire.

Children's Crusade—1212

Between the Fourth and the Fifth crusades were several abortive attempts to stir up new marches on Jerusalem, notable among them being the Children's crusade, launched in France by a shepherd boy named Stephen and in Germany by a lad named Nicholas.

Stephen led a mob of 30,000 barefoot children to Marseilles, promising to conduct them to the Holy Land. At the seaport nearly all of the misguided children were kidnaped and sold into slavery in Egypt. Nicholas, starting from Cologne, led his army of 20,000 children into Italy, where it vanished entirely. Slavery or death for 50,000 boys and girls was the only result of that crusade.

Fifth Crusade—1218-1221

The Fifth crusade had as its starting point the city of Acre. Its original leader was John of Brienne, king of Jerusalem; its ultimate leader, the cardinal legate Pelagius. The crusaders moved to Damietta, in the delta of the Nile in Egypt, which city they captured near the end of 1219 after a siege. Waiting through 1220 for Frederick II. of Germany, who failed to fulfill his promise to appear, the crusaders in 1221 began a march on Cairo. Confronted by a strong force of Mohammedans, Pelagius and his army were driven back.

In August, 1221, the crusade leader made a treaty with the enemy whereby he obtained an unmolested retreat and the surrender of the holy cross at the price of the return of Damietta. The crusaders evacuated Egypt, thus ending the Fifth crusade. Histories are strangely lacking in estimates as to the number of men involved in the undertaking.

Sixth Crusade—1228-1229

Unique among the crusades was the Sixth, in that it contained no single hostile act toward the followers of Islam. Frederick II. of Germany, who because of his marriage with the daughter of John of Brienne had assumed the title of king of Jerusalem, was the leader of the Sixth crusade.

He had made a vow to conduct a crusade, put off action so long that Pope Gregory IX. excommunicated him, but finally sailed from Brindisi in the summer of 1228 with a force estimated at 200,000. After stopping at several points, he put in at Acre. By the treaty concluded Feb. 18, 1229, with the sultan of Egypt, which was to last ten years, he gained possession for the Christians of Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Nazareth, and a small amount of territory. He crowned himself king of Jerusalem in the church of the sepulcher.

Seventh Crusade—1248-1254

The Christians lost Jerusalem in 1244, and Louis IX. of France, a devout Christian and a man of noble sentiments, decided to lead a new crusade, the Seventh. He sailed in 1248 from Aigues Mortes with his three brothers and a force said at that time to number 139,000 warriors, but which historians have estimated to number about 50,000. After wintering in Cyprus he directed his army in the spring of 1249 against Egypt.

Damietta was captured and a march on Cairo begun. But, as in the advance by the army of Pelagius, the soldiers of the cross under Louis IX. found the Mohammedan forces too strong for them. They were thrown into rout and Louis was captured. After paying a heavy ransom and promising to surrender Damietta the king was released. By May, 1250, he was in Acre, having abandoned the Egyptian undertaking.

Louis IX. remained in the Holy Land four years in an attempt to reëstablish the kingdom of Jerusalem. Failing in this, he returned to France in 1254. Of his gallant army of 50,000 it is not related in history just how many returned to their homeland.

Eighth Crusade—1270

Eighth and last of the crusades also was led by Louis IX. Sailing from Aigues Mortes at the head of an army estimated at 36,000, he struck out for Africa in the hope of converting the bey of Tunis to Christianity. He died of plague in Tunis in August, 1270, shortly after his arrival there. A majority of his soldiers were claimed by the same dread disease.

The Eighth crusade was over except for a treaty concluded with the bey by Charles, brother of Louis, and a futile gesture by Prince Edward of England, who arrived too late to do anything but conduct a little crusade of his own to Acre. Edward got back to England in 1272, the last of the western crusaders.

Twenty-eight years after his death Louis IX. was canonized at Rome.

Scrambled Metals a Scientific Chef d'Oeuvre

Thousands of Alloys Fill Industrial Needs

By Thomas M. Beck

MAN, it is generally conceded, has made considerable progress during the last five or ten thousand years, in spite of what the skeptics say. And no small part of this advance has been due to the fact that he has invented tools or machines which, by utilizing the surplus energy of nature, have relieved him from a lot of back-breaking labor and left him free to engage in contract bridge, the investigation of subatomic phenomena, and other activities characteristic of a fuller life.

Now, the machines that man uses are made of many different materials, the most important of which are metals. The various metals have many properties in common that make them almost perfect materials for many kinds of tools. They are hard, strong, not easily corroded, and light in weight, considering their strength. For example, we want a very high-melting metal for electric light filaments, and a low-melting one for type metal. We need low electrical resistance for the transmission of electric power, and high resistance (but not too high) for the heating elements in electric toasters. Cutting tools must be made from a hard metal, while metallic foils require a soft one.

So it would appear that for these myriads of uses we need a few thousand different metals. Unfortunately, the Creator has not seen fit to supply us so plentifully. There are only about seventy different metallic elements, and of these only about twenty can be said, by any stretch of imagination, to be plentiful enough to supply human needs. And of these twenty, none has properties that fit it for more than a very few of our needs. Consequently it has been necessary for the metallurgists to invent new metals, known as alloys, by making various mixtures of the metals with which we are endowed.

The first step in this direction was made back in prehistoric times, just as the stone age was drawing to a close. Our distant ancestors in those days were accustomed to make knives and axes out of flint in order that they might slay wild beasts and also their fellow men. Now, it is a tedious process to put a cutting edge on a piece of flint, and no doubt our ancestors frequently wished that they could make their cutlery out of the more easily workable copper or tin that they had available; but unfortunately these two metals were too soft to hold a cutting edge. It happened one day, however, that some neolithic genius discovered that if nine parts of copper and one part of tin were melted together the resulting alloy, bronze, was hard enough to make into knives harder than anything previously known. And from this notable but unrecorded event has sprung much of that which we now call civilization.

* * *

Most alloys are something more than just a mixture of metals. Only a very few, such as the gold-silver alloys, form mixtures the properties of which are an average of those of the two components according to their relative proportions. Such a simple alloy, which really is a solid solution, appears under the microscope to be a single pure substance. By far the greater number of alloys, however, are much more complex. Certain metals can combine with one another chemically to form compounds strikingly different from the original components. And even when no such compounds are formed, the presence of an alloying metal may result in the formation of new types of metallic crystals, just as the ice frozen from a mixture of water and alcohol consists of small particles rather than a solid cake.

Most alloys, when examined under a microscope, seem to be either a tightly interlocked mass of different crystalline types or else a number of separate particles set in a metallic matrix. Obviously the nature of this physical structure, apart from the chemical composition, is a big factor in determining certain properties of the alloy, such as strength and hardness, just as plaster is strengthened by having some fibrous material with it.

It can be seen readily that, since the nature of these mixed metallic crystals can be changed by such factors as temperature and mechanical stress, most alloys cannot be described simply in terms of the proportions of constituent metals. We must also know something about the manner in which they were made. For example, if a molten mixture of 98.5 per cent iron and 1.5 per cent carbon is allowed to cool slowly—is annealed—it first forms on solidification a solid solution. As the temperature falls this alloy passes through a number of physical and chemical changes, finally forming, at low red heat, a steel that is tough and crystaline but relatively soft. If, however, the molten alloy is cooled suddenly, or quenched, the original solid solution does not have time to pass through these other changes, and a hard but rather brittle steel is obtained. This is the basis of the tempering of steel.

Since there are about five thousand different alloys that are at least good enough to have been patented, limitation of space forbids a detailed description of each of them. A brief description can be given, however, of some of the recent advances in the invention of alloys that long have been sought for the reason of three different metallic properties. These properties are resistance to corrosion, hardness, and lightness.

As to the first of these, there long have been known certain metals, such as gold or platinum, that are remarkably resistant to most types of chemical action. Unfortunately, all of these inactive metals are either too expensive or else too hard to work up into useful articles. And the most useful of metals, iron (or its alloy, steel), rusts away with disheartening rapidity. But since this rusting, or corrosion, takes place only at the surface of the metal, it long has been a practice to cover exposed iron surfaces with a layer of some more resistant substance. These protective coatings may be metals, such as tin, zinc, nickel, or chromium, or nonmetallic materials, such as paint or enamel.

Unfortunately, these coatings have a bad habit of wearing off. To remedy this defect a great amount of research was devoted to discovering some way of inactivating the cheaper but more reactive metals against corrosion. The result has been the development of the many stainless alloys now on the market.

A stainless steel is a steel (iron-carbon alloy) that has been further alloyed with chromium and nickel. In some cases other metals, notably silicon, molybdenum, or tungsten, are used along with these two. The chromium content may vary from 5 to 25 per cent, depending upon the degree of corrosion resistance desired. A typical steel of this type contains about 75 per cent iron, 17 per cent chromium, 8 per cent nickel, and .2 per cent carbon. With higher chromium contents, steels have been obtained that are almost completely unaffected by even such powerful chemicals as nitric acid.

Although the matter of heat treatment still remains one of the big factors in hardening steels, nevertheless there have been developed a number of very important alloys that show an unusual degree of hardness. Chromium and nickel steels, in addition to being stainless, also are very hard when tempered correctly. But the hardest steels are those alloyed with manganese, silicon, or tungsten. Certain tungsten steels have been prepared which when made into cutting tools do not become untempered even when raised to red heat.

* * *

The questions of strength and lightness are related. After all, any metal bar can be made strong enough, if only enough metal is used in it. This added metal does not make a lot of difference in the case of stationary engines, but for locomotives, motor cars, and airplanes, which carry their weight along with them, the question of weight becomes of prime importance.

There are a number of metals that are lighter than iron. In fact, there are two, sodium and lithium, that even float on water; but these are quite useless as building materials. They are far too soft, and they both are corroded violently on mere contact with water. There are two other metals, aluminum and manganese, that are more promising and are also commercially available in any amount. Pure magnesium is a fairly strong metal, but is very easily corroded. Pure aluminum is quite resistant to corrosion, but is not strong enough for most purposes.

* * *

Fortunately, alloys of these two metals seem to inherit the good qualities of both parents. Magnalium, an alloy of 90 per cent aluminum and 10 per cent magnesium, is superior to aluminum for purposes where strength is required. Within recent years there has been developed an alloy containing 95 per cent aluminum, 4 per cent copper, and .5 per cent each of magnesium and manganese that has a strength approaching that of steel, with only a little over a third of the weight. Incidentally, this particular alloy, known as alclad, is rather subject to corrosion, and so is usually prepared with a thin coating of pure aluminum.

There will come a time, no doubt, when the world's supplies of iron ore will be exhausted. Aluminum is the most abundant of metals in the earth's crust, and its potential supply is practically unlimited. So the big problem that eventually will face the metallurgists will be that of finding efficient methods of extracting this metal, as well as alloys that will make it a substitute for steel. A start has been made in this direction during the last generation. Our race has seen the stone, bronze, and iron ages. Perhaps we are now about to enter the aluminum age.

Scientific Queries Answered

Mr. Beck will be glad to answer questions of scientific nature. Address Thomas M. Beck, Graphic Section, Chicago Tribune. For personal reply, inclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Does dew come out of the ground? How much water vapor does air hold?—M. M., Chicago.

The amount of water vapor that air can hold decreases rapidly with falling temperature. When the ground cools off after sunset it cools the air next to it until this air is too cool to hold its supply vapor. As a result water is deposited on the ground in the form of dew. The amount of water vapor that air can hold is about .005 oz. at 32 degrees, .02 oz. at 72 degrees, and .05 oz. at 100 degrees F. for each cubic foot of air. However, it is only on misty days that the air holds these amounts of water. Usually the atmosphere is far from saturated.

1935 Magic—News Pictures by Wire

Tribune in Wirephoto System

By WHITLEY NOBLE

ALADDIN with his magic lamp and ring and the two frightful genii, slaves thereto, in their best moments couldn't have done it. They lacked imagination and never operated that fast.

The flashing of pictorial matter by wire across a continent 3,000 miles wide in the brief space of one-sixtieth of a second is a miracle of today. Wirephoto, the new system of telephotography by which The Chicago Tribune collects pictures and photographs from far and wide in somewhat the same manner (though far more marvelously) as it collects news by telegraph, operates with a speed approximately the same as that of light.

Photographs scanned by an uncanny "electric eye" are borne by electrical impulses along wires to other "electric eyes" in far-away cities, picked up at an amazing rate of speed, and reproduced upon negatives to be made immediately into duplicate photographs, so that readers within the daily circulation range of newspapers participating in the Wirephoto service may see them in just a matter of minutes and hours after they are taken. No longer do obstacles of time and distance compel news photographs to trail hours and days behind the actual news. Side by side with the day's grist of news, important stories of eventful happenings, accounts of vital and startling occurrences, flash on parallel wires the last-minute photographs that illustrate the news. Speeding trains and specially chartered planes, photograph vehicles of yesterday, are snaillike by comparison.

38 Newspapers Linked in 10,000-Mile Circuit

Wirephoto, materialization of a ten-year-old dream and result of three or four years of careful planning, begins operating now, today, tomorrow, not later, acording to schedule, than the new year. The Tribune and 37 other newspapers in 24 cities are joined in the 10,000-mile network of the Wirephoto circuit, which stretches from coast to coast and from as far north as Minneapolis to as far south as Miami, for the purpose of supplying each other with the important news pictures of the day.

No small undertaking has been the organizing by the Associated Press of this modern magic service. At the beginning its great expense loomed as a possible obstacle to realization. It was necessary to obtain guarantors among the member newspapers of the Associated Press to underwrite the cost of purchase and installation of equipment. The Trib and the New York Daily News were quick to act in the matter of underwriting the huge expense involved. Also among original guarantors of the project were newspapers in Baltimore, Washington, Buffalo, Detroit, Cleveland, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Oklahoma City, Oakland, San Francisco, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Denver, Dallas, Milwaukee, Omaha, Dayton, Miami, Atlanta, and Syracuse. Two Chicago afternoon newspapers subscribed at a later date, or, in other words, after equipment for Wirephoto had been ordered. The Tribune is the only morning newspaper in Chicago participating in this new telephotograph service.

In the office of each newspaper taking the service, except in cities in which the Associated Press maintains central offices, is located the equipment for sending and receiving photographs and pictures by wire. In those cities in which there are central Associated Press offices the equipment is in the central office. The equipment room in each case occupies 240 square feet of floor space.

Pressing of a Button Starts Wirephoto Day

The Wirephoto day begins in each of the 24 equipment rooms over the country with the pressing of a button which sets in motion a power plant, a unit of the equipment which includes a sending and a receiving machine and a bay or switchboard for each. The panel contains also a talking circuit with loudspeaker over which any point in the circuit may talk to the others. The power plant's function is to supply an absolutely constant source of voltage to the sending and receiving machines, as no commercial source of electricity is steady enough for the purpose. The power plants consist of special generators, regulators, and storage batteries, the last named indicated on the key to the sending and receiving bays shown on this page by the abbreviation G.T.Bats. The generators are the source of power; the storage batteries and regulators keep the generators steady.

The operator, having started his power plant, adjusts the sensitive machinery by meter readings and tunes the light valve mechanism by the receiving machine, making the tension on a little ribbon vibrate at a natural frequency of 1,200 cycles a second. This operation requires less than five minutes. Then the control station in New York opens the talking circuit. All points report that they are ready, and each lists what pictures it has for sending. What pictures will be transmitted first and the order of sending all pictures of the day are decided by the control station, though from time to time throughout the day changes may be made in the order of sending for the purpose of pushing especially important pictures ahead of others that may have been scheduled earlier. Before a station sending a picture begins the actual sending it transmits for a few seconds into each receiving station an amount of power corresponding to the lightest and the darkest parts of the picture in question. Each point adjusts its power to the receiving equipment at the value of those two limits, knowing that the receiving machine, when adjusted to receive the two extremes of light and darkness in print, will handle normally all intervening shades.

Then comes the signal from the bay of the sending station—three interruptions of power—and operators at receiving points press a button on the receiving machine. A second or two later a button on the sending machine is pressed, starting at the same instant receiving machines on the circuit.

A portion of picture an inch wide and 11 inches deep can be transmitted in one minute.

Negative on a Cylinder Receives Incoming Picture

A cylinder on the receiving machine at every station, eighteen inches long and twelve inches around, has been loaded with a negative upon which can be received a picture of any dimensions up to eleven by seventeen inches. The negative, fastened to the cylinder, is in a lightproof container. The negative then is exposed to a light from a lamp focused through an aperture one one-hundredth of an inch wide, before which is a ribbon which admits little or much light according to the strength of the current caused by the picture on the sending machine. In case the portion of the incoming picture is very black the aperture which admits light to the negative is nearly closed; where very light, the aperture is nearly open.

At the end of the picture the receiving machine automatically cuts off. The cylinder is removed from the machine, taken to the darkroom and opened, and the negative removed and developed. If the picture is the maximum size of eleven by seventeen inches its transmission has taken just seventeen minutes, for the recording light, one one-hundredth of an inch wide at its maximum, puts its imprint upon the negative on the cylinder, which is revolving at the rate of 100 times a minute, at the rate of an inch a minute. In other words, a portion of a picture one inch wide and eleven inches deep can be transmitted in a minute, the transmission itself being carried out, as pointed out before, with the approximate speed of light.

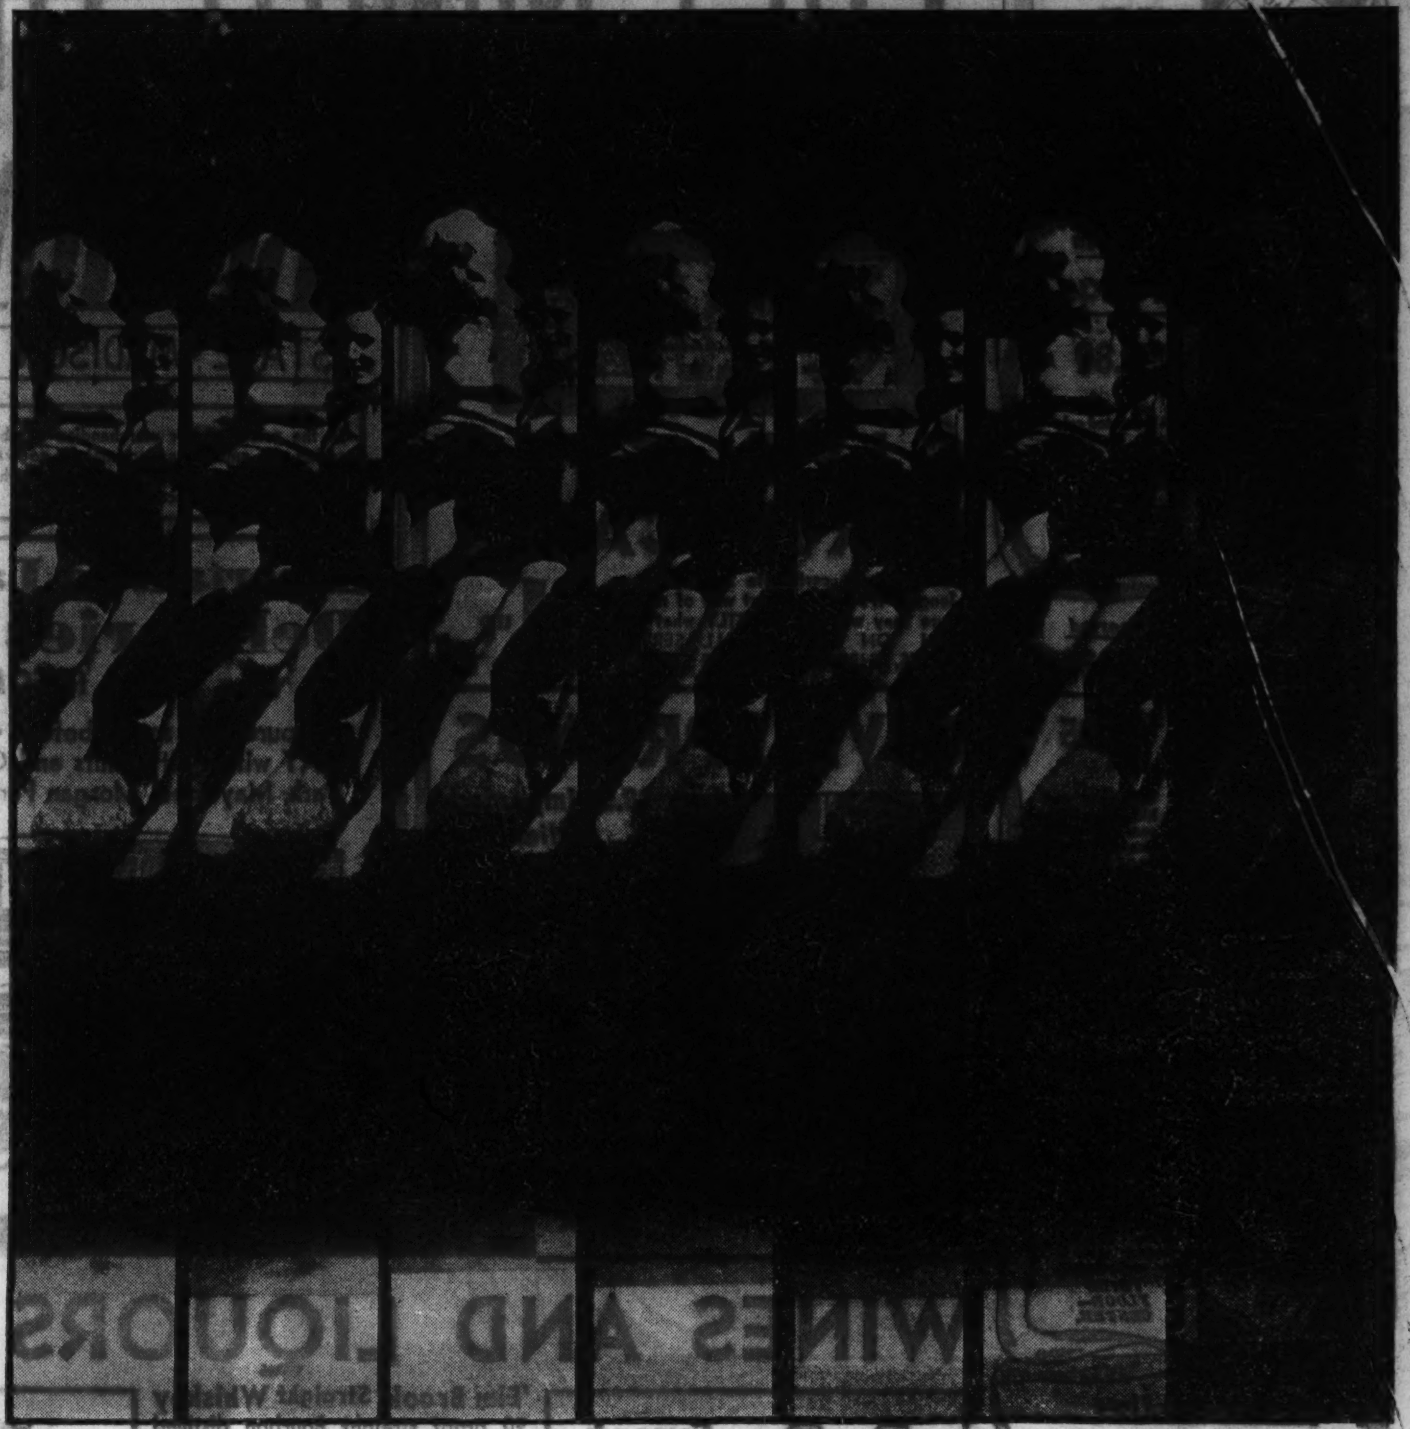
More Than 60 Pictures the Average for a Day

The operation achieved on the sending machine at the time the receiving machines are getting the pictures is much the same as that described in the preceding paragraphs, though in the reverse. Upon the cylinder of the sending machine is placed not a negative but a positive print of a picture or photograph. The cylinder turns at a hundred revolutions a minute, the print being scanned in strips of one one-hundredth of an inch by means of a light beam focused first on a light valve aperture similar to the light valve used in sound picture work. The valve chops the beam at a frequency of 2,400 cycles, passing a pulsating beam which is turned through ninety degrees of focus sharply on the surface of the picture.

Since the light reflected from the picture surface is proportional to the tone density of the surface, the pulsating beam is modulated with the tone values of the picture before reflection to a photocell. The light valve, an aperture one one-hundredth of an inch square, is partly covered by two duralumin ribbons connected to form a loop. A magnetic field at right angles to the plane of the ribbons and a 2,400-cycle current through the ribbons furnish shutter action. As the ribbons vibrate on their inward swing the aperture is closed, and on their outward swing the aperture is opened. A single-tube amplifier furnishes the regulation necessary just before passing the power to the line. The principle of operation at the receiving points is similar to that of the sending light valve except that only one ribbon is used.

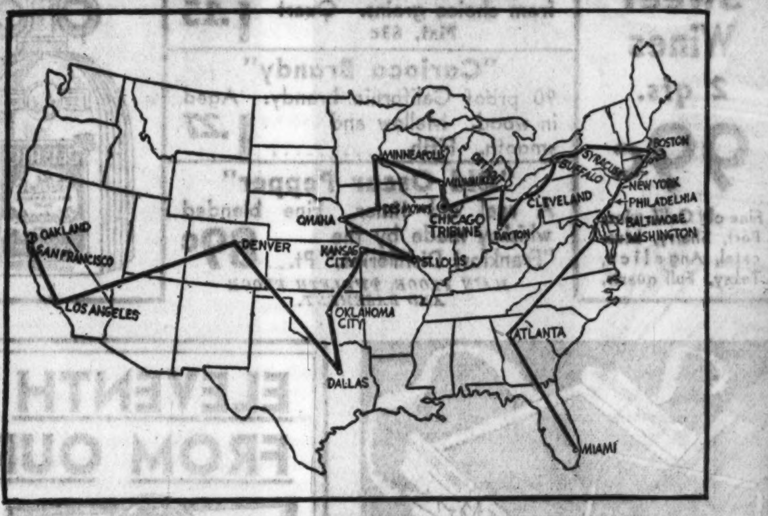
Thus do "electric eyes" in the various points in the 10,000-mile circuit transmit or receive average sized pictures at a normal rate of sixty-odd or more in a sixteen-hour day.

Three views of Wirephoto sending machine. A—Here the hooded "electric eye," which converts tones of pictures into electrical impulses for transmission by wire, has moved at an inch a minute most of the way across the cylinder upon which prints are mounted for sending. B—Approximately the same stage of sending as shown in figure A, but photographed from a different angle.. C—Machine from above. In the foreground, driving motor and clutch. At the right of motor and clutch are, at bottom, switches for turning on motor and light beam. Above them, in order, a rheostat for controling light intensity, a meter indicating light intensity, a starting button, and an auxiliary button for emergency stops.



In tests to ascertain the best type of film for reception of pictures by wire, ordinary film was exposed in seven stages varying from correct exposure to 70 per cent of correct. Above is the result, showing (left to right) loss of detail at successive stages of underexposure. A special Wirephoto film was evolved which at 70 per cent of correct exposure shows little detrimental effect.

(Associated Press photos.)



A leased wire 10,000 miles long links The Chicago Tribune with newspapers in 23 other cities in Wirephoto system of the Associated Press, which taps most important news source centers of the nation.

Wirephoto receiving machine shown from three angles. X—Reception beginning. The receiving equipment under the hood in foreground, moving to left across the carriage at an inch a minute, will expose the negative within the lightproof cylinder. Behind the machine is the power plant, which supplies an absolutely constant flow of current for the transmission equipment. Y—A closeup showing the cylinder in which the negative is contained. Z—Here the incoming picture has been recorded on the negative within the cylinder, and the operator is removing the cylinder. This goes to the darkroom, where it is unlatched and the negative is removed and developed. Meanwhile another cylinder containing a negative is put on the machine.

Society's Young Set Is Taken in Tow by Parents

University of Chicago Sector Forms Club to Assert Ancestral Rights.

By Cousin Eve.

FROM the University of Chicago sector a brilliant new idea to brighten short, dark winter days. Parents are again coming to the fore. Parents are again parents, and not supine idolators of their young. Gone are the traditions of endless cash, motors, splendorous clothes for children of fifteen. Banished are roadhouse dances, cocktail parties, holiday parties beginning at midnight and ending at daylight.

Here at least is a group of people who do not seem to fear the displeasure of their youngsters.

The literature of the new University Colony club glows. It says "a group of parents, interested in maintaining certain traditions and standards among the young people, have formed this club to provide for our sons and daughters entertainment reflecting the social ideals of our homes."

All members of the Quadrangle club are eligible for the Colony club. There is a membership of fifteen dollars, and seven dances in all are given. Three for older children, three for juniors, and a Christmas general party, or ball, given this year at the Shoreland.

New York Has Used Same Scheme for Many Years.

The same idea has prevailed in New York for many years. There it takes the form of "dancing classes," four or five during the season, with half a dozen mothers present nightly as patronesses.

To belong to one of these fashionable "dancing classes" places a child socially. They have to be elected to membership from families having social ideals. One notes there will be six wassail bowl parties preceding the Christmas ball.

Names backing this important social reform are Mrs. Charles Gilkey, Mrs. T. P. Cross, Mrs. Harold White, Mrs. Harold Pitman, Mrs. William A. Thomas, Mrs. Ernst Freund, Mrs. Herbert Bradley, Mrs. F. Cooper Cole, Mrs. James A. Field, Mrs. Haskell H. Howells, Mrs. Ernest Irons, Mrs. W. F. Ogburn, Mrs. Dallas Phemister, Mrs. George L. Pollock.

Celebrities Here by the Dozen.

A week flows by. Its waves leave upon our classic shores a medley, highly variegated, of interesting strangers: André Simon, famous French gastronomist who lives in London; Paul Nordhoff of Philadelphia, young, good looking master of jaz, for whom a large Sunday evening party was given at the Casino by the Drama league.

Col. Stewart Roddie of London, British war veteran, brilliant lecturer. He makes people think violently of the sorrows of Germany and the sorrows of Russia under dictatorship. Col. Roddie, an amusing Scot, lives with a widowed aunt in a beautiful house upon the Thames; a famous house, filled with interesting furniture and souvenirs of a distinguished past. This aunt, Lady Julia Tweed, is honored by a warm friendship with that admirable woman, Queen Mary of England.

Again there is Bernard Fay of Paris and the Collège de France. William C. Bullitt, envoy to the soviets. And lastly that handsome poet, Michael Strange, one of the most picturesque and socially prominent poets of her time. One goes to the Alliance Française at noon to hear, and to Robert Hall McCormick's Saturday Tavern luncheon to meet, André Simon, authority on foods. Editor of a magazine, author of books, M. Simon, a fine, upstanding figure of a man, discourses entertainingly. We learn of the ancient origins of sauces Bernaise, mayonnaise, and many tricky things about dining.

Ambassador to Russia William C. Bullitt arrives at dawn and leaves in the wee small hours for Washington. He routs out John Storrs, the sculptor, his college friend, and together they do the reception at the newly arranged Art institute. Mr. Bullitt enjoys his job in Moscow; is intrigued by the low soviet estimate of all mankind. Likes our pictures.

Fay Predicts Trouble in France Soon.

M. Bernard Fay, professor of American culture in the Collège de France. An agreeable, dark, youngish man, whose ancestors were leaders in the haute bourgeoisie in France in 1400. There is nothing he does not know about French politics. Little that he does not know about American slang. Phrases like "best bet," "stealing thunder," and "stunts" are scattered through his vital talk on the French "interior" before the Foreign Relations Friday luncheon. He described the realignment of power in Europe, the reasons for France's falling on Italy's neck. The intricate web of French home politics, where the masses and rich industrial barons can defend themselves. But the huge and intelligent French middle class have no defense.

There is no majority in France. But there is great economic unrest which will start something soon. Whichever faction will overturn the applecart is already "licked." For all the other factions will unite into a unified nation against them. The French love to hate each other, said M. Fay. And peace is certain in Europe for at least five years.

Adlai Stevenson chairmanned this session. Others at the head table were M. and Mme. René Weiller, Robert Hall McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, Mrs. Daniel Taylor.

Roddie Tells How England Scrapped Germany's War Machine.

Col. Roddie lectures far and wide on the Hitler régime. I heard him at the Union League club. He was of the British commission in Germany for the destruction of war materials. A thousand officers of the allies were on the job. Instead of one year, the commission worked hard for seven years. What the British destroyed was 66,000 guns: of rifles, 450,000,000; of machine guns, 100,000; forty million shells, and 40,000 tons of powder.

It took ten thousand million marks to buy one gold mark after the deflation.

Consul General Jaeger tells me he keeps as a curio a note pad made of million mark notes.

One of Col. Roddie's great hits was when he sat at the piano and sang the Hitler song, a rather ugly and discordant chant it seemed to me. He prefaced it with "La Giovinezza," Italy's youth song. Hitler's speeches, says the colonel, are "unadulterated claptrap."

Carleton Smith has also lectured at the Union League club, and met with immediate success. The protagonist handles music and musicians with authority, not forgetting that humor is magic.

On Monday his great friend, Mme. Schumann-Heink, was his topic. He called her "Mother Schumann-Heink," for so she wishes to be called. After his lecture of a half hour she, "the last of the immortals" talked intimately and delightfully. Unforgettable hour. Later many guests were presented to this grand, monumental woman from artistic and fashionable circles.

Ganz Says Classical Music and Jaz Grow Chummy.

Paul Nordhoff at the Casino. A good Drama league party sponsored by Mrs. Harold Pynchon. A high note of it, Rudolph Ganz's introduction, following Mrs. Clarence Hough's opening. Sitting at the high table, musical blood, the Ganzes, Ebba Sundstrom, Felix and Mrs. Borowski, the Carl Brickens, and Nordhoff himself, blond, tall, gentle. A nice, soft voice.

Mr. Ganz spoke of "the tragedy of jaz." He introduced the composer as from the City of Brotherly Love and quarreling conductors. He remarked that for some time classic music and jaz have been "holding hands under the table." Following the story of the composer who was told that "his music would be played when Beethoven and Brahms were forgotten—and only then." Mr. Nordhoff illustrated his thoughts on the piano. He gave the African origins of jaz, and jaz he considered from four angles—the labor song, the spiritual, "the blues," and jaz as new music.

He wound up with Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." Many themes similar to this, according to musical men, are now found in recently made records of old music of Bohemian and Rumanian gypsies. Interesting! Highbrow audience rather. Mrs. Chauncey Borland and Harriet and Martha Borland, Mrs. William Ennis, Miss Katherine Wolcott, Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Black, Mrs. William Wright, Mrs. Paul Shorey, Mrs. Edward Leight, who had given a huge tea for Nordhoff. Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Charles Chadwick, Rudolph Reuter, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fisher, Mrs. Helen Walton, Mrs. Royden Keith, Mrs. Paul N. Peterson.

Polish Consul and His Sister Soon to Leave.

The news was going round that Alexandre Kulikowski and his handsome sister, Mme. Joanna de Hygersberger, are leaving for his new post at the embassy in Washington. Jan. 1 will see the departure of these decorative charmers from Warsaw.

Another benefit, way off on a Sunday afternoon, Feb. 3. Ossip Gabrilowitsch, Detroit Symphony leader, will give his only piano recital for the season at Orchestra hall, for the Illinois Society of Mental Hygiene, of which Dr. Ralph Hamill is president.

Mrs. Byron Harvey Jr. is chairman of the benefit. Others are Mrs. Arnold Joerns, Ronald P. Boardman, Mrs. William S. Monroe, Stuart Otis, Mrs. Hermon D. Smith, Miss Margaret Walsh, Durand Smith.

Charming reception of the week, debut at the Fortnightly for Miss Louise Parsons, daughter of William E. Parsons, noted architect, and Mrs. Parsons. A smart company, many bouquets, lovely music. The bud is a budding portrait painter and was lovely to look at in velvet, Nather blue.

William Parsons, born in Philadelphia, is a first cousin of the former Mrs. Arthur Ryerson.

Mrs. Heaton Owsley, here for a few weeks after spending most of last year in Rome, is leaving soon for another world cruise. She came home principally to visit her daughters, Lina Harrison [recently married to Philip Thornton Hutchins at Ogunquit, Me.], and Mrs. Sterling Morton of Chicago.

Mrs. Owsley's journey will take her through the South Sea islands, Indian ocean, and over much of Africa. The Franconia, on which she sails, will cuise in summer weather over to South America and then homeward. Also aboard, Max Oser, son-in-law of Harold McCormick, and his little family. Mrs. Oser, married at 17, was the former Matilde McCormick, a granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller.

ASSISTING AT ART INSTITUTE RECEPTION

Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., pouring, and Mrs. James Ward Thorne were among the members of the Antiquarian Society of the Art institute, who assisted at the reception held at the institute on Dec. 14 to open the new exhibits in the second floor galleries, where last summer the second Century of Progress art exhibition was hung. The table presided over by the Antiquarians and members of the Fortnightly club was one of the most stunning of the five at which representatives of fourteen women's clubs served tea and coffee to the 3,500 guests who thronged the galleries. Mrs. Walter S. Brewster decorated the table, using some of her treasures and some of Mrs. J. M. Patterson's rare possessions.

N. Y. Society No Longer Rushes to the Opera

Opening Evokes Little Enthusiasm Among Elite; Boxes White Elephants.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK

The opera opened again last night, and pardon me if I am not too enthusiastic. There are, I grant, new seats in the auditorium, and there are freshenings of paint and carpets in the foyers and refreshment rooms, but the old Metropolitan itself needs more than just refreshing. It needs renaissance.

It isn't even so much that the old temple of Bel Canto has long since seen its day. The sad part of it is that the generations of society that were brought up in the tradition of opera are, for the most part, gone to meet their forefathers and doubtless lament the sad state into which the old earth has fallen.

Once upon a time, if some social light passed on, there were immediately others who were glad to purchase from his or her estate the holding in the Metropolitan Realty company that entitles its owner to the possession, joys, and headaches of a box.

Last Transfer of Box Involved Quarter of a Million Dollars.

The last recorded transfer of a box, if I am not mistaken, was for a sum in excess of a quarter of a million dollars. That was a large sum even when people had it—and owners have told your Nancy that the old bromide holds for a Met box: "It isn't the cost—it's the upkeep." What with dinners fore and suppers aft, the performance—nice little subscriptions to help finance the cost of bringing over the greatest singers in the world, etc., the cost of maintaining a parterre box is close to that of maintaining a yacht. And hard as it is to get rid of a yacht, a box is even more of a white elephant.

Well! There haven't been any transfers of boxes in the parterre of late years and there has been a disappearance of members of the older generation. This year saw the passing of two notable parterre members, Otto H. Kahn and the tiny, but keen, Alice Vanderbilt. These boxes are now part of the residual estates of their former owners, like so many others, and the executors would shout hosannah if buyers appeared. But none do.

Another Cycle Should Bring Met Back Into Favor.

You can easily see then that without the influx of new blood the social end of the opera falls into what I hope you'll pardon me for calling "innocuous desuetude." The music loving public would adore to go to the Met every night it is open, but it just can't afford the prices. It goes instead to the Hippodrome, where inferior singers warble to crowded houses. So there you have it. The Met opened last night with "Aïda" in all its pomp and circumstance. Being Saturday night, the congestion on Broadway was a little worse than usual. Diamonds glittered once again in the golden horseshoe and batteries of lorgnons and opera glasses were turned on the occupants. And all I could think of was: "Where, O, where are the dear, familiar faces?" Never you mind, though. The glories of the Met are gone with those of the charity ball, but things come always in cycles, and the love of the best music and the best voices will not vanish from the ranks of society. Like the good old Phoenix, the opera will rise from the sad ashes of its present state. You ask me when? Hm—that's another matter.

Of course, one of the most observed and striking figures at the opera last night was Mrs. Edward F. Hutton. Eleanor, though she hasn't been mentioned along with Mona Williams and Louise Van Alen Mdivani as among the world's best dressed women, is without doubt qualified for the title. The point is that the list was issued by foreign couturiers as a gentle compliment to their customers, while the one-time Eleanor Close does her shopping at home.

Anyhow, what I started to say was that while Eleanor is much in the public eye, her daughters live rather quietly. The elder, Mrs. Thomas Welles Durant, is a leader among the horse-y set and they don't give a hoot for public notice.

The younger, lovely Eleanor, who was once Mrs. Preston Sturges, then wife to a Frenchman, and now Mrs. George Rand, is willing to let the Hutton be presented to the public by Princess Barbara Hutton Mdivani. They aren't related, for while Franklyn L. Hutton and Ned Hutton are kinsmen, Eleanor is Mrs. Hutton's daughter by her marriage to Edward B. Close, and it was on their mother's marriage to E. F. that the girls took his name.

Eleanor is honeymooning at present in the old world with her George. While they are away two studio buildings in Greenwich village, in Washington Mews, to be correct, are being remodeled and when they get back the Rands will live down there, below the arch. It has become quite fashionable again as it was in the dear, dead days beyond recall. Didn't I say, a few paragraphs back, that things go in cycles?

DECEMBER DEBUTANTE

Miss Louise Parsons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Parsons of West Schiller street, made her debut at a tea at the Fortnightly on Dec. 14. She is at home from the Yale school of fine arts, spending the Christmas holidays with her parents and enjoying the gay round of festivities that are keeping the debs busy morning, noon and night all during the holidays.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, March 28, 1885.

DEAR Julia: Martha is in the parlor waiting for Sandy, who is to call for her after visiting a sick patient in the neighborhood. She has been playing old melodies and the sound floats out sweetly to the library, where Will and I are sitting. Martha isn't a great musician, and she has quite given up practicing since Baby Esmond came, but I love to hear her play, for she has something in her touch which I can't find a word for, though "sympathy" is perhaps as good as anything. I find her playing of old ballads highly satisfying. Just now she is singing Claribel's "I Cannot Sing the Old Songs" and I've had to use my handkerchief as I listen and think of songs dear mother sang to me when I was a child.

I cannot sing the old songs
I sang long years ago,
For heart and voice would fail me
And foolish tears would flow.
For bygone hours come o'er my heart
With each familiar strain;
I cannot sing the old songs
Or dream those dreams again.

I cannot sing the old songs,
For visions come again
Of golden dreams departed
And years of weary pain.
Perhaps when from earth's fetters
My spirit is set free,
My voice may know the old songs
For all eternity.

Now Martha has dropped into "Sweet Belle Mahone," which always has seemed to me heartbreaking, not because of its own words, but because I first heard it at a time when Will was desperately ill and we feared he would never be well again. As I hung over him one summer evening some one next door was singing:

Soon beyond the harbor bar,
Will my boat be sailing far.

And I wanted to sail with my beloved to that far haven, so that I remember bursting into tears and leaving the room when the last words were finished:

All my heart can e'er adore;
Shall I meet thee nevermore,
Sweet Belle Mahone?

The songs of yesterday were all sad, with a lover weeping over the grave of a lost one, or a child being borne to heaven by angels. . . . "Rosalie, the Prairie Flower," is an example of that. Will says there was good reason for such songs, since many strong young men and beautiful young girls died from fever which came from poor sanitation in cities and country places alike, while cholera claimed countless victims in the fifties. How thankful we should be that physicians recognize and successfully treat many diseases which were fatal in less enlightened times! Consumption is still a great scourge. There seems nothing to do for that.

Well, there is the front doorbell. . . . Sandy coming, I presume. I must close. We all send love. Yours as ever,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

The Monday winner of the contest, "Disguised Cities of Indiana," was Miss Agnes Johnson, 5479 Kimbark avenue, whose solution was the first correct one opened on that day. Wednesday's winner was Vassie Darr Beyrer, 1020 East Colfax avenue, South Bend, Ind. The correct solution is: 1, Greencastle; 2, Kokomo; 3, Sullivan; 4, Elwood; 5, Bedford; 6, Seymour; 7, Crown Point.

Several old sayings have been received this week. Mrs. F. L. Randell offers one appropriate to the season: "As many mince pies as you taste at Christmas, so many happy months will you have." She also sends a stanza from an old exhortation on thrift:

'Tis wilful waste makes woeful want
And I may live to say:
"O, how I wish I had the bread
That once I threw away."

Ethel M. Colson Brazelton [one of our favorite speakers, by the way] sends us an old Kansas saying: "There's a whole day tomorrow that ain't touched yet." [Said when any one got in too much of a hurry.]

Thanks to many readers who sent "Annie's and Willie's Prayer." If the friend who asked for it will send his address we will mail a copy. It is too long to be printed here.

We are eager to get country sayings. Can you send us something as good as this: "I'm not one to swallow a cow and choke on the tail?" [Said when some one offered to help with a task almost finished.] Interview people who have lived on a farm or who have country connections and find a good proverb or saying with a farm flavor. See how pleased we'll be!

Address Herma Clark, care CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

BETROTHAL ANNOUNCED

Miss Amy Jean Malloch, whose engagement to Wilbur F. Bohnsack, son of Mrs. William G. Bohnsack of 1501 Glenlake avenue, is being announced by her father, Douglas Malloch of 1532 Thome avenue. The wedding will take place in the autumn of 1935. Miss Malloch is a senior at De Paul university, where she is a member of Delta Delta Delta. Mr. Bohnsack is a graduate of the University of Michigan, class of 1934, and is a member of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity.

IN PHILANTHROPIC WORK

Mrs. Paul Delano Hamlin sips a cup of tea as she makes plans with some of her friends and acquaintances for an affair with a philanthropic flavor. She is active in several charitable organizations, including the woman's board of St. Luke's hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Hamlin are planning a trip for early in 1935.

Michigan Bank Also Claims a Woman Trust Officer

IN the public prints recently appeared the statement that Miss Emma E. Lange of Montclair, N. J., is the only woman trust officer of a bank in the United States. That announcement took in too much territory, it is noted by H. R. Leslie of the Jackson City, Mich., Bank and Trust company, who calls attention to the fact that Sarah E. Morris is a trust officer in the Michigan institution.

Holiday Spirit Rules Current Club Activities

Sober Considerations Cast Aside in Favor of Parties for Both Old and Young.

By Ruth DeYoung.

MERRY Christmas to you, and you, and you! May Santa fill your stocking to overflowing and may the true message of the Christmas season with its hope and peace find its way to your fireside and there abide.

It's always jolly to write the club column the Sunday before St. Nicholas' arrival, for serious matters are forgotten in favor of yuletide plans and parties. Parties for needy boys and girls and parties for their more fortunate brothers and sisters. Luncheons, teas, and tableaux for the grown-ups.

At 2 o'clock next Thursday afternoon in the auditorium of the Medical and Dental Arts building the Chicago Woman's Aid will have its annual children's party. Mrs. Perry Segal has written a play, "Ambassador Mickey Mouse," especially for the occasion, and it has been cast among the members of the aid. Mrs. Leslie Bezark, Mrs. Louis Frankel, Mrs. Howard G. Mayer, Mrs. Robert S. Harris, Mrs. Emanuel H. Heimann, Mrs. Mark Rolfe Jr., Mrs. Robert M. Schiller, Mrs. Max Schrayer, and Mrs. William M. Zavis will be recognized on the stage.

Jean Ritter, the 8 year old violinist, pupil of Mischa Mischakoff and winner of the Frederick Stock scholarship, is to play, and Mrs. Henry D. Hirsch is to be the singing lady, leading the children in song. Preceding the program there will be a luncheon for the children.

Children to Present Puritan Tableau.

Reversing the order of entertainment, the young members of the Mary Virginia Ellet Cabell Society of the Children of the American Revolution will present a Puritan Christmas tableau and sing Christmas carols for the members of the Chicago chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at 2:15 Thursday afternoon in the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel. Mrs. George W. Donaldson and Mrs. S. G. Artingstall Jr. are directing the program. Mrs. Frederick J. Dickson is regent of the Chicago chapter.

Koko, the clown, is to be master of ceremonies at the children's party the Willing Workers' Woman's club is to have at 1:30 Wednesday in the ninth floor hall of the Real Estate Board building. A "barrel of fun" is promised, with a puppet show, candy, and prizes. The proceeds will go to buy shoes, stockings, and underwear for the poor children the club helps support.

MISS VIRGINIA NEW.

In the year 1934 there remains only one event for the members of the Catholic Women's league, and this is the members' annual holiday party at 9 o'clock Thursday day evening at the Illinois Athletic club. The party will be a supper dance, with bridge, however, for those who do not care to dance. Receiving will be Mrs. F. X. J. Foley, chairman of the league's social committee, and Mrs. Richard H. Hallinan, the league president.

Several of the underprivileged girls whom the Service Council for Girls assists will give the entertainment at the council's annual Christmas tree party at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the council headquarters at 203 North Wabash avenue. Before the party thirty of the girls will attend the theater as the council's guests. Mrs. Fred H. Law of Flossmoor is the general chairman of the party, assisted by Mrs. Wilfred S. Reynolds.

Milwaukee Road Woman's Club Will Hold Open House.

Mrs. Charles P. Gerity, president of the Lake Shore Woman's club, announces the club's annual Christmas party for 1 o'clock Wednesday at the Edgewater Beach hotel. After the luncheon Mrs. Francis E. Hanson is going to discuss "Philanthropy."

The Union Station chapter of the Milwaukee Road Woman's club will hold open house for its members and their friends from 11:30 to 2 o'clock tomorrow in the Union Station clubrooms. Receiving will be Mrs. H. A. Wicks, social chairman, and Mrs. W. R. Dolan, the chapter president.

Miss Virginia New will be hostess at 1 o'clock Saturday at the annual Christmas party of the Delta Sigma club of the University of Chicago and its alumnæ association. The party will be a bridge luncheon at the Palmer house. Miss New is president of the campus club this year.

MAKES BOW TO SOCIETY

Miss Mildred Starck, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip T. Starck. She made her debut at a tea at home on Dec. 14, followed by a dinner-dance, also at the Starcks' residence on Wellington avenue. Miss Starck finished her schooling at the Finch school last June and she went to Miss Bennett's for several years.

France's Envoy Weds Princess Murat in Rome

By May Birkhead.

PARIS

Diplomatic and social Paris has known for some time that Count Charles de Chambrun and Princess Lucien Murat would be married in Rome. Now the event took place at a time when the relations between France and Italy have become extremely cordial. It is believed that much of the present good feeling is the result of Mussolini's marked personal liking for M. de Chambrun, whom the Romans call Monsieur de France.

The French ambassador to Italy belongs to that well known and sympathetic family which has today, as it has had for generations, a notable place in public life. The de Chambruns are directly descended from Lafayette. Count Charles' father was sent on a special mission to Washington during the civil war. He was among those who saw Lee surrender to Grant.

Born in America, Served Here as French Attache.

His oldest son, the Marquis de Chambrun, who has for years represented the department of La Lozère in the chamber of deputies, like his forbears for several generations, studied law in Washington, and was admitted to the bar of the District of Columbia. His brother Adelbert, the general, who married Clara Longworth, was born in Washington, and so was Charles, the ambassador to Italy.

Before going to Rome, Charles de Chambrun had had much diplomatic experience. He was an attaché of the French embassy in Washington, and during this time had occasion to inform M. Poincaré that there was little likelihood of the United States senate ratifying the treaty of Versailles. He was in Athens during the revolutionary troubles of 1926. Then he represented his country at Vienna, and after that at Ankara. In the summer of 1933 he became ambassador to Rome, where he has lost no time in making himself persona gratissima.

Bride Is a Biographer of Distinction.

His wife, who first married Prince Lucien Murat, descendant of Napoleon's famous marshal and king of Naples, is of the celebrated family of de Rohan. She has literary interests, and her talent is shown in her biographies of Catherine the Great of Russia and Queen Christina of Sweden. For some years she was the moving spirit of the tea and exposition rooms which gathered many notabilities in the world of Parisian letters where the Pont-Neuf touches the Place Dauphine, in an attractive nook named after one of Paul Morand's first successes, Ouvert la Nuit. There you could always see pictures, rather modernish, range among the books and buy them, and drink as good a cup of tea as Paris affords.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Miss Virginia Bennett, whose engagement to John F. Moulds is being announced today by her father, the Rt. Rev. Granville Gaylord Bennett, and Mrs. Bennett of Providence, R. I. Miss Bennett went to the University of New Mexico and Pembroke college. She is living in Chicago this winter with her aunts, the Misses Helen and Estelline Bennett. Her fiance went to Oberlin college and then to the University of Chicago, where he was a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Moulds.

Art Institute's New Exhibits Vary in Appeal

Paintings, Photographs, Cartoons Make a Curious Medley in East Wing

By Eleanor Jewett.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

The Art institute has opened its galleries again to temporary exhibits which reflect in a measure the passing trends of the day. The galleries dedicated to this purpose are commonly known as the "east wing galleries;" last summer, and the year before, they were hung with modern paintings, chiefly contemporary, with a certain per cent of them American, in the Century of Progress shows.

A curious medley of displays makes up the first of the series of winter exhibits which opened some ten days ago. Three of the exhibits are composed of paintings, one of textiles, one of photographs, and one of drawings and prints steeped in political humor that date back to about the time of the civil war. The question might be raised as to whether the more proper place for this exhibit and the photographs would not have been the print galleries, rooms which custom has long dedicated to the showing of black and white. Paintings in all mediums, including water colors and miniatures and sculpture, seem to be more at home in the upstairs galleries of the Art institute.

Norton's Memorial Exhibit Shows His Death a Great Loss.

Naturally the question of what kind of paintings would have to be hung had the space been kept for them is of some moment. The probabilities are that the choice would not have been particularly popular, so perhaps it is as well that the Christmas season shall see there only such work as by no stretch of the imagination can arouse controversy, indignation, or despair.

None could quibble with the memorial exhibit of work by the late John Norton. His sparkling water colors line the walls of the little entrance hall and his large oils, magnificent in composition and technique, hang on the walls of the first large gallery. It is a comprehensive show. There are portraits, figure paintings, murals, and paintings of various subjects. One of particular appeal shows a gay bathing beach. The large Mexican episode of narrow trail, reluctant pottery-laden donkey, and two persuasive Mexicans seeking to make him try his nimble hoofs on the dangerous slice of path is amusing, modern, and beautiful. The exhibit brings home with force the fact of the great loss Mr. Norton's death occasioned to American art.

Regional Exhibit Is Modern in Flavor.

Two comparatively small exhibits follow in the next galleries. The one is of modern paintings from the collection of Hamilton Easter Field. This does not pretend to great significance. Most of these works were the gift of the artist to Mr. Field in gratitude for his encouragement and help. "The Chess Players" by Mr. Field ranks about as high as anything in the room. The exhibit as a whole strikes one as not dangerous; one might liken it to the kick of a petulant child. It misses striking any sound or constructive note.

The other painting exhibit is a selected group from a larger exhibition which was held in the John Wanamaker stores in Philadelphia and New York. A "regional" art show—that is, a certain section of the country was taken and the work of artists living in it was invited—is the background of the exhibition. The paintings were invited for exhibition and for sale. Prizes were awarded by a jury composed of Robert B. Harshe, director of the Chicago Art institute; Grant Wood of "American Gothic" fame, and Lloyd Goodrich, art critic.

Fifteen hundred dollars in prizes were distributed. Four of the prize winning canvases are seen here. They are "Tattoo and Hair Cut" by Reginald Marsh, "Tumblers" by Lucille Blanch, "Jefferson Street" by Antonio Martino, and "Negro Boy" by Thomas Benton.

The exhibit is distinctly modern in flavor. The finest painting in it is "Tow Path" by John Folinsbee, a strong piece of work excellent in color and composition. George Biddle is heavily funny à la Grosz in "Timrod Inn," a clever skit. Raphael Soyer gives an excellent characterization of female defiance, rebellion, and "oh, what's the use," in his painting of two girls.

On the whole, this exhibit is more interesting than the Field group.

Political Cartoons Both Funny and Ephemeral.

The extensive showing of cartoons and political prints is most amusing and a little instructive. The chief lesson they carry is that all things pass. Those fights and distempers which lit the populace in each succeeding decade of the years covered seem amusing to the disinterested spectator of today. At the moment, however, they were burning issues and aroused the spirit and tongue of every one capable of taking thought. The exhibit repeats the force of humor as a weapon. Turn the joke on your opponent and you lessen his strength. President Theodore Roosevelt's teeth, President Wilson's thin, high nose, President Taft's weight, all of these were tools for and against. Apparently the chief weapon that President Franklin Roosevelt offers the cartoonist is his personal charm. This is lampooned in a most amusing print.

From this exhibition one goes to the extensive showing of photographs, many of them beautiful, in the International Salon of Photography sponsored by the Chicago Camera club. Photography has made great progress recently. Many of these pictures are as sensitive and fine as etchings. It is a brilliant show and one which will please a large audience.

The German and Austrian textiles, a group of which hangs in the last room, close the winter show. They are warm in texture and interesting in color.

News of Interest to Lovers of Art.

While the school of the Art institute is closed for the holidays, the museum, of course, remains open.

The All-Illinois is sponsoring a colorful show in the Florentine parlor, Congress hotel, of still life and portraits by Carl Olsen and of landscapes by Martin Lundgren. Mr. Olson is gifted. His work stands out for its beauty and sincerity. The portraits are excellently handled, rich in character and color. The still life arrangements are beautiful, warm in tone, delicate in texture, fascinating in composition.

The landscapes by Martin Lundgren make a good foil. They are well done, some of them are striking. Colorado, Wisconsin, and the dunes of Michigan have given him models. He has done each beauty justice.

An exhibition of recent work by Raymond Katz went on view in the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club, last Thursday.

The Marguerite Kirmse new etchings of dogs include "Old English," a startling real portrait of an English bulldog, ugly as he can be but fascinating. Two Scotties at the head of a steep flight of stairs are the subject of another good one; the prints of the hunting dogs are similar to those issued last year. These Kirmse etchings are on exhibit in the Carson Pirie Scott gallery.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN

Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, one of the city's most distinguished patrons of music, is chairman of the committee in charge of the dance series the Bohemians are sponsoring as a benefit this winter. The second of the series of four programs will be given Friday night at the Auditorium theater by the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe. The premiere of Stravinsky's "The Fire Bird" will be the principal attraction that evening.

Mediterranean Lands Hailed as World's Finest

Dudley C. Watson Says Background Provides Priceless Experience.

SOMETHING of the beauty and majesty of the romance lands of southern Europe and northern Africa was portrayed by Dudley Crafts Watson, extension lecturer of the Art institute, in an illustrated travelog, "Great Adventures Around the Mediterranean," at the Lake Shore Drive hotel Wednesday evening. The talk followed an elaborate dinner given by the Italian line for the travel agents of Chicago.

"There is no other experience to equal travel," Mr. Watson said. "And there are no other countries to equal those bordering on the Mediterranean. It isn't particularly their climate or their scenery. It's more especially their background—the art fabric that makes them almost priceless and that provides experiences which never can be had except by going there in person."

The lecturer took his hearers to Tunis, Algiers, Morocco, the Nile, the Alhambra, Athens, Naples, Rome, the Villa d'Este at Tivoli, Venice, the Italian lakes, Florence, and many other beauty spots. His address was accompanied by slides reminiscent of Maxfield Parrish paintings in the splendor of their colorings. "No one has a right to go to heaven until he has seen the best this world has to offer," said Mr. Watson.

At the dinner brief talks were given by Paul Occhipinti, associate director and passenger trafic manager of the Italian line, and Thomas Silvestrini, Chicago manager. Commander Aroldo Palanca, director general of the line, was scheduled to attend, but was detained in New York.

The affair was the second of the kind on the week's program. Last Sunday evening Capt. Guglielmo Maggini, Chicago delegate of the Italian royal government tourist office, entertained nearly 600 travel enthusiasts with a "Mediterranean Rhapsody" at the Medinah club. Judge Louis Senese Jr. of Melrose Park gave a lecture on the trip from New York to Naples, Dr. Frederic B. Acosta of Chicago told of the journey from Naples to Palestine, Miss Camille of the Opera Comique gave a dance, and Mme. Frida Savini of La Scala in Milan and the San Carlo opera sang a group of songs.

Belgenland Taken Over by Panama Line and Renamed

AN important vessel has been added to America's merchant fleet with the acquisition of the former Red Star liner Belgenland by the Panama Pacific Line. The completion of the arrangement, which involves changing the registry of the vessel from British to American, was announced Tuesday by P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine-Roosevelt company, of which the Panama Pacific Line is a subsidiary.

The liner will be rechristened Columbia and is to be employed exclusively for cruises under the house flag of the Panama Pacific Line, beginning with a series of eleven day triangular cruises throughout the winter season. It will be the largest cruise ship in the world and the only cruiser to operate under the American flag.

The Columbia's schedule provides for a fortnightly sailing from New York, commencing with Feb. 9. It will call at Nassau, Miami, and Havana and return to New York by the same route.

Special Tour to Hocky Tourney

THE Chicago office of the Hamburg-American Line-North German Lloyd announced last week that it is planning a special tour in connection with the world championship ice hocky tournament to be held in Davos, Switzerland, from Feb. 19 to Feb. 27. Five nations have already applied for positions in the competition. The middle western tour to the meet is scheduled to leave New York on the New York of the Hamburg-American Line on Feb. 7, and it is expected that the group will return on the North German Lloyd liner Bremen on March 2.

VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Please make them brief. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

Evanston, Ill., Dec. 13.—To the Travel Editor: My compliments to you on your excellent Travel section. My chronic craving for travel is always seriously irritated by it.

ELIZABETH PAINE.

Hot Springs, Ark., Dec. 15.—To the Travel Editor: Words of appreciation from Hot Springs! We were all thoroughly pleased with the treatment accorded us in the Winter Travel section. In fact, the national park service is eager to see if arrangements may be made to have "pulls" of Kathleen McLaughlin's story—of course with due credit lines to her and THE TRIBUNE.

ALTA SMITH,
Hot Springs Chamber of Commerce.

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 14.—To the Travel Editor: Your ears, as well as those of Miss McLaughlin, would have tingled pleasantly had you been near the Chamber of Commerce building at Hot Springs yesterday. The entire staf were loud in their praises of the nice editorial mention of the baths by Miss McLaughlin's facile pen. In the several years it has been our privilege to serve this account, I think her contribution is the best that has appeared in the way of news mention in reference to the springs. It is a particularly happy handling of the bath feature.

ROBERT H. BROOKS.

MIAMI'S MAYOR INVITES CHICAGO TO COME SOUTH

MIAMI and Miami Beach came to Chicago last week. A group of notables headed by Mayor E. G. Sewell flew here Thursday in a plane piloted by Eddie Rickenbacker, and on Friday afternoon they officially opened the new travel information office at 180 North Michigan avenue.

Pointing out, in his dedicatory address, that Miami and Miami Beach are some 1,300 miles nearer the equator than are the resorts of the Mediterranean Riviera, Mayor Sewell invited the people of snowbound Chicago and the middle west to come down there and get the benefit of the gulf stream, with its uniform temperature of 72 degrees. Ponce de Leon, he said, searched for the fountain of youth there, but failed to find it. Modern Americans have found it on the ocean beaches and in the ultra-violet rays of the sun.

Representing Mayor Kelly, President Clayton Smith of the Cook county board welcomed the newcomers on behalf of Chicago. The opening of the doors of the office was assigned to Mary Elsie Weems, 16 year old blonde, who won the title of "Miss Miami" in competition with more than 200 girls at the Miami-Biltmore hotel some time ago. Dr. George Henry Bradford, manager of the office, presided over the ceremony. Music was furnished by Los Latinos rhumba orchestra under the direction of Don Juan Rajos.

In the course of the afternoon and early evening many hundreds of visitors poured in to see the exhibits of the cities "where summer spends the winter." Among the celebrities were: Chauncey McCormick, David Joyce, Guy Randle, Don C. Cowin, Paul Block, George Booth, H. S. Hart, Al Matthews, Mrs. Ora Snyder, E. J. Brach, James Levy, Sidney Smith of THE TRIBUNE, President L. A. Downs, C. C. Cameron, and J. V. Lanigan of the Illinois Central system, and Arthur W. Emerson and T. J. Bates of the New York Central lines.

300 WILL SING AT HOT SPRINGS

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—An inspiring Christmas eve spectacle will be enacted here when 300 white robed singers file down Hot Springs mountain carrying lighted candles, in the resort's fourth annual carol sing, sponsored by the National Park service and the chamber of commerce, under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Bowe.

Mountains hem the upper part of the city and in a natural amphitheater at the head of "Bath House row," where Senator Joe T. Robinson was formally notified of his Democratic nomination for Vice President in 1928, this Christmas event will take place.

LIFE IN THE OPEN ON THE PLEASURE ISLE

Sunshine and salt water at the Castle Harbour hotel, in Bermuda, where the new season is approaching the height of its gayety.

VAGABOND'S DIARY

RIO DE JANEIRO, beautiful city of the River of January. . . . Second largest in South America. . . . One of the finest harbors in the world. . . . Coastal basin fringed with mountains. . . . Huge sums spent in improving the waterfront. . . . Tree lined boulevards along the mountain studded shore. . . . The new arrival sees no docks and warehouses such as clutter up other ports. . . . Trips to the sacred shrine of the Virgin of Guadalupe, almost as famous as Lourdes for cures. . . . Excursions to the ancient city of the Toltects, 40 miles away.

● Havana, with its gay hotels, its old world restaurants, its casino, and its race courses. . . . Buenos Aires may be "the Paris of the southern hemisphere," but Havana calls itself, and rightly so, "the Paris of the western hemisphere." . . . A hundred million dollar highway. . . . Morro castle jutting up arrogantly from the sea. . . . Tales of long ago —pirates and ruthless dominion. . . . The city's 17th century section reminiscent of old Spain. . . . Narrow Andalusian streets, balconied houses, flower filled patios. . . . Sunny haciendas, iron grill work, and, in vision, lovers with guitars. . . . The Prado full of tourists from all over the world.

No Christmas for Travelers on Ship Bound for Orient

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—"There ain't gonna be no Christmas," is the regretful expression being heard from members of officers and crew aboard the Oceanic liner Mariposa these days. It seems that the international date line, the imaginary strip running down through the Pacific, is again playing havoc with usual plans. "But we're not worrying," continue the seafarers, "for just wait till you see our Christmas eve!"

This trans-Pacific liner is scheduled to be on its way from San Francisco to Australia at a period through December which puts it on Christmas eve just to the eastward of the date line. The result is that the next morning, which to most folks is Christmas day, will be for passengers aboard this vessel Dec. 26. Christmas will have vanished some time during the night into that limbo of lost time that hangs over all ships traveling westward across the Pacific.

Christmas Trees En Route.

Should the Christmas season find you aboard any of Illinois Central's luxury trains you will have the spirit of Yuletide as a traveling companion. There will be beautifully trimmed Christmas trees in the club cars of the following trains: The Seminole, all year train to Florida; Panama Limited, the Louisiane and the Creole, Chicago to New Orleans; the Daylight and the Diamond, between Chicago and St. Louis.

Chicago Tourists Leave for Mexico

THE largest tour party yet to visit Mexico left Chicago Friday via the Wabash railroad. There were 56 Chicagoans represented in the group going to spend the holidays in the southland.

They will stop in Monterey, spend several days in Mexico City, and at Guadalajara, the chief city on the west coast of Mexico, and return to Chicago Jan. 4.

The tour is under the guidance of the American Express company. Officials of that concern said yesterday that more than 200 persons have been booked at their Chicago office for such trips this winter.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations, to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What is the Sorbonne?—R. L.

A university in Paris founded in the thirteenth century by Robert de Sorbonne.

When will the new Queen Mary make its maiden voyage?—G. C.

Three Liners Will Complete 72,720 Miles in 6 Months

WHEN the Holland-America liner Statendam returns from a cruise to Bermuda on June 3 next year, it and the Rotterdam and Vollendam will have traversed 72,720 miles of ocean lanes and will have spent 233 cruise days on the Atlantic and Pacific.

This mileage, equal to three and one-half times around the globe, will have been covered by Ralph Dellevie's National tours cruise program of eighteen offerings over a period of six months.

The first of these cruises sailed from New York on the Statendam yesterday for South America and the West Indies, and the "wind-up" cruise of the program is on that same ship, sailing from New York May 29 for Bermuda.

There will be four cruises to Bermuda, one to Bermuda and the West Indies, nine to the West Indies and South America, one to Mexico and Nassau, 1 to Nassau and Bermuda, and one each to the South Sea islands and Nassau.

Tourists Flock to Palm Beach for the Winter

And Judy O'Grady Can Have Just as Much Fun There as Colonel's Lady.

By Hal Foust.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—This city of 26,000 population will entertain 14,000 tourists and winter residents this season, many of them sending postal cards back home from Palm Beach, the island of social registrants at the other end of causeways across tidewater Lake Worth.

This is far from being the only fun on the mainland, where hotel rates and apartments are within reach of modest pocketbooks. There is the same ocean for fishing and bathing as enjoyed from luxurious winter homes in cultivated tropical landscapes on the island.

The palm trees, giant royals and coconuts and spreading dates, and the brilliant poinsettias and bougainvillea, those that escaped the recent cold snap, are just as attractive when seen on a drive or stroll from a 75 cent tourist camp as from a $40 a day hotel on the island.

In the rivalry between the towns, if there is any, there is no doubt that Palm Beach wins the datelines for news stories for the society columns. It is on this low island, about twelve miles long and from a mile to a mile and a half wide, that the fashionable clubs, hotels and expensive winter residences are situated.

Where Gulf Stream Comes Close to the Shore.

Here the Gulf stream swings close to the shore—hence the wealth of tropical growth, the mild winter climate [an official average of 69.4 last winter], and exceptional deep sea fishing. Warm southern waters, 80 miles wide, push through the ocean and exert a constant influence on the climate. It's the same stream, still pretty warm, that touches England's shore, keeping John Bull's country from freezing tighter than Iceland.

From the time the south bound motorist swings past the Seminole Country club north of West Palm Beach, hitting the legal 45 miles an hour or better on a smooth concrete highway, until he has finished his tour of West Palm Beach and Palm Beach, the impression is natural tropical luxury.

There are half a dozen exclusive golf clubs where one may play if one has the right Palm Beach connections, and there are numerous others where the fees range from six bits to $3 per day. The turf is thick Bermuda or St. Augustine grass and the closely clipped greens are kept velvety with a mixture of four kinds of grass.

Palms and flowering shrubs line the fairways and back up the greens, but the native Florida Palmetto, a nasty in-law of the palm, is usually found in the rough, close enough for a bad slice to locate.

Its Chief Attraction.

West Palm Beach has all of the usual sports and entertainments, including tennis, boxing, and wrestling bouts, dog racing, diamond ball games, sailing and speed boat races and regattas, but its chief attraction is in its proximity to ocean and fresh water fishing.

More than 35 charter boats are available at rates of $15 to $20 for a half day or $25 to $40 for a full day, and you may include five or six in the party. All tackle is furnished, so the total tarif is not much greater than that of a foursome at a first class golf club.

Aside from the prime sailfish, which is commonly from six to seven feet of fighting dynamite, there are a dozen varieties of deep sea fish to be taken within 20 minutes of the embarking point. Amberjack, kingfish, mackerel, wahoo, dolphin, grouper, barracuda and an occasional marlin are found. The average morning's catch runs about 100 pounds of fish, at 10 to 20 pounds a haul, the boatmen say.

30 Pounds of Fish in Two Hours.

For the man who wishes to spend less than $5 a day for his angling there are piers into the ocean and spots along the inlets and tidewater streams, readily accessible to the roads, where many smaller varieties can be taken. During nor'easters the bluefish "run" and a man with a surf rod and a strong right arm can get as high as 30 to 40 pounds of fish in two hours' time casting off the beach.

Pompano, which are laid down on a hotel dining table in Chicago for $1 to $1.50 a portion, are taken from the beach with a casting rod or from the piers. Most of the fish are edible and every restaurant here lists a half dozen varieties the year round.

Within a half day's journey by car are many choice fresh water fishing spots, where big-mouthed black bass run four to eight pounds on the average. The winner in the West Palm Beach summer fishing contest was thirteen pounds and nine ounces and was taken from a small inland lake 60 miles west of the city. Competent guides are available through the West Palm Beach Fishing club, which numbers 400 members, including residents and visitors.

The territory just west, from 20 to 60 miles, has deer, wild turkey, quail, doves, snipe, and several varieties of ducks. Sportsmen report better bags this year than in the season of 1933-'34.

From 75 Cents to $25 a Day.

Hotel, apartment, and home accommodations are whatever you wish to make them, ranging from 75 cents a night at the tourist camps, through $2.50 to $4 single in first class West Palm Beach hotels, to from $12 to $25 a day [American] in the class hotels of Palm Beach. The highest rate single in West Palm Beach is $6 a day single and $10 double.

In reply to critics who claim Florida is profiteering from the rush of winter visitors, the Palm Beach County Hotel Men's association point to an agreement, signed before opening of the season, to maintain exactly the same rates this year as last.

R. V. Berry, president of the association, said business averaged from 30 to 40 per cent better for November and thus far in December than in the same period last year, while John I. Leonard, secretary of the Palm Beach Chamber of Commerce, said the season was a month ahead of schedule in the number of people in the hotels and their winter homes. The Breakers, one of the finest in the chain of the Florida East Coast Hotel company, opened two weeks earlier than last year and reports heavy advance bookings.

Yachtsmen Given a Break.

Yachtsmen are getting a break in government improvement of the coastal canal along the entire coast. In Lake Worth are numerous basins and docks accommodating cruisers and yachts. The larger yachts dock at the Port of Palm beach, which will be deepened in the next few months from its present 18 feet to 22 feet. The inland channel is eight feet deep and 100 feet wide, providing safe passage from northeastern ports.

Bathing is, of course, one of the chief diversions—next to sunning. At Breakers beach, where society gathers at exactly the eleventh hour every morning, and at numerous private beach clubs like the Bath and Tennis, Sea Spray, Sun and Surf, are northerners acquiring that "expensive tanned look."

Public beaches follow the same rule as the private ones with regard to the bathing hour, but their devotees stay longer. Along Ocean boulevard cars are parked solidly for more than a mile during the season and gay umbrellas almost cover the beach.

"—BUT DON'T GO NEAR THE WATER"

Bathing styles at Palm Beach, as displayed by two visitors. The Gulf stream swings close to the shore there, giving the resort an average winter temperature of nearly 70 degrees.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

DAY after tomorrow the so-called Christian nations, along with some that pay no homage to the Man of Galilee, will observe the anniversary of what was perhaps the most momentous birthday in history.

In this day of speed, when transportation has just about conquered time and space, a trip around the world to see how the young folk, along with some that are not so young, were celebrating the occasion could be made in a little more than a week. Lacking that opportunity, armchair travelers can survey the situation in a few minutes.

- What about Russia, for instance? Christmas, as well as other religious holidays, is taboo over there. Young communists do not subscribe to the Santa Claus legend. But they profit from the day nevertheless. This year more than 100,000,000 rubles' worth of toys were made in sovietland.

Zagorsk, a small town near Moscow, is the chief toy producing center. A scientific experimental institute there devises playthings deemed valuable from pedagogical and artistic points of view. Samples of these are submitted to committees made up of editors, teachers, and artists, and, if approved, are passed on to the commissariat of education. They are also submitted to juries of children. In a special room groups of youngsters are invited to play while trained observers watch their reactions. The children are really the final judges.

- Non-Christian Japan likewise maintains a thriving branch office for Santa Claus. Toys made in the factory districts of Osaka will enter millions of American homes this season. The depreciated yen, the low cost of skilled labor in the far east, and America's hostility to the Hitler régime in Germany, former toy making center of the world, have combined to make Japan's export of such things the largest ever. Its factories turn out playthings in the latest occidental patterns. Even the Santa Claus masks used in this country are made there.

- In some sections of China a holiday falling at Christmastime has been celebrated for 400 years as a day of friendliness. The children have their fireworks, and in the lantern-hung gardens they meet up with their version of Santa Claus. They call him Lau Khoong Khoong, which means something like Good Old Father.

In the Philippines the smiling natives greet travelers with "Ma-ayon-Pascua," or "Merry Christmas." If the traveler happens to enter a village mission house for the Christmas services, he's apt to find a barefooted organist at the melodeon, and chickens, pigs, and dogs drifting in and out through the open doors.

- In Germany this year the day dedicated to the Prince of Peace will be given over to propaganda designed to increase Hitler's cannon fodder for the next war. The Nazi "Power Through Joy" organization will wage a campaign against spinsterhood and bachelorhood.

"Christmas trips into happiness" have been arranged to give single Germans, lonely through many holiday seasons, their opportunity to change their status. The Berlin section of the organization is offering honeymooners three such trips at reduced rates. Those who accept will spend Christmas and New Year's at the ancient university town of Marburg or in the mountain districts of Saxony or Silesia. And, as their own special contribution to the scheme, the authorities at Marburg will give a week's free board and lodging to the newlyweds.

- In Italy the Christmas tree, common to other countries, is virtually unknown. So the celebration centers around Epiphany.

The Franciscan churches stage their midnight masses, and the memory of St. Francis is recalled by the tolling of bells, which chime and echo in a symphonic chorus. Flames from millions of flickering candles light misty domes and vaulted ceilings. The rich frescoes and ornamentations are enlivened below by altars framed by the valets of the commune in medieval costumes.

In Rome the Presepio, founded by St. Francis, is adopted by church and home as the poetic atmosphere for the occasion. At Santa Maria Maggiore the Relic of the Holy Cradle is carried in the procession as the whole city tingles with rejoicing.

- In Valencia, Spain, the rejoicing is often tempered with tragedy. Fishermen from that Mediterranean port brave stormy December weather in an effort to land a catch that will enable them to buy more gifts for their families, and sometimes they pay with their lives. It is traditional there that Christmas week produces more fatalities than occur at any other time of the year.

In Toledo, Spain, the church organists try to surpass themselves on Christmas day, in the belief that he who does so may become imbued with the spirit and talent of some master organist long since dead. Those attending the services listen closely, in the hope that they will be able to detect the dead master's skill if the player receives this heavenly blessing.

- Minstrelsy plays an important part in Hungarian folk lore. In certain parts of Trans-Danubia a troup visits every house in the village. Made up as animals, the singers rap at the doors and make all the noise they can. The bull rattles the chain, the cat brandishes a spit, the pig carries a satchel. When they are admitted to the house they carol a rime or two and then proceed with their "matchmaking." One of the rimes winds up with a few magic though obscure words which are presumed to cast a spell upon the young people in the house. The custom is a remnant of ancient rites which have survived among most nations in one form or another and which were originally intended to assure fertility.

- It would be pleasant, day after tomorrow, to hear the chimes ringing in Rome, or the organs playing in Spain, or the minstrels singing in Hungary. Or perhaps you'd prefer to light the yule log in an otherwise clammy house in England, or hear the mummers over there chanting: "Go down into your cellar and see what you can find; if your flagons are not empty, I'm sure you will be kind."

Or maybe it would please you most to be somewhere near Bethlehem tomorrow night, following the dusty trail along which Three Wise Men once made their way to a manger.

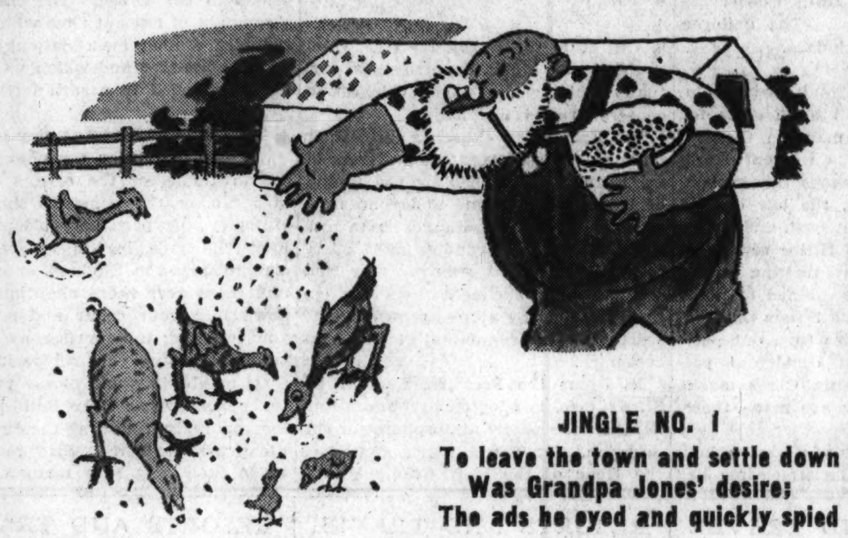
Advertise in the Tribune

Which rime-lines printed in today's Want Ad Section best fit these jingles?

YOU MAY USE THIS HANDY BLANK

"UNFINISHED JINGLES 'C'"
Chicago Tribune
Postoffice Box 1718
Chicago, Ill.

In the blank spaces below I have inserted the rime-lines which I believe to be most suitable for today's Unfinished Jingles:



JINGLE NO. 1

To leave the town and settle down
Was Grandpa Jones' desire;
The ads he eyed and quickly spied

(Write or paste here most suitable rime-line as found in today's Want Ad Section.)

HINT: See Real Estate—Farm Lands.

JINGLE NO. 2

"I'm tired of waiting to land a job,"
Said college graduate Snelling.
"With all these many salesmen ads

(Write or paste here most suitable rime-line as found in today's Want Ad Section.)

HINT: See Help Wanted—Salesmen.

JINGLE NO. 3

Farmer Brown has lost his frown;
They say he's in the kale.
His chickens lay and people pay

(Write or paste here most suitable rime-line as found in today's Want Ad Section.)

HINT: See Parcel Post and Express.

JINGLE NO. 4

When old miser Hyde finally died,
His lawyer hunted heirs;
A "Personal" indited soon excited

(Write or paste here most suitable rime-line as found in today's Want Ad Section.)

HINT: See Personals.

My name..

Street and No. ....

City.. State..............

NOTE: Do NOT make up your own rime-lines. Just select the most suitable ones from those printed in today's Tribune Want Ad Section. At least 12 and not more than 16 rime-lines are printed among the ads in today's Want Ad Section. It's up to you to choose the FOUR which you think best fit these jingles.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE WILL PAY

$100.00 IN CASH PRIZES

FOR THE BEST SOLUTIONS TO TODAY'S

"UNFINISHED JINGLES"

YOU DON'T HAVE TO MAKE UP THE RIME-LINES—JUST CHOOSE THEM FROM THE READY-MADE LINES PRINTED AMONG TODAY'S WANT ADS

How good a chooser are you? Here's a chance to find out. Today the Chicago Tribune presents another fascinating "Unfinished Jingles" game. You'll find it loads of fun. And it's instructive as well as entertaining. There is no hard work to do—no letters to write—nothing to buy. Just send in an entry. The Tribune will pay $100.00 in cash prizes to successful contestants. Read the rules and send in an entry today.

• THE RULES: •

WHAT TO DO: Presented on this page are four unfinished jingles. Note that the last line of each jingle is missing. Between 12 and 16 rime-lines which fit these jingles will be found among the want ads in today's Tribune want ad section. You are invited to find and select the FOUR rime-lines which you think best fit today's jingles and try for the cash prizes which the Tribune will pay. Note the hint beneath each picture.

PRIZES: For the best solutions to today's "Unfinished Jingles" submitted in accordance with these rules, the Chicago Tribune will pay $100.00 in cash prizes: First prize, $25.00; second prize, $15.00; third prize, $10.00; next three prizes, $5.00 each; next ten prizes, $2.00 each; next fifteen prizes, $1.00 each.

WHO CAN ENTER: This offer is open to all—men and women, boys and girls, except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

WHERE TO SEND ENTRIES: Entries should be mailed to "UNFINISHED JINGLES 'C'," the Chicago Tribune, Postoffice Box 1718, Chicago, Ill. All entries to today's game must be received in the Tribune office before 6 p. m. on Thursday, December 27, 1934. No entries will be returned. Only one entry to today's game may be submitted by any one contestant.

JUDGING: The Chicago Tribune will appoint a committee of judges to consider all entries. Awards will be made to the persons who send in the best entries. Each entry must consist of the four jingles printed today. Judgment will be based upon the suitability of the lines submitted, and neatness. No special consideration will be given to elaborate entries. Entrants agree to accept all decisions of the committee as final. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be made to tying contestants. The Tribune cannot engage in correspondence on this subject.

YOU PAY NOTHING: You need not purchase the Chicago Tribune to compete. The Tribune may be examined at the Tribune offices or public libraries free of charge. You may use the handy blank supplied here or you may copy the jingles on a separate sheet of paper.

REPRODUCED FROM A COLOR PRINT THROUGH THE COURTESY OF THE METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART, NEW YORK

THE ADORATION OF THE KINGS

By Hieronymus Bosch (1462?—1516)

"This Adoration represents the artist's earlier, idealistic period. . . . The small scale of the figures and the sharply defined perspective give almost the impression of a tableau from some Christmas mystery play set upon the medieval stage."

It's MISTLETOE TIME!

Wreaths in windows, and candles' merry flame, merriment in the air — It's Mistletoe Time! No drinks in the Holiday season are quite so appropriate as those made with Mistletoe. Its very name suggests Christmas.

Serve These Mistletoe Gin Drinks:

Gin Old Fashioned: Lump of sugar, 2 dashes Angostura bitters, twist of lemon peel, a little water. Mash in Old Fashioned glass, add crushed ice and fill with Mistletoe Dry Gin.

Sloe Gin Cocktail: Fill a cocktail glass with Mistletoe Sloe Gin, ice cold. (Keep a bottle in your refrigerator). Add a maraschino cherry, and a dash of lime or lemon if you wish.

Tom Martini: 1 part Mistletoe TOM Gin, 1 part French Vermouth: stir with ice, strain, and add olive.

Some very lucky people will get a Mistletoe Gift Carton—a Christmasy, silvery box containing a bottle each of Mistletoe Sloe, Dry, and Tom Gin, and Mistletoe Kummel. Probably your dealer can supply you with Gift Cartons for your best friends—It's Mistletoe Time!
